Is there no antidote for the high cost of living?

SIMCOE BRAND BAKED BEANS

Mrs. Consumer to Mr. Grocer—"Is there no antidote for the present high cost of living?"

Mr. Grocer to Mrs. Consumer—"Yes, Mrs. Consumer, I can strongly recommend "Simcoe Baked Beans." Here is a can of Simcoe Baked Beans that I can sell at ten cents. The price is no higher than for some years past. It costs you only a trifle more than an equal quantity of ordinary dried white beans, and yet here it is already to serve. If you prefer, I can supply these Simcoe Baked Beans in Tomato Sauce or in Chili Sauce. This can contains sufficient food for a meal for your entire family. Do you know, Mrs. Consumer, that a tin of Simcoe Baked Beans contains as much nutriment as a pound of beefsteak? If you eat Simcoe Baked Beans, you need not worry about the high cost of living."

Mrs. Consumer buys 6 tins of Simcoe Baked Beans and goes home happy in the knowledge that the high cost of living "banshee" has fled.

SODA-CRYSTALS (WASHING SODA)

Foreign Soda Crystals—and some of English manufacture—are being extensively offered for sale in this country which are grossly adulterated with Glauber-Salts (Sulphate of Soda), a cheap product which is not only entirely useless for washing purposes, but is even likely to injure the fabrics with which it comes in contact. The Adulterated Soda-Crystals, although nominally lower in price than BRUNNER MOND'S PURE SODA CRYSTALS, are in reality much dearer owing to the large quantity of useless and injurious matter which they contain.

A Clean Soap Proposition

Mr. Grocer---

We had to stop the Press and send our ad. in by 'phone last week; unfortunately, the most important line, telling you of our Soap proposition, got lost in transit; however, we will tell you about it now.

With the retail price of Cake Soaps, fixed as it is now at 6 for a quarter, the margin of profit is practically wiped out; in fact, is totally gone for the average merchant who does not handle enough soap to warrant his buying in the required quantities.

Now, our N.P. bar is a clear cut business proposition for you. It is an honest piece of goods with no fake or fad connected with it. It shows the retailer an honest profit. It gives the consumer by far the best value for the money, both as regards quality and quantity, of any Soap on the market to-day.

Show it to your customers, and test it on the scales, ask them to try a bar; if they are not perfectly satisfied with it, you have our authority to refund their money.

Now, are you handling it? If not, get into line quick. Write right off for our prices.

House Cleaning Articles to Feature

Season of Year Here When Merchants Should Endeavor to Sell Such Lines—Brushes, Brooms, Cleansing Powders, Polishes, Lyes, Soap, etc., Among Items that Should be Sold—Window Dressing and Advertising Hints.

Dealers have a splendid opportunity during the next two or three months to increase sales materially by getting behind the best lines of housecleaning articles.

Beginning with March first there comes a feeling among housewives that the spring cleaning-up process is not far distant. This can be helped along by every merchant handling the utensils and auxiliaries for this important work. Create a housecleaning atmosphere about the store by show cards, counter and window displays, newspaper advertising and in personal conversation. Bring on purchasing as early as possible and once the start has been made the time will not be long before everybody requiring these goods will be making inquiries. Stocks should be well in by the first week or two in March—before the 20th at latest.

The Brushes to Sell Now.

As pointed out in a recent issue, merchants as a rule are not giving the necessary attention to brushes for cleaning various articles in the home. There is a large sale for these goods but at present the department stores and mail order house are getting the bulk of the trade.

Bannister brushes for cleaning around the corners of bannisters and other similar woodwork, hair floor brooms and window brushes for cleaning windows are among the good sellers. Then there are cornice dusters for ceilings and walls, glass jar brushes for cleaning bottles, fruit jars, etc., and plate brushes for silverware. In addition to these every dealer knows the necessity of stocking and selling scrubbing, boot and stove brushes at the present time.

When a stock of above brushes is installed the dealer should see that every customer knows he has them and the use and value of each.

Push Good Quality Brooms.

With a brush display brooms should of course be shown. While brooms are in demand the year round, yet many new brooms can be sold at this time. Many housewives wait for this season so as to have a new broom to aid in cleaning operations. It is to the dealer's interest to sell a good quality broom. It will last longer and do better work, which qualifications will in majority of cases insure the sale of the better article.

Mops should be associated with brushes and brooms in any displays that may be made. They will sell more easily now than at any other season.

Cleaning Powders and Uses.

Attention should be given from now on to all powders, polishes, liquids, lyes, etc., that will assist in brightening up the home. Among the goods in the powder line that will sell well now are ammonia powders, dust absorbers, borax, soap and polishing powders.

If these are displayed carefully, both in the window and in the store and the selling points studied so that their uses may be intelligently told to customers—every possible buyer ought to know the value of each—they will sell rapidly. This is no theory; it has been proven too often.

"H. G." Ammoniated Powdered Soap

3 1-Lb. Boxes, 20c.
75c. Dozen
50-Lb. Box, $3.00 } This Week

Give it a fair trial and the probabilities are that you'll never be without it. Try it in the kitchen for washing dishes—paints—cloths—in fact, everything requiring cleansing.

If you're not pleased with it there'll be no charge.

Not a cheap washing compound.

It's actually a powdered soap into which ammonia has been incorporated, which increases its cleansing properties.

Space used to good advantage in this small advertisement.

Various Kinds of Polishes.

Stove, furniture, wall, silverware, metal, porcelain, floor, leather and glass polishes form another list of closely associated articles. If possible, demonstrate their uses by window displays.

An instance of where a dealer sold out a stock of metal polish by demonstration came within the writer's experience some time ago. The polish had been lying in his store for months and was considered dead stock. A window display was suggested in The Canadian Grocer which he immediately put into practice. It was a black boiling pot with one half polished by a certain metal polish and the other half dirty. He duplicated the suggestion, placed samples of the polish in the window with a show card and in two weeks had sold the entire stock at original price, making a good profit.

Other polishes may be displayed similarly, for instance, a chair half cleaned with a furniture polish and the other half dirty; one piece of silverware cleaned, another not, etc. Such demonstrations are bound to create interest and sell goods.

Lyes and Liquid Ammonia.

In the liquid line we have lyes, liquid ammonia and furniture polish. Housecleaning ads. should call attention to prospective purchasers of the uses of these goods. Few sales will be made unless the housewife is acquainted with the values of such articles and the retail dealer in whom she always places the utmost confidence is the man who should diffuse the knowledge.

Where practical demonstrations can be made with lyes and liquid ammonia they should be, to give possible buyers concrete examples of their uses.

Housecleaning Gloves.

Not many general merchants have up to the present paid much attention to women's gloves for housecleaning. Mail order houses are, however, doing a big business in this line. Chamois and cotton gloves keep the hands from soiling in washing dishes, cleansing woodwork, stoves, metals etc., and particularly when strong cleansers are used.

This is a line that deserves some experimenting. These gloves could be talked up every time a woman makes a purchase of some cleaning article.

Soap, of course, should also find a place in the housecleaning campaign. It will be more extensively used than at other times and if suggested in the displays it will not be forgotten.

Use Windows and Newspapers.

Housecleaning windows of individual or associated lines should be frequently made in March and April. Care should be taken not to display such articles with tea and sugar or canned goods. It is scientific window trimming to show associated lines, such as brushes, brooms, mops and cleansers, but not to mix all or any of these with eatables.

Newspaper advertisements are necessary for maximum results. Copy that is of the result-getting character, containing some definite information and proposition should only be used.

See that a housecleaning atmosphere is created early in your store. The early bird catches the worm, and do not neglect a housecleaning campaign on your own part.

The Profits on Soap in Percentages

Correspondent Brings Up the Question—What Dealers are Making Who Buy in Twenty-five, Ten, Five and One Case Lots—Large Stores Have Been Getting the Trade, Say Manufacturers.

Editor Canadian Grocer,—Will you please allow me to draw the attention of my fellow business men to the new condition of the soap business. One firm is sending out a card asking us to sell their soap at 6 for 25. Now let us just look at the question and see what we make on it.

10 boxes $4.05 equals $40.50, for which we get 11 boxes. Cost per box $3.68. Now we will sell about 90 of them for 6 for 25c, equal $3.75. 10 cakes at 5c, equals 50c; total $4.25 per box. Profit 57c, or a fraction over 13¾ per cent., and if we sell all at 6 for a quarter, as some would, the percentage would be reduced to about 11 per cent., and a fraction.

Now as the cost of doing business is from 13 to 15 per cent., where is the profit on soap? Now the man who can only buy five boxes, and there are many, has to pay $4.15. His profit is still further reduced, which is a great hardship. It is still harder for the one who can take only one at a time. Five-box lots show about 12 2-3, and the one box lot with no free goods will be so mean I should be afraid to go into it.

Now I claim goods that will not carry cost of doing business must show a loss. We make 57 cents on a box, but if all goods were sold at that rate there would be a heavy balance on the wrong side at the end of the year.

"ONE WHO LIKES A SQUARE DEAL."

Toronto, Ont.

This soap question is a particularly important one at present time and therefore demands discussion. Profits are always an interesting factor and since the problem has been gone into by the author of the above, let us further consider it.

Buying in Largest Quantity.

If a dealer sells 90 bars on the 6 for a quarter basis, and 10 at 5 cents straight, a case will bring him $4.25. If he buys 25 boxes at $4.05, cost will be $101.25 for which he will receive (from some firms at least) 28 cases. Cost per case would be about $3.61. Profit is then 64 cents, or about 15 per cent. based on the selling price.

It is, however, claimed by manufacturers that only a few large dealers will sell such a high percentage at 6 for a quarter. Let us base our calculations on half and half. Fifty bars at 6 for 25c., make $2.08; 50 at 5c, equals $2.50, or total of $4.58. Cost is $3.61, profit 97 cents or a profit of 21 per cent. on turnover.

Other dealers may sell 75 bars at 6 for a quarter and remainder at 5c straight. Sum received would then be $4.37, cost $3.61, profit 76 cents or about 17 1-3 per cent. It must be considered of course that only a small percentage of the dealers in any city or town is able to purchase in 25-case lots.

The Ten-case Buyer.

A larger number purchase 10 cases. Cost under the new prices would be $40.50 for which 11 cases would be received. Cost per case is therefore $3.68. If 90 bars are sold at the low rate and 10 at 5c straight, sum received per case would be $4.25. This shows a gross profit of 57 cents or about 13¾ per cent.

On basis of 75 and 25, profit would be 69 cents or almost 14 per cent. Half and half, the profit would figure out at about 19½ per cent.

Five-case Lots.

If a dealer purchases in 5-case lots and and gets a half case extra, the cost at $4.15 would be $20.75 for 5½ cases or about $3.77 each. If he sells half at the low price and half at 5 cents straight, profit will be $4.58 minus $3.77 or 81 cents. Percentage of profit would therefore be 17¾.

On the basis of 75 cakes and 25 respectively the profit is reduced to 60 cents on $4.37 or almost 14 per cent. If 90 cakes are sold at the 6 for a quarter rate and 10 at 5 cents straight the profit figures at 48 cents on $4.25 or about 11 1-3 per cent.

In Single Cases.

A retailer who buys a single case pays, say $4.15. If he sells it half and half the profit will be 43 cents on $4.58, or less than 10 per cent. On basis of 75 and 25 it would be reduced to 22 cents on $4.37 or a little over 5 per cent. and at 90 and 10 it would go down to 10 cents on $4.25 or 2 ½ per cent. Of course it is not to be supposed that many stores which are only able to purchase a single case will sell such a percentage as 90 to 10 at the low rate.

Where Are You At?

From the above calculation every dealer will be in a position to determine his profit if he knows what percentage he sells at the lowest rate, and his cost of doing business which must be deducted from the gross profit percentages.

As intimated in last week's Grocer we may expect to see another adjustment of prices. It will be seen from our figures that the one-case buyer is not able to make much profit. The most he can get is 17 per cent. on sales and only that when he sells all of a case at 5 cents straight.

Reasons for Decline?

Manufacturers claim that the easing off in prices is not due to decline in raw materials, for while a few of the ingredients have shown a disposition to go down, the majority are still high. The real reason, they say, is to give the retail dealer an opportunity to sell soap in competition with the large department stores which, after quotations went up, still continued to cut prices. This pertains to those dealers who also cut the price below the 5 cents straight. This applies more particularly to the larger cities where such competition is a big factor.

MANY USES TO KNOW IN THE SELLING OF LYE

By Familiarizing Themselves With These, Dealers Will be Able to Sell More During House Cleaning Season—A Window Display and Some Strong Newspaper Ads. Will Help.

The season of year when lye will be used extensively is almost here. Dealers throughout the country should see to stocks and brush up again on the selling points of this important house-cleaning article.

Lye is a useful cleanser. It has more uses than one would at first consider possible. If these are properly placed before customers sales of lye should materially increase. In the house it is used for softening water, for disinfecting sinks and closets, cleaning milk cans, etc., and washing dishes. Manufacturers claim that dishes can be washed much more rapidly if a little lye is added to the water. It will kill roaches and vermin and aids in scrubbing floors, cleaning cuspidors, bath tubs, tile floors, etc.

For outside and other work the following uses are advanced:—Disinfecting drains, washing barrels, removing old paint and frosting from windows, keeping outdoor closets in sanitary condition, cleaning ink off type, spraying trees, etc.

A window display of lye with a show card enumerating the important uses of this article will undoubtedly sell a considerable quantity. An advertisement or two in the local papers will assist.

Uses of House Cleansers Should Be Known

Advent of Housecleaning Season Will Require Dealers and Their Clerks to Know the Uses and Value of Their Goods—Advantages of Ammonia and Dust Absorbers.

The more uses an article has the greater the quantity that can be sold. That is, providing these uses are not known alone to the manufacturere of the line, but to the retailer and purchasing public as well. Therefore it behooves the dealer to become acquainted with every use to which goods may be put that he may put into practice such information to the benefit of his business.

There are many articles the grocer and general merchant display on their shelves which have more uses than he or his customers know of. One line that has recently some to light is housecleaning essentials such as ammonia, cleansers, sweeping powders, etc.

What Ammonia Will Do.

Most retailers know ammonia only as an addition to water for scrubbing purposes. This is generally the only use which they can bring to the attention of their customers. They either do not know or forget to mention the many other ways in which it is helpful to the housewife.

The greatest use of ammonia is of course for softening water, and taking the place of soap to a large degree in scrubbing and washing clothes. It is pointed out by one manufacturere that it whitens clothes and assists materially as a disinfectant and for routing microbes, bacteria, etc.

Many people use ammonia for toilet purposes. A teaspoonful in a basin of water is excellent for a shampoo, or for tired, aching feet; or a couple of spoonfuls in the bath will make it more delightful.

Digest Labels on Cleansers.

In the same manner the many cleansers now on the market will be found to have a varied array of uses, which, if explained to the housewife, will assist in increasing sales. Anything that lessens the labor of the housewife is warmly welcomed by her.

Study the labels on the packages. They were not put there to add to attractiveness only, but also to set forth the several ways in which the article may be used.

Popularity of Dust Absorbers.

Sweeping powders to prevent dust are fast becoming big sellers with the grocer and general merchant. The old method of stirring the dust up from floor and carpet only to have it settle back once more is losing ground. The housewife wants something that will take the dust and dirt up and leave the object swept bright and clean. This is what these absorbers do and for this reason the dealer has strong arguments to use in recommending them to customers.

The powder literally absorbs and soaks up dirt, dust and germs, and not merely disperses it as in ordinary sweeping. It brightens carpets. It lessens labor. It is not only a germ destroyer, but a disinfectant. These are all strong selling arguments.

A Point on Sweeping.

With most dust absorbers it is unnecessary to sprinkle the entire surface. Merely sprinkle a double handful at any point desired and go ahead. It can be used several times until its basic ingredient is completely saturated with dust. These facts should be pointed out to customers in emphasizing its inexpensiveness.

B.C. Grocers Have New Goods Committee

Victoria Follows Vancouver in This Respect—When New Line is Introduced Committee Investigates its Merits — If O. K. Goes on It Passes Muster—Victoria Grocers Hold Annual Meeting—The New Officers.

Victoria, B.C., Feb. 28.—(Special)—The annual meeting of the Victoria Retail Grocers' Exchange was held on Wednesday Feb. 14, this being also the date for the regular monthly meeting. There was a large attendance of members. After the reading of various communications, reports were presented from the Treasurer, Auditor, and Secretary. The funds are in good shape, there being a substantial balance carried forward and several new names have been added to the membership roll.

No serious trade questions have arisen in the last twelve months, and the most friendly relations exist with the wholesalers. Secretary T. S. Futcher made a strong appeal for better attendance at monthly meetings, the general custom being that unless trouble, or important questions have to be considered, members do not attend. As pointed out to them, there are many trade details of the greatest importance to know. With the changing seasons certain lines come more to the front and require serious forethought. A talk with one another frequently teaches members a new method, a new house, a better seller, a hint to buy certain goods now. A talk is valuable as to some customer who is not paying up well, is buying less, must be getting goods elsewhere, not bad enough to list as "not good for credit," but a case that wants careful watching.

These, and a score of other seemingly unimportant matters can be discussed, each little detail assisting the management of the modern progressive grocer.

Credit Rating Department.

Fred Welsh, of Vancouver, the president of the Retail Merchant's Association of B. C. addressed the members, telling them of the several branch associations which had been formed since last he talked to them; also other associations of distinct trades, such as hardware, bakers, butchers, etc., had affiliated so as to get the benefits of the credit rating department and obtaining that weight and prominence which so large a body of retail merchants undoubtedly have on questions of freight, legislature, licenses, pedlars, etc.

He thoroughly agreed with the secretary's views as to attendance at meetings. "Get together," he advised and especially asked for a large number at the annual convention of the Provincial association in Vancouver in August next. "Keep it in view and make a point to have one or two days there; the active, pushing, successful retail merchants from all parts of the province will be there, and real profitable information will be theirs who attended.

To Discuss New Lines.

Before closing he recommended a new committee to the Victoria grocers. They had adopted it in Vancouver with the best results; it was for the purpose of investigating the quality, necessity for and advantages of any new lines, which travelers were continually introducing. If the committee put their O. K. to it, it went; if it did not get the O. K., they cut it out.

The elected officers of the Exchange are:—H. Schroeder, president; L. Acton, vice-president; Wm. B. Hall, treasurer; E. J. Wall, A. Thornton and A. Tait, directors.

New Goods Committee.

On motion the members adopted the suggestion of President Welsh, and President Schroeder appointed Messrs. Wall, Thornton, Acton and Harrison as a "New Goods Committee," to investigate and pass on all new goods.

Votes of thanks were passed to the past President and officers for their services during the past year; to President Welsh for attending and giving his address, and, to the donators of several boxes of cigars.

CATALOGUES AND BOOKLETS.

Jabez Burns & Sons, New York, have issued a new catalogue on machinery for coffee and kindred products. It contains 224 pages and is profusely illustrated with cuts of all kinds of coffee machinery, with description of same.

The International Harvester Company of America, have issued a 1912 almanac. It not only includes the usual astronomical calculations but illustrations and reading matter respecting the productions of the company. It contains 96 pages.

CARD PHRASES ON CROCKERY.

Dinner sets you can afford to buy.

Does your plate rail lack a plate.

Ask us the price, they're not expensive.

A piece of china will delight your wife.

Nicely decorated china for your cabinet.

Have you a complete set of cups and saucers.

Nothing better than china for a wedding gift.

Sweeping, of course, is necessary, but some regard should be shown for a customer waiting to be served.

Say Winter Carnival Brought Business

Lindsay Grocers Tell of Increased Trade During the Three Days —"Like Three Saturdays" Claims One—How Event was Managed—Expect Even Better Next Year.

Reference was made in last week's issue to the three-day Winter Street Carnival held at Lindsay, Ont. The Grocer got in touch with some of the Lindsay retail grocers to find just how this worked out.

"It was suggested," said E. E. Robson, manager of the W. M. Robson store, "and successfully carried out by a new organization in our town composed of the young business men called The Advancement Club. During the three days of the carnival every merchant in town was urged to give special prices, and I believe the majority did so. The sports were held on the main street; reduced fares on the railroads were arranged for; stores, private residences and main street were decorated, but the main features were the street parade held daily and the "Made in Lindsay" exhibit held in the town hall. No admittance or entrance fee was charged in any of the events. The prizes were all cash, a fund being established before the carnival was held by subscription from the merchants, private citizens, hotels, etc.

"From every point of view the carnival was a success—favorable weather, big crowds and enthusiasm. Merchants report 'big' business which was the main object of the whole 'show.'

Attracted New Custom.

"With regards to the effect on my own business I cannot speak too highly of the results. Seventy-five per cent. of the business I got came from people who are not regular customers of mine, many of them were never in the store before. Of course I gave special prices —as per enclosed list—but in the majority of cases I sold other goods as well. Further than that, I had some of them duplicate their orders the second and third day."

How People Were Attracted.

Adams Bros., another retail grocery firm, write favorably of the event.

"The writer," says their communication, "attended the first meeting held in the town council chambers to discuss this question. While the attendance was not large everybody seemed to take right hold. Committees and chairmen of committees were appointed and the work went along without a hitch.

"The idea, so far as we know, we believe to be of United States origin, as it has been tried in different towns and cities in the States and with great success. To put it just as briefly as we know how, the plan is to advertise liberally (both our daily and weekly newspapers were in the campaign and did splendid service), have reduced fares on all lines of railway, provide free entertainment, give prizes for best turnouts, comic turnouts, to the farmer drawing in biggest load of people, etc.

"We also put on an exhibit of goods made in Lindsay in our market building, which was lighted, heated and nicely decorated. There were some fine exhibits shown and some were quite a surprise to our own townspeople.

Merchants Did Well.

"From our merchants' standpoint it was an unqualified success. Personally speaking we never had three days in the month of February of such splendid turnover or anything approaching it in our business history. In conversation with one of our brother grocers he said 'it was just like three Saturdays put together.'

"The public responded nobly, trains were loaded, farmers came in from far and near and there was a real good time and lots of business. There was no attempt at faking, we all aimed at giving real bargains and in this way we secured the confidenc of the public and we hope to have still greater, bigger and better time next year. We enclose one of our prize circulars. We hope we have not taken up too much space and wishing you every success with the Canadian Grocer, which we find a very great help to us in our business."

GETTING THE HOUSECLEANING TRADE.

In this issue there are a number of articles bearing on a house-cleaning selling campaign during the next couple of months. The season is almost here when good business will be done by those dealers who make particular and specific efforts to get this trade.

To sell these goods get prospective buyers thinking and talking house cleaning. Create an atmosphere of Spring house cleaning about the store by advance showcards, prominent shelf and counter displays and by personal conversation whenever an opportunity affords itself. Make announcements early that you have all the necessary stock for cleaning the home; that you carry only reputable goods and that you can recommend them. When the actual purchasing time comes you will find not only your regular customers buying at your store but occasional purchasers who have caught the house cleaning fever from you or your clerks.

The articles and illustrations suggest selling talks and display pointers. See that all appropriate to your trade are utilized and improved on.

In this issue too are many advertisements on these goods. They contain splendid selling information which can be put into practice with good results. Somebody in every village, town and city is going to get the biggest share of this trade. Why not yourself?

THE PROFIT ON SOAP.

In November, 1910, manufacturers advanced soap prices chiefly at the request of the wholesale and retail trade. The old prices on most lines were $3.75 for 10 boxes and upwards, freight prepaid; $3.85 for 5 boxes and up to 10 with freight paid. The new prices brought in at that time were generally $4.15 for a single case and less than five; $4.15 for 5 boxes with freight prepaid and $4.05 for 10 boxes and upwards, freight paid.

Soap ingredients were then high in price and it was plain either quotations on soap would go up or size of the bar would be cut down. Retailers and wholesalers made strong representations to manufacturers to have the price raised so that the retail trade would be forced to abandon the old 6-for-a-quarter no-profit selling method.

The new prices brought down meant a profit of 17 per cent. on the selling price if soap were purchased at the $4.15 price and 19 per cent. if at $4.05, because no dealer could sell at less than 5 cents straight and make a profit over cost of doing business.

Again we have new prices on soap which practically insures the 6-for-a quarter retail price. On this basis many dealers at least will not reap as good profits. Actual profits according to the percentage of cases sold at the 6-for-a-quarter price may be seen calculated on another page of this issue.

The cause for any decline in profit is that many retailers, some large and others small, have not rested easily on getting the 17 or 19 per cent. gross margin on sales. They wanted to corner the soap trade by continuing to cut prices with the result that everybody is or probably will be soon competing with them on equal terms. This is one of the evils of price cutting which The Grocer has so frequently pointed out. Price cutters on staple lines may appear to be getting the trade but sooner or later they either go out of business, or someone does the same or goes them one better.

If under the new prices retailers have their profits reduced they have themselves, or some of their number, largely to blame. It is a deplorable condition of affairs when a man will sacrifice time, energy and profits simply to take a little trade away from a competitor for a short period of time.

Profits are small enough now in groceries. They should be improved, not curtailed. The dealer has the power to improve them if he will.

LACK KNOWLEDGE OF TRADE CONDITIONS.

Under the heading "Montreal Gets 1,000 Tubs of Butter from New Zealand," an Ontario daily paper recently published a despatch from Montreal intimating that the butter market would drop suddenly as soon as this made its appearance. The despatch which is exceedingly interesting on account of the unreliability of so many statements, is here printed in full:—

> The price of butter in Montreal will go down with a bang in Montreal to-morrow on account of the receipt to-day by a large wholesale firm of one thousand tubs of butter from New Zealand, which will sell at ten cents a pound cheaper than Canadian butter. Further importations are promised if this experiment is a success.
> The importation of this commodity marks an innovation in Canadian methods of combating high local prices, and the great distance which the present consignment is brought indicates that the possibilities of a large business in this way are unlimited. The experiment is being watched with the greatest interest in this city, and it is quite probable that in the near future New Zealand will provide Canadians with a more varied list of commodities at prices below those demanded in this country by producers.

The Grocer stated in its issue of three weeks ago that New Zealand butter was on its way to Canada. It arrived in Montreal all right, and in this particular the despatch was correct. But butter did not go down with a bang. A thousand tubs of butter on a bare Canadian market is only a drop in the bucket and did not affect the market any more than the extra 150,000 tons of sugar the Sugar Conference allowed Russia to export affected the New York sugar market.

Neither did the butter sell at 10 cents cheaper, nor in fact any cheaper. The New Zealand butter was fresh, green grass make, while some at least of ours was storage stock. It had the result of easing the market slightly for the time being.

The third error was that the importation was an innovation. Canada has, of course, called upon New Zealand for supplies many a time in the past. British Columbia imports it quite regularly.

That there could be a large business done in this butter is probably true—at times. British Columbia, as stated above imports considerable from time to time and Eastern Canada when it needs it. The distance, however, is great, and the chances of loss by a declining market while in transit would also act as a serious obstacle except at times like the present when the conditions are peculiar. The possibilities of importing United States butter at a lower price even after the duty of 4 cents is paid would also have to be considered.

Daily newspaper reports on markets and trade conditions should sometimes be taken with a grain of salt.

USE OF NEW GOODS COMMITTEE.

British Columbia grocers have taken an advanced step in their endeavor to sell only those goods which have merit as regards quality, necessity and margin of profit.

As will be noticed in report of the annual meeting of the Victoria Retail Grocers' Exchange, this organization has appointed a "New Goods Committee" for such a purpose. The idea is that when a salesman attempts to place a new article on the market, he is advised to see the members of the committee. These men go thoroughly into the proposition. Cost, selling price and margin of profit are, of course, the most important. If the retail trade has to distribute the article to the consumer, they maintain they are entitled to a fair commission for their work.

The question of quality and need of the article is also discussed, and when it passes muster with the "New Goods Committee" it has a certificate of honor which very much assists in getting it on the dealers' shelves. If the O.K. does not go on, the salesman has a difficult time explaining to those grocers who are members of the association.

The one thing this committee does which is most commendable—it insures a fair margin of profit. If an article does not bear its fair share of profit, the dealer who gets behind it gives his close attention to it, displays and recommends it, is not a man for the grocery business.

PREVENTING FRAUD OCCURRENCES.

A Vancouver wholesale butter and egg firm was the victim of a clever swindle recently, and one which emphasizes the importance of giving close attention to the receipt and sending out of orders.

The method adopted for obtaining free produce was this. Giving the name of J. L. McTaggart, a Vancouver retail grocer, he telephoned the wholesale house to put some goods on the curb for him and he would call for them. He got them all right, and signed for them. More than $175 worth of butter and eggs was obtained in this manner.

He was arrested, pleaded guilty, but was allowed to go on suspended sentence on account of having a sick wife to care for.

The Grocer has come across many similar thefts. A reader tells of a charcoal deliverer who got stuck on a muddy street some time ago and couldn't get out. He phoned the office, and an official was sent to relieve the situation. The charcoal was unloaded and it was found there were 56 bags more than was charged against the deliveryman.

If all such cases could be known, we venture to say the list would be a lengthy one. While in some cases it would at first be almost impossible to detect these inconsistencies, yet a strict system would serve to prevent many.

PREPARE FOR FLY SEASON.

In spite of the severe storms that have recently visited us, the sun is daily getting stronger. Some of these days spring will be here and before it is on the wane, we will have the troublesome housefly for another season.

Dealers should bear in mind that the crusades against this pest are awakening more and more interest every year. Medical health officers are strongly urging the people to "Swat the fly," and doctors are telling of the dangers it is liable to bring with it.

All of this means that the dealer should be prepared when the season arrives. Stocks of fly poison, sticking paper and other catchers should be planned for early. Have it in readiness when the time comes and let the people know early you are prepared.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Now is the time to sell fish. Lent is passing rapidly.

Every retail grocer interested in proposal to form an Ontario Retail Grocers' Association should lend his aid at once.

The United States "sugar trust" investigating committee reports to the government that a sugar trust exists. The courts will, no doubt, soon be full of sugar talk.

If it be true that the English Co-operative Societies were largely established because the people wanted pure foods, then Canadian retail grocers should take the hint and prevent them from becoming established in this country.

In Vancouver and Victoria, B.C., the Retail Grocers' Association have committees to investigate the merits of new goods being placed on the market. When the O. K. goes on retailers are assured of quality, necessity for and profit.

The severe snow storms of the past ten days or more blocked country roads and kept farmers from marketing eggs. This prevented any noticeable decline. Thus does the weather man show his authority over the character of our breakfasts.

It is estimated that the sugar, from the bottom of tea and coffee cups which finds its way down the sinks of Canadian residences amounts to a good many thousand pounds in a year. This may have something to do with the cost of living.

No doubt many grocers have good window photographs which would reproduce well in The Grocer. We are desirous of getting as many of these as possible. We want as many good pictures as we can get of windows dressed by dealers or their clerks. It costs you nothing to have them reproduced.

An Analysis of a Year-End Statement

Dealer Should be Certain to Include Everything in Expenses —Then Add Something on for Good Measure—Charge Your Own Supplies at Regular Prices.

By Henry Johnson, Jr.

For six or seven years I have reviewed this merchant's statements. I think he is naturally a pretty good calculator and only his innate modesty leads him to give me any credit. I like his continued confidence, however. Here is his latest letter:—

Jan. 13, 1912.

Henry Johnson, Jr., Canadian Grocer.

Dear Sir,—I will enclose on a separate sheet some figures from the results of my business last year. Do as you please about publishing them, and say what you please; but do not use my name.

I take a great deal of interest in your department, and am sure that I get a great deal of good out of it.

If you are actually in the business now, I would like to know where it is.

I noticed in the big stores in Blank, a few days ago, that a large proportion of their goods was exposed to dust and fingers; how do they get around the pure food law?

Yours very truly,
M——F——H——.

The Women Buy Them.

Concerning exposed goods, have you not noticed that goods which can not only be seen but sampled and handled always sell the more freely? I find it so. Women will talk a lot with their mouths about purity, cleanliness, sanitation, etc., but I observe that those same women will buy liberally and regularly figs, prunes, rice, etc., which are exposed; and not only those goods which subsequent cooking will sterilize, but cakes and cookies will fare the same way. I do not know the regulations of the city of Blank; but perhaps it is a sort of law unto itself, as so many other cities are.

Some Instructive Points.

The first three sets of figures, Stock last inventory, Fixtures at that time, and Goods purchased with transportation on same, are useful to me now only as they indicate probable total investment. I cannot use them to better advantage until I have this year's figures for comparison. But a few interesting and instructive things can be gleaned from what we have.

First, let us add a few things to the expenses listed above:

Amount brought down...	$2,185.60
Proprietor's salary	900.00
His groceries, probably...	200.00
Total Furt. & Fixt., this new stuff added to last year's 10 p.c. depreciation, ($1,542.26)	154.23
Figuring $6,000 total investment, 6 per cent., thereon...	360.00
Gives us a total of	$3,799.83

For the sake of easy figuring, let us say his sales were $30,000. Then we find that total expenses, as above fully listed, work out a ratio of 12.66 2-3 per cent., which is surely very good. Still, we shall probably find that we need all this and then some, for there are various "little things," of which we have no account. There is 20 per cent. depreciation on horses, wagons and harness, for instance; and then I am inclined to think he has more of an investment than $6,000. So, just for safety's sake, for good measure, let us add 1.34 per cent., or $402 more, and then we shall have 14 per cent. All over that $4,2[illegible] is probably net, clean margin-velvet, or true PROFIT.

M—F—H, should have 3 per cent. to 5 per cent., or $900 to $1,500 of such net profit to show on last year's business; but only he and his actual inventory figures can say whether he has it or not. But I am reasonably sure of one thing; that is, that he will not be able to lop off very much of that $4,200 expense account which I have charged up against him if he is perfectly frank and fair with himself.

Check up Family Groceries.

This year let him start up a new good habit. Let him charge to himself everything he takes home. He undoubtedly reasons that he takes a good many things which he would not take if he had to pay full value for them, but takes them to save them, etc. If there is a ½-lb. of mushrooms left over on Saturday night, for instance, he takes those home, though he would never buy mushrooms for his household. No matter about that. Fix a fairly equitable price on everything of that character you take home and pass the charge through in the regular way. Things which are not spoiling are to be charged up at full retail prices. This method will make for clean accounting when next period inventory rolls around.

I have been much interested in reading Mr. Carson's articles on The Management of a Retail Business. Most of what he says is good stuff—very sound, clear and instructive. His article on Discounts is to my mind, however, wrong on facts.

The Discount Not Granted.

The first error is in indicating that a man can get 2 per cent. discount on all his grocery purchases. The fact is, first, that much the larger proportion of goods subject to any discount whatever, in the grocery line carries only 1 per cent. for cash, as the time limit is 30 days. Moreover, the time is being curtailed steadily, so that to-day many goods are billed 30 days and some 10 days which formerly were sold on 60 days' time. Second, the grocer can get no cash discounts on fruits, vegetables, butter and eggs; also kerosene and gasoline. Here, too, the lines are tightening all the time. I cannot give statistics, but I should estimate that 25 per cent. of the grocers' stock must nowadays be bought on a net cash basis; another 50 per cent. will not yield more than 1 per cent. discount for ten-day cash. This leaves only 25 per cent. of the total to yield 2 per cent. discount.

Business on Borrowed Capital.

But this is not the worst of it. Every man should be impressed with the value of discounts from every standpoint; and Mr. Carson has admirably brought out these considerations. It is my experience, however, that there is only a theoretical advantage, generally speaking, in borrowing to take discounts. The man who does that is more than liable to find himself doing business on borrowed capital. He will become easy-going with his outstanding accounts and liberal in his purchases. The possible benefit will be completely lost in the much more probable evils of the plan.

I have witnessed very closely the evils of doing business on others' capital; and I want none of it in mine. I have worked out into the daylight of taking all discounts, so I know, too, how that feels. But the work of digging out, of saving, of refraining from buying what our own money will not promptly pay for—those are the things of value and truly worth while.

Advance in English Food Legislation

The Nucleus and How It Evolved Into Present Food Laws—The Many Errors Made From Time to Time and Amendments Necessary to Overcome Them—United States Law to be Discussed in Next Article.

* By W. S. Greening.

One day in the year 1850, a London physician happened casually to examine a specimen of ground coffee with a microscope. Perhaps no one with great intelligence had chanced to do this before; perhaps if it had been done the investigator was not of a curious turn of mind. What this physician found when he examined the particles through the lens, was of such an absorbing and interesting nature that he wrote down the results and the paper was read before a Scientific Society in London.

The "Times" and the "Lancet" then took the matter up. The latter began to make a collection of foods for sale in London, examine them, and if they found evidence of adulteration, published the names of the manufacturers. This created a great sensation and the matter was brought to the attention of the House of Commons who appointed a Select committee in 1855. As a result of their investigations an act entitled "The Adulteration of Food and Drinks Act" was passed in 1860.

Beginning of the Exposure.

The physician's name was Arthur Hassell. He had discovered with his microscope a new principle in food analysis,—a method by which adulteration could be detected by observing the differences in structure between a pure article and an adulterant. His discovery caused the exposure of food adulteration for all time.

One can see how great was the need of such an investigation, when it was found that alum was almost universally used in bread, red lead and coloring found in cayenne pepper, chicory and peas in coffee, and worst of all, great quantities of poisonous colors in confectionery.

With commendable fearlessness the "Lancet" exposed manufacturers both great and small, who were deluding the public with impure foodstuffs, giving first their addresses, and if no admentment was made at the expiration of three months they published their names. Such an outcry ensued, Parliament was forced to take the matter up, and appointed a special committe before whom Dr. Hassell appeared to give evidence. The report of his findings is published in his book on Food Adulteration, which is the first standard book on this subject.

Some of the testimony was striking; notably that of Mr. Blackwell of the famous firm of Cross & Blackwell. He stated that it was a general custom in the trade to boil pickles and vegetables many times in copper kettles in order to impart a green hue to the finished product, but as a result of the "Lancet's" investigations his firm has discontinued the practice. This is a splendid example of the good results of publicity even unaided by legislation.

Early Legislation Incomplete.

The Act of 1860 which resulted, had nearly every possible defect. The onus was laid on the retailer as the actual seller of the adulterated article. The penalty was placed at $25, no inspectors were appointed, no standards named, and no analysts provided. There was merely a general definition of adulteration with no machinery provided to enforce even the clearest and most flagrant offence. How the framers of the Act expected it to bring results is a mystery. It is certain it was a complete failure and remained a dead letter until 1872 when it was superseded by a new Act entitled "The Adulteration of Food and Drugs Act."

This time the penalty was increased $250—a move of doubtful value as the onus was still left on the retail merchant. Inspectors were appointed to collect samples and bring actions against offenders. The question of public analysts was left optional to each municipality. The definition as to what constituted an offence under the Act was left beautifully vague. This time there was some effort to bring offenders to book. but with little success. Without standards it was very difficult for the inspectors to get a conviction.

Another serious drawback was the lack of skill on the part of the chemical experts who belied their name by being unable to swear to the accuracy of their findings when called into Court to give evidence. To overcome this, a Society of Public Analysts was formed in 1874, and this Society began, crudely to be sure, to make a set of standards covering butter, milk, cocoa, vinegar, etc.

When Compounds Were Allowed.

It was evident that the law on the subject was anything but satisfactory, and once again Parliament took the matter in hand. In 1875 a law was passed which still remains on the Statute Books although it has been repeatedly amended. A really good definition of an offence was inserted; inspectors and analysts were appointed. The enforcement was left in the hands of local authorities, but with an appeal to Somerset House. A new feature was the proviso that mixtures of harmless foods such as cocoa and arrowroot could be offered for sale if labelled "mixture" or "compound." It really seemed a good law and likely to be effective, but it took the cuteness and proverbial "canniness" of the Scotch legal mind to ingeniously evade this law by a clever argument.

The law stated that "no person shall sell to the prejudice of the purchaser any article of food or any drug which is not of the nature, substance and quality of the article demanded by the purchaser." To have a clearer understanding of this, substitute the word "harm" for "prejudice." It was argued that when an inspector purchased a sample he did not himself eat it but took it to an analyst. The inspector was not harmed as he did not actually consume the food, therefore the offence was not complete, without it being to the prejudice (or harm of the purchaser. The hard-headed Scotch judges of Edinburgh declared that the offence on this account could be "brought home to no one." We can easily see that a judgment of this sort rendered in one case, quickly blocked the course of justice in succeeding cases of inspectors who had purchased samples.

Onus Off Retailer.

It was evident the Act had to be amended before it could be effective, and this was done in 1879. The "prejudice" question was settled by a change in definition. Some standards were introduced for the first time in any legislation, and most important of all, the onus was shifted from the retailer to the manufacturer or wholesale dealer, if the former could produce a warranty that he had bought the goods he was offering for sale, had been sold to him as pure. With these changes the law worked very well on the whole, but minor difficulties arose from time to time which had to be settled by amendments or judicial decisions.

* Mr. Greening, the author of this important series, is vice-president of the Pure Gold Manufacturing Co. He will go into the question fully, explaining in future articles the scope of the United States and other pure food laws.

One of these was the curious decision that the Act did not apply to Baking Powder as it was neither a food or a drug. This had to be amended by the total prohibition of alum in food. Another was the abuse of the word "compound" in the case of chicory in coffee. A sample was found containing 40 per cent. chicory but as it was labelled "compound" the defendant claimed he had not infringed the law. The Court held that amount of chicory was excessive and fined the offender.

A special Act had to be passed in 1887 to regulate the margarine trade.

Adulteration Was Disappearing.

It was not until 1894 that Parliament appointed another Select committee. Their report was on the whole gratifying. They found that the Act had worked well and that most of the forms of adulteration which had flourished prior to 1875 had disappeared. Conditions had steadily improved as was shown by the ratio of adulterated samples to the total number collected, having fallen from 16 per cent. to 8 per cent. They recommended, however, that the onus be placed more on the manufacturer than before; that the fines be made much heavier; that imports be more closely inspected and impure goods refused entry, and that steps be taken to fix a complete set of standards of purity and that these be incorporated in the Act.

These recommendations were incorporated in another Food and Drugs Act of 1899. Unfortunately, this new Act did not supersede the previous legislation but merely attempted to remedy existing defects, so we have the curious spectacle of five acts on the same subject, all in force at the same time. That the result is at all satisfactory speaks volumes for the fairness and justice of the English law courts.

Wise Plan to Enforce Law.

To supplement the work of the local authorities a permanent committee with the rather picturesque title of a "Roving Commission" was appointed to travel over the whole country and see that the law was enforced. The expense was borne by the local authorities—a wise provision, as it made each municipality anxious to avoid the expense of entertaining this Commission; by enforcing the law on their own account.

In the next year came the famous arsenic poisoning case in the Midlands. Over 6,000 people were affected and there were many deaths. After some investigation the beer from two breweries was found to contain a large percentage of arsenic. The matter caused a tremendous sensation and a Royal Commission headed by Lord Kelvin, was appointed to look into the whole matter.

They reported the brewers to be entirely innocent, the arsenic being the result of the sulphuric acid used in the bleaching of the malting sugar. This acid had been supplied to the brewers by a firm who were not aware of the purpose for which it was intended. The whole matter was the result of ignorance and does not properly come under the scope of this article, but the results are important. The whole question of preservatives in food was investigated, with the result that formaldehyde was prohibited. Salicylic acid and boric acid were allowed in small quantities, the amount being definitely restricted.

Court to Change Standard.

It will be seen from the above that Great Britain has gone a long way towards the solution of her difficulties, but the machinery for enforcement of the various Acts is still rather crude. It is generally agreed by writers on the subject, that the most crying need is a permanent High Court of Appeal, something along the lines of an Admiralty Court, vested with the ultimate decision on all matters in connection with food legislation. This court should also have power to fix and change standards if necessary.

There is no question that fraud and adulteration are decreasing in Great Britain, but the whole credit for this must not be claimed by the authorities. The rise of the Co-operative Societies—one of the most remarkable phenomena of the last half century—has helped because there is no incentive for them to sell any but the best and purest goods.

This is a point which should have the serious consideration of the retail merchants in Canada. One of the most potent factors in the success of the Co-operative stores was the fact that before they were started adulteration was so common in Great Britain that thousands of people joined on the plea of pure food alone.

Then England is a great exporting country and export business has to be built on the foundation of purity and quality, so the great firms could not afford to make impure goods at all—even for the home market.

Finally, in England the retailer has a further protection under the common law—a suit for damages against the manufacturer or wholesaler who sells him impure goods.

How Retailer is Protected.

The principal points to be remembered are: Firstly, that the enforcement of the Acts is in the hands of local authorities in England. Secondly, the onus is on the actual seller of the goods; e.g., the retailer. Thirdly, convictions are easy to obtain under the Act, so that the retailer need not be deterred by law costs in defending his rights; and lastly, the practice of obtaining a warrant of purity from the manufacturer is universal and affords perfect protection for the retail merchant.

In my next paper I will deal with food legislation in the United States.

A Judge for Commercial Cases Only

Suggestion Made by Speaker at Last Meeting of Ontario Division Canadian Credit Men's Association in Toronto—Portion of Talk on Commercial Law—Assignment Act and How It Used to Work Out.

By A. G. McMaster.

Not so many years ago it was quite customary for wholesale merchants and manufacturers to act in a manner almost hostile towards each other, and the moment a retail merchant appeared to be in difficulty it was the custom for an individual creditor to endeavor to get security or persuade the debtor to sell out and pay that creditor in full or otherwise to procure in some manner an advantage over the other creditors.

To this end lawyers with a good knowledge of the Assignment Act and Insolvency Law, made many hurried trips about the country and devised many curious means of getting around the provisions of the statute for the prevention of preferences, a statute which the creditors should have realized, as no doubt they now do more and more realize, that they, as merchants ought to be the last to endeavor to circumvent, and which they ought to seek to make more and more effective and stringent.

The Old Method.

Many of these devices were ingenious and curious and from time to time were met by amendments to the Assignment Act. For instance, there was so-called common law assignment—a favored creditor got speedy judgment and execution and then the debtor would be induced to make an assignment leaving out some of his assets so as to make it an assignment under old common law and so as not to come under the act respecting general assignments for the benefit of creditors. Thereupon the assignee would proceed to sell the assets only to find that he must pay off the execution creditor before he could make title.

Another favorite act to be evaded was the "Chattel Mortgage Act." It provides, as you know, that all mortgages of chattels where immediate delivery of possession is not made, shall be registered. The court in a desire to do justice in a particular case where everything was honest and above board and where the enforcement of the act no doubt seemed a hardship, held that a man who had bought a half interest in a horse did not require to register his bill of sale because the court said that since under the act one had the alternative of either delivering possession or registering a bill of sale, it must apply only to cases where delivery of possession could be made and you could not very well deliver possession of half an animal.

Wanted to Avoid Publicity.

That seemed fair enough in the particular instance, but the decision had not been long on the books until a gentleman of the bar was asked to draw for a wholesale house a chattel mortgage on a debtor's stock, and was asked to avoid the publicity of registration. He, therefore, decided not to take a mortgage on the debtor's entire interest in the stock, but to take it on nineteen-twentieths, or something of that sort, and then claimed that it was unnecessary in view of the decision above referred to, to register the mortgage.

You will see from these two cases how a very innocent decision intended by the court to do justice in particular instances may end by doing a great deal of harm and in spoiling altogether the effect of preventive legislation. It is this tendency of human nature not to enforce a statute too strictly in particular instances where it seemed a hardship to do so which has made our Assignment Act in so far as it attempts to put a stop to preferences much more inefficient and useless statute than it should be. It has led to the ridiculous construction which holds that when an Act of Parliament says a transaction shall be void, it only means voidable.

Protection From Assignee.

Every assignee, too, under the Assignment Act should give security, and the assets of the estate should not vest in the assignee or at all events he should not be able to deal with them or make title to them until he gave such security. In many cases people act as assignee who have no financial standing at all.

Another spot for improvement would be the provisions as to preferences under the Assignment Act. There has been a great deal of litigation over these provisions and a good deal of money wasted trying to upset fraudulent securities.

Had the Act been construed strictly by the courts it would have been useful but owing to the tendency to help people out in particular instances that I have mentioned, or owing to some peculiar frame of mind, which leads the judge to dislike to find a transaction fraudulent where it is not morally wrong but only forbidden by statutes, the act has been continually cut down in its effect.

Judge for Commercial Cases Only.

Evidently a time has come when mercantile creditors are no longer seeking preferences over each other, and the people who are now getting or attempting to get preferences are principally relatives and friends of the insolvent, sometimes on claims not too well established and not too honestly made, and within thirty days of an assignment. I think securities for such claims should be cut off absolutely whether they are honest or dishonest and without leaving the court any discretion. I emphasize the necessity of taking away from the courts all discretion in that connection. There is one thing which since it is impossible to get a bankruptcy act and a bankruptcy court would assist considerably in this province, and that would be a judge sitting continuously to try commercial cases, and if possible a commercial court. It is said some new judges are about to be appointed and if instead of a politician they would give us a man with some knowledge of mercantile business to deal exclusively, quickly and expeditiously with mercantile cases it would be worth thousands of dollars. This is not a novel idea; they have it elsewhere and we should have it here for the advantage of particular interests of various kinds.

PROGRESS OF ONTARIO GROCERS' ORGANIZATION

Request Made of Secretaries and Presidents of All Town and City Associations to Get in Touch with W. C. Miller, Toronto —London Grocers Working Hard.

Toronto, Feb. 29.—(Special).—Negotiations are still going on among different retail grocers associations concerning a provincial organization.

W. C. Miller, past president of the Toronto association, and who is a member of the local committee on this question, has received a number of letters, among them an encouraging one from James McKenzie, secretary of the London association. The Londoners are working strongly for the Ontario organization. They are anxious to adjust such matters as the Scale Inspection Act, the garnishee law, to have more power to confer with wholesale grocers and manufacturers re trade questions in which their interests are bound, and to watch more closely co-operative store legislation.

Mr. McKenzie pointed to statements made by certain manufacturers to the effect that the retailers would be forced to handle their goods.

"We want to show them," he intimates, "that we retailers can and will sell those goods that we want to sell—the goods of the manufacturer who co-operates with us."

The project of forming a provincial association is therefore going merrily on. W. C. Miller, whose address is 632 Yonge street, Toronto, wants to get in touch with the secretaries or presidents of associations in Ottawa, Hamilton, Guelph, Brantford, Galt, Sarnia, Windsor, Chatham and any other town or city where there is an organization. When he has heard from these the question of convening and going into the plans of organizing will be taken up.

All retailers interested in the proposal are requested to communicate with him at once.

UNIQUE AD. ON BANANAS.

The cheapest of pure and nutritious foods. Put up and sealed by nature in a dust and germ proof package.

J. H. Bogart, one of the veteran grocers of Chatham, Ont., has sold his business to E. R. Kiddicott, of London, who is now in possession. Mr. Bogart has been in business at the present Queen St. stand for some 30 years, and prior to that for six years on King St. He is taking a position with the new proprietor.

A project which may have an effect upon the bean situation in Western Ontario, is under way. The Lambton Bean Elevator Co. is being organized, with leading farmers as stockholders, the purpose being to build a modern elevator at Petrolea, Ont., and equip it with machinery for handling beans. The provisional directors are Edward Hyatt, Horatio Porter and Wm. Kells.

Harold M. Scott & Co., have bought the Maple Leaf Grocery from W. J. Wilkins, Tillsonburg, Ont.

QUEBEC MARKETS.

POINTERS—

Prunes.—Firmer market.

Evaps.—Steady.

Sugar.—Waiting market.

Montreal, Que, Feb. 29.—Business is gradually assuming larger proportions as the winter wanes. A big obstacle during the past couple of weeks has been the severe snow storms which in many cases have tied up the country roads, preventing country people making their usual trips for groceries and provisions. Collections are reported fairly good and business generally fair.

There is little commotion in many of the grocery markets. Sugar remains firm and prunes this week show a slight advance. Evaps are firm as are also beans.

SUGAR.—It is a hold-off market in sugar. Cuba crop developments are of much importance. More favorable conditions there would have the effect of weakening speculators' ideas. Unfavorable conditions would have a contrary effect. The volume of demand is also a factor in the market.

DRIED FRUITS.—The prune market is strengthening somewhat, wholesalers quoting prunes about 10 per cent. higher than old quotations. Evaporated apple market cannot be expected to go lower this season, while raisins also present a strong front. While the currant market has been easier it is only a temporary characteristic. Primary situation denotes future strength.

CANNED GOODS.

TORONTO.—Different jobbers have different reports to make in regard to movement of canned goods. There are those who note an improvement, while others state that it is a little early yet for any big demand. Some retailers who did not purchase heavily last fall are finding it necessary to replenish stocks of some lines.

One thing is true and that is, retail trade are finding an appreciable demand for canned goods. Canned fish are doing well on account of Lenten demand. High prices for salmon is causing a larger demand than usual for ½s. Scarcity of vegetables is helping the sale of the canned article.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

POINTERS—

Evaps.—Higher.

Dates.—Firmer.

Beans.—Stronger.

Matches.—One firm reduces prices.

Paper.—Rumor of increased discount.

Toronto, Feb. 29.—The wholesale grocery trade has experienced somewhat dull period during past week or so. This lull in business is due mostly to recent heavy snow storms throughout the province. With streets heavy with snow and country roads badly blockaded, the consumer is more inclined to toast his toes before the fireside than to brave the elements in an endeavor to pay the merchant a visit. The retailer's trade has therefore suffered and accordingly that of jobber. Country travelers have also been held up by heavy storms, and have been unable to cover their routes on schedule time. Complaints are heard this week from wholesalers in regard to slowness of deliveries. Snow blockade of trains is partly responsible while transportation facilities here are still said to be inadequate.

Sugar market is awaiting further developments in Cuban crop situation.

The new sugar package costs retailer 30c per cwt. more than best refined. That is, each package costs 1½c more than the same amount in 100 lb. bags. There is no set selling price for it. Local brokers are now booking Barbadoes raw sugar, some of which is now on the way. Opening price was slightly over 1 cent per pound above last year's opening figure.

One Canadian manufacturer has announced lower prices on number of brands of matches. The decrease in price is 10 to 15 cents per case.

There are rumors this week of increase in discounts on paper and paper bags. No definite announcement has been made, but there has however been some talk of allowing larger discount to the trade.

SUGAR.—Sugar market is a waiting one. At present it is steady and depends largely on outcome of Cuban crop. This crop so far has been turning out rather poorly and if it does not improve it will have the tendency of firming market as crop estimates are reduced. Any close estimate of the final outturn would be more or less guesswork, however, for better weather from now on might put different complexion on final yield, so that caution is as yet necessary in reducing estimates. Further heavy demand from refiners would probably have a stimulating effect on raw market.

DRIED FRUITS.—Firmness in evaporated apples and probability of higher market was pointed out last week. The strength is beginning to make itself felt in shape of quotable change, 10½ to 11½ cents being asked this week. Stocks continue to get into smaller compass. In contrast to the Canadian market, values across the border have been on the decline, but prices are not low enough to allow of importations, the duty being 25 per cent.

It has been pointed out before that supplies of dates here were not large. Indeed some firms report next thing to a clean up in half boxes of Hallowes, while full boxes are getting into small compass and firming in price, up to 6 cents being asked now. Package dates are quoted at 7 cents.

The general tone of dried fruits is one of steadiness.

TEA.—"It will be a day or two," commented a tea broker this week, "before we see good common tea go abegging at 4½d as it did a few years ago." Indeed, the day of cheap tea is apparently past, for a number of years at least. It is now next to impossible to get a tea to retail at 25 cents that gives a shadow of a profit.

The general tea market holds up well. All primary markets are steady in tone.

COFFEE.—Features of special importance to retail trade in coffee are lacking. New York reports some improvement in movement of spot coffees. Demand from the retail trade on local market appears to be on a fair scale. In face of fact that law of supply and demand does not appear to be governing the world's coffee situation, local wholesalers are not loading up with supplies.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

St. John, N.B., Feb. 27.—The feature of interest in local market during past week, or in fact for several weeks, has been the steady strength of sugar. Local wholesalers look for an increase before long, while an advance was reported in New York refined stock of 10 cents last week.

For more than a fortnight wheat market in Chicago has been on the decline, and it is here considered that with a scarcity of good milling wheat in Canada the prices may change for an advance almost any time now. The market is reported in a nervous condition. As regards beans, both yellow eyes and hand picked, practically a record price is being quoted, with the former noted at a slight advance over the h.p.

A goodly number of orders are now being received by local dealers for seed, especially in timothy and clover. In the primary markets alsike clover is quoted as having advanced over $2 per 100 pounds and red and mammoth are also higher. Indications are that the run on seed will be quite heavy and wholesalers are advising customers of advantage in making an early purchase for the market is surely going higher even than at present.

Orders are being taken on the canned goods pack of 1912 and once again the advice is "buy early." One firm is offering to its customers as an inducement to their making an early purchase a guarantee of delivery on all orders for new pack vegetables and fruits ordered before March 1 with concession of 2½ cents per dozen under the price listed on opening, and a further allowance of 2½ cents per dozen on all orders of 10 cases and upward.

Eggs and butter have not been so scarce for quite a while as during the last week. The former went up to 45 cents on Saturday and ranged during the week from 30 to 40 cents per dozen, while butter gained such strength as to bring 36 cents for the best stock, a remarkably high price for local butter. The average asked for butter of late has been 30 cents, but the market has gained much strength even in the last few days.

Cheese has also taken an upward tendency, and advanced from one-half to one cent per pound.

Potatoes are scarer than heretofore but no further increase from the $2.50 to $3 price is being asked. A quantity of Irish potatoes for Montreal, numbering more than 3,000 bags, were received here during the week but were so badly frozen in transportation in the old country as to be useless for human consumption.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, Feb. 29.—Grocery dealers are now devoting considerable attention to butter and potato markets. Local dealers who have disposed of most of their stock at good prices are now looking around for more potatoes to carry them over until arrival of new stock. Quotations on Irish potatoes have been received here, and also some samples of the stock offered. These potatoes are large and of fine quality, and they can be landed here at fairly low prices. Nova Scotia potatoes are now selling at $2.25 per bag, which is 75 cents per bushel.

With regard to the butter situation there is not much change. Receipts of local stock is only fair, but the threatened shortage has been relieved by importations.

The flour market is a little easier. Shipments now are comparatively light, with exception of some orders for lumber camps. Lard is in good demand, and price is firm.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Editor Canadian Grocer.—Quite frequently lately I have received along with my invoices little circulars from the Manufacturers Association urging us to purchase home-made goods.

The last was a quotation from one of Abraham Lincoln's speeches to the effect that he did not know much about tariffs, but he did know that when we bought goods abroad the foreigner got the money and we got the goods, but when we bought at home we got both the goods and the money. Now, the other day, when inquiring the cause for the sharp advance in mill feeds, I was told that they were being sent to the United States where they are paying all sorts of fancy prices for them. Now the question occurred to me, what kind of an arrangement is this the manufacturers want? Are we to confine our purchases to Canada when in many cases we can buy cheaper elsewhere, and the manufacturer is to be permitted to sell his product wherever he can get the highest price?

In other words, if it is fair for him to send his goods abroad where they will bring more money than they will at home, is it not as fair for us to send our money abroad whenever it will purchase more goods than it will at home?

BUTTER AND EGG DEALERS.

Editor Canadian Grocer.—Please give me the names of two or three butter and egg dealers where I could buy butter in solids to sell out by the pound for table use, as I want to get something which would be cheaper than pound prints.

Burlington, Ont. Grocer.

Editorial note.—Among these are Gunns Ltd., White & Co., Wm. Ryan & Co., The J. A. McLean Produce Co., Fox Provision Co., all of Front Street East, Toronto, and The Swift Canadian Co., West Toronto.

Quite a Shortage of Milling Oats

Due to Freight Congestion—Unless Deliveries Improve it is Feared Some Mills May Have to Close Down Altogether—Feed is scarce and on the Ascent—County Dealers Buy Flour to Get Feed—Export Flour Trade Quiet.

The domestic movement of flour might be described as fairly free. However some mills note a temporary lull in trade. They point out that the retail trade is quite well supplied for present needs. One reason why many country dealers are carrying good stocks is that they have bought flour in order to get feed which is scarce and which mills in many cases refuse to sell unless a certain percentage of flour is purchased.

Export business in flour is quiet, in fact some dealers note it extremely dull. On account of scarcity of winter wheat, winter wheat flour is high, being above level that would attract European business. Australian flour appears to be offering strong competition against Ontario on European markets.

Cereals show a fair consumptive demand. Rolled oats are steady to firm. Not alone is the raw material holding a steady position, but there is quite a shortage in milling oats at the mills due to the non-arrival on account of freight congestion. Millers state that if the deliveries are not any better during the next couple of weeks than they have been of late, they fear some of the mills will have to be closed down altogether.

Feed of all kinds continues extremely scarce with prices gradually on the ascent. Mills sending out prices hold them good for only a short time. Bran and shorts showed marked scarcity and during February alone prices have in some instances advanced as much as $3 per ton.

Conditions are not working for any improvement in freight congestion. The heavy snow storms of late in many parts of Canada have further increased the difficulty. Both finished product and raw material are being held up.

TORONTO.

FLOUR.—On the whole there appears to be fair domestic trade in flour for the season. Some millers, however, note a tinge of quietness and state that the trade is pretty well stocked up for present. Export enquiry is quiet, and in Ontario flours, bids are considerably out of line at present. Australian flour is offering strong opposition to Ontario on European markets.

Situation in Ontario wheat is apparently a little easier, due to freer deliveries. Around $4 is the price for straight roller winter wheat flour.

CEREALS.—"There is at least no easiness in the market," was the way miller referred to rolled oats. Some mills fear they may have to shut down for lack of raw material.

CEREAL CO. EXPANDING.

Winnipeg, Feb. 29.—The Dow Cereal & Milling Co., which was recently burned out at Pilot Mound, Man., have purchased a large mill and elevator and considerable additional property at Neepawa, Man., and will continue to manufacture granulated and standard oat meal at their new premises. The mill has a capacity of 700 bbls., with storage room for 6,000 sacks, and the elevator capacity is 75,000 bushels. Neepawa lies west and south of Winnipeg, a distance of 150 miles. Nicholson & Bain, wholesale commission merchants and brokers, own one-half of the interest in this company.

WEIGHT OF PECK OF APPLES.

Regarding a standard weight for a peck of apples which was taken up in last week's issue, The Grocer can now definitely state that there is none. The question has been discussed with the Departments of Agriculture and Trade and Commerce at Ottawa and information gained that no such standard has been fixed.

WHAT GROCERS ARE SAYING IN THEIR ADS.

Peas.—They have a fine flavor and tenderness that appeal to the appetite.

Baked Beans.—Are appetizing as well as nutritious. Good hot or cold.

Pumpkin.—Unusually rich golden color with sweet, natural pumpkin flavor.

Canned Pineapple.—Has the full rich flavor of selected ripe pineapple.

Mincemeat.—Delicious. All of the ingredients and flavoring are the finest and purest obtainable.

Vegetable Diets Tax Purse Heavily

All Lines of Vegetables High in Price—Short Crops in Most Lines Last Year—Importation of Irish Potatoes Quiets Excited Market—Celery Scarce and Still Dear—Marmalade Oranges Drawing to an End.

"The vegetarian needs to have a good-sized salary these days," remarked a commission man this week. A glance over the vegetable prices show just how true this is and how heavily the family purse is taxed for vegetable diets as compared with other years. Last year's short crops combined with unfavorable growing weather in that part of the South on which we depend for green vegetables at this season are the principal causes of the high values.

The old staple, the potato, leads off the list at an extremely fancy figure. Last year's short crops is of course the cause of the high prices on this line. Values were making headlong strides upward for a time but with the importation of European potatoes, the market quieted down. Values are expected to hold steady, Holders of stocks in New Brunswick continue firm in their ideas.

Parsnips, beets and carrots are other lines which showed a short yield last year and which have been steadily firming up. Special mention needs also to be made of cabbage and onions, which are well to an end at many centres. In the face of the scarcity of home grown onions, valencias are selling freely at a firmer figure.

Celery is also scarce and high. Canadian stock has been finished for some time. Owing to unfavorable growing weather, offerings of California stock to date have been small and at high prices. Larger shipments are expected along in March. Some Florida celery that came to Canadian markets was only of fair quality.

Marmalade oranges will not last a great while longer. The last shipments for the season have arrived at most markets. The season started a little earlier than usual and the demand has been good, although prices were slightly higher than last year.

While Floridas are the best eating orange just now, the public continue to demand the seedless, being apparently unacquainted with the qualities of the Florida orange.

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUITS.— "Not moving," sums up the green fruit market for the week. The demand is seasonable, with steady prices for all varieties.

Florida grape fruit is much easier and will offer a decline during the week.

GREEN FRUITS.—There is a fairly active demand in green fruits for the season of the year. The heavy snow storms of late interfered somewhat with the shipment of goods.

Another supply of marmalade oranges has arrived and is moving out to the trade quite freely. They have sold well this year. The last shipment for the season has now arrived.

Navel and Florida oranges are in fair demand. Although Floridas are the best eating orange, the seedless seem to have secured such a hold on public favor that they are in greatest demand. Stocks of good apples are gradually being reduced.

VEGETABLES.—The firmness in parsnips was referred to last week. Up to $1.50 per bag is being asked by wholesalers this week. They are extremely scarce, and not only can they be expected to continue high but probably be unobtainable before many weeks have passed. A similar strong situation prevails in beets, carrots, cabbage and home grown onions. Valencia onions are also firmer and higher.

Potatoes are holding their position but the excitement has subsided. Considerable European potatoes have come to this market, settling the situation by supplying the demand. Holders in New Brunswick continue to hold firm ideas. The imported potatoes are being sold at about the same figure as Ontarios.

The Florida celery that came in last week was only fair in quality. Canadian stock has been exhausted for some time. California continues scarce.

Western Grain Storages are Advised

For Purpose of Storing Western Canadian Grain that Does Not Reach Lake Superior Ports Before Cold Weather—Long Hauls in Zero Weather Means Slow Progress on Part of Railways—Serious Situation Now Existing in View of Tough Grain Mixed With Ice.

Staff Correspondence.

Manitou, Man., Feb. 28.—The grain situation through the West appears to be a serious one. The fine weather is rapidly approaching and there are millions of bushels of grain yet in the country, very much of which is tough or mixed with ice. This, unless moved soon, will spoil when the weather gets milder, and to all appearances it will be impossible to handle it all, or nearly all, by that time. Some assert that if the railways supplied all the cars that could be loaded in the next six weeks they could not take out all the grain.

The last few days great quantities of grain have been going by southern routes to Duluth, but it is feared the relief has come too late to save many of the farmers from serious loss.

Railways Behind Development.

In reviewing the situation it is quite evident that the railways have not kept pace with the development of the country in their facilities for taking care of the rapidly increasing products. The situation this year is abnormally serious, but the question is often heard and is quite reasonable: What would it have been if all the land under cultivation last season had produced a normal crop? The product could not have been moved under existing circumstances for months yet.

Another question that is often heard out here and a very natural one is: What of the future? Those who have traveled over the great provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta and seen something of the millions of acres that have been broken last summer and fall by the traction plows and will be under crop next year can realize in some measure the seriousness of the question.

Great things are being done by the railways in adding rolling stock and motive power, but not in proportion to the increased acreage ready and that will be ready for crop this spring.

Outside Advice Freely Offered.

Many suggestions are being offered to meet the threatening situation, most of them by people who have little practical knowledge of the conditions. The railway magnates are advising the farmers to build granaries to take care of their crop till such times as it can be moved; or are advising them to go into mixed farming and cattle feeding, thus reducing the amount of grain to be carried east in the early season.

Both these propositions have their difficulties. Granaries may be all right if the grain is dry, but in seasons like the past where so much of the grain is tough, a granary is of little value as soon as the weather turns mild in the spring.

Mixed Farming Coming Slowly.

Mixed farming may be one of the remedies of the future, but there are many reasons, which are too long to discuss in this article, why it will not be largely adopted by western farmers in the near future. It will no doubt come, but it will be by the slow process of evolution.

There is one plan, the adoption of which would give great relief and could be made available in a very short time. Under present conditions all the grain is hauled to lake ports and after the season of navigation closes is stored in the terminal elevators at these points. It must be borne in mind that almost immediately after navigation closes the weather in this western country becomes severely cold. The effect of this is that the hauling capacity of the railways is materially reduced, even if there is little snow to impede the progress of the trains. This makes the transportation of grain over the long haul to the lake front a slow and tedious operation.

Storage at Western Points.

The remedy for this appears to be, not the building of increased storage capacity at Port Arthur and Fort William, but the erection of a large storage warehouse at Winnipeg or Brandon, and another at Regina, each of these with drying capacity for tough grain.

It may be urged in opposition to this scheme that there would be the increased expense of elevator handling, but this would be more than offset by the additional capacity of the rolling stock and motive power. It would be a comparatively easy matter for the railways to transport grain to those elevators, compared with what it now is to haul it hundreds of miles to the lake ports when the thermometer is below zero.

Take to Lake Ports in Spring.

This stored grain could then be hauled down to the head of navigation in the spring and summer when a locomotive could handle fifty or sixty loaded cars, while in zero weather one-third of that number is a heavy load and a long, slow and unprofitable undertaking. Such elevators as suggested above would be equally efficient and convenient if the grain went by the Hudson's Bay or the southern route.

If this method had been adopted and in operation now it would in all probability save the farmers of the West millions of dollars this season.—David Williams.

PROPOSED ST. JOHN REFINERY

Atlantic Sugar Refineries Looking Over the Merits of the Project.

St. John, N. B., Feb. 29—(Special)—Norman J. C. Mather, of the financial firm of Murray & Mather, Toronto, was a visitor to St. John last week, and his visit recalled the matter of proposed erection of a sugar refinery here. He said that his firm had made the financial arrangements with the Atlantic Sugar Refineries, Limited, the successors of F. C. Durant, and that he came here to determine the present status of the company's agreement with the city. Mr. Mather was informed that the city council had already voted unanimously against granting the successors of Mr. Durant the desired extension, and the matter of another site was suggested, and is now under consideration.

The Board of Trade Council held a meeting, but made no recommendation pending results of negoiiations for another site along the harbor front. The company, it is said, have had engineers in St. John recently, inspecting properties, and their reports have been favorable. Should satisfactory arrangements be made for the sugar refinery coming to St. John the council will be asked to grant the same terms conceded Mr. Durant with regard to taxation and water supply.

CALGARY CLERKS ORGANIZE.

Expect to Have Thursday Half Holiday Effective the Year Round.

Calgary, Alta., Feb. 28—(Special)—The clerks of Calgary have formed an association wth the following officers:—President, M. Wilson; Vice-President, Geo. S. McKenzie; Secretary-Treasurer, C. A. Washburn; Executive Committee, D. D. Campbell, G. A. Meikle, F. Bauntinheimer and Geo. S. Mackenzie. The committee has visited the Calgary merchants, and reports that they have agreed to close their stores every Thursday at 12.30 p.m., except in weeks in which a holiday occurs, this half holiday to begin the first Thursday in April.

For some time past the above has been in operation during the summer months, but the clerks expect now to make it a rule the year round.

Lenten Fish Trade Now in Full Swing

Sales Start Off Briskly—Weather Conditions in Some Parts of Country Unfavorable—Fish Must be Seen to be Sold—Should be Displayed Prominently—Scarcity puts Firm Tone on Several Lines.

The Lenten fish trade is off to a good start. The opening of the season on Wednesday of last week found a brisk retail demand which is expected to continue. In some sections adverse weather conditions interfered to some extent with trade. Heavy snow storms were responsible for delayed shipments, while blockaded roads in the country prevented customers from getting out to purchase.

It is pointed out by one wholesaler that fish must be seen to be sold. Here is where the phone should be freely used. If the people do not get out to the stores, this is one of the lines that suffers heavily. Dealers should not allow fish to occupy an unimportant place in the store either, but should, especially now, be given full prominence.

Scarcity in many lines resulting in a firming tendency was pointed out last week. Indeed, there are few if any lines which show any overplus. With a continued good demand, prices can be expected to rule firm.

Dealers should not lose sight of the opportunities now presented for sale of fish. "Make hay while the sun shines," is advice which the dealer in fish would do well to follow just now. He should put strong efforts forward to boom sales in this department. Conditions could hardly be more favorable for the sale of this line than they are now.

QUEBEC.

MONTREAL. — The Lenten trade holds strong, with a firm market in most lines. Prices have developed no change during week, and are likely to run on same level for some time. A shortage in cods has been predicted since the beginning of the Lenten season and are now almost entirely off the market. A scarcity of halibut is close at hand.

ONTARIO.

TORONTO.—The opening of Lent on Wednesday of last week found dealers pretty well prepared for the good demand which set in. With more favorable weather conditions, it is quite probable that trade would have shown up better. Heavy snow storms, with the resulting crippled freight service and blockaded roads throughout country made for a smaller consumptive demand than would have otherwise been felt. Lenten season is young as yet, however, and wholesalers look forward with confidence.

Steadiness prevails in all lines of fish, as pointed out last week. It is not unusual when the Lenten season is on the wane to see prices ease off on some lines, which dealers wish to clear. Present indications, however, point to no overplus at the end of the season. Pickled trout are noted as in rather limited supply by some firms, while Labrador herrings in half-barrels show a marked scarcity for the season.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

ST. JOHN.—Local dealers are decidedly pleased with manner in which Lent business in fish was opened last week, for sales were brisk on all lines and supply sufficient to meet it. Weather conditions had been conducive to fairly good catches and although no dealer was too well stocked, there was quite enough on the market to meet the trade.

Prices prevail about as usual but with greatly increased demand through Lenten season there is possibility that some lines may be dearer. Clams none too plentiful and fair weather is desired before they are again received in large quantities either from local sources or from the Scotian flats. Lobsters are also in rare supply. The reasons given for the scarcity of lobsters is that high winds and cold weather which have prevailed along the coast have materially affected the fishing, and until mild weather sets in the local market will be unimproved.

NOVA SCOTIA.

HALIFAX.—Since Lenten season opened local dealers have had all the business they can handle. They are handicapped, however, by scarcity. No fresh halibut is offering. There is a small quantity of iced stock on market, but demand for this is only fair. The price is also high, which to some extent restricts sales.

The market is bare of lobsters. No live lobsters reached the local market during the past week. Demand is excellent and dealers cannot get sufficient lobsters to fill orders. Many years have elapsed since such a condition prevailed in Nova Scotia.

Salt mackerel are also scarce. The market for these fish shows a firmer tendency.

There was an abundance of smelts on market last week and they were finest of the season. Haddock and cod are in fairly good supply.

Sales of oysters are large and the demand for smoked fish is unusually heavy. Fillets and finnan haddies are the leaders.

Window Displays Suggested for Fish

How Frozen, Prepared, Pickled and Canned Fish Can be Attractively Arranged—An Actual Display that Sold Goods—An Opportune Time to Feature Fish.

This is perhaps the briskest season of the year for the sale of fish. At least it should be to the dealer who takes full advantage of the opportunities now presented. Favorable weather or other conducive conditions will not of themselves bring to the dealer the greatest possible amount of business. The retailer must introduce salesmanship and selling methods which combined with favorable conditions will work for the greatest amount of trade possible in this department.

Display is an important factor in the sale of any line of goods. This is perhaps more true with fish than many other lines. They must be brought before the notice of customers in order to induce sales. They must also be shown in an attractive manner for unsanitary and unattractive displays will not sell foods to particular customers, and the public are becoming more strict in this regard than in the past. The show window can be used to good advantage these days in promoting fish sales.

Making Frozen Fish Display.

Frozen fish are a good selling line. With this variety some appetizing displays may be made. A catchy window can be made by the introduction of a fish net into the display. It is suggestive. If a mesh net is used it may be draped down from the back of the window and caught up at the bottom so as to hold in a quantity of fish of all varieties. On the floor of the window the several individual lines can be shown separately. Do not forget to set the display off with a show card or two. "Fresh frozen fish for dinner to-day," is a suggestive phrase.

To carry out this fish net scheme, if a large net is not obtainable, several smaller ones each holding a quantity of fish could be substituted.

Shown in Separate Dishes.

Another good frozen fish window recently came to the writer's notice. Each line was shown in separate dishes. These dishes or trays were of white porcelain, making a tasty exhibit. At the front of the window the words, "Fish—a good food," were spelled out with frozen lake herring. Letters can be easily formed with these fish, a certain quantity of which are sold by most grocers.

Customers are not always acquainted with every variety of fish. A good idea might be to show one particular line, not common, have a big show card bearing its name and shortly describing it and its taste and qualities. Considerable interest can in this way be aroused.

Wheel-shaped Design.

Smoked and pickled lines of fish also offer good material for a display. A background might be made of haddies or some similar line hung from hooks at the back of the window. Wheel-shaped displays can easily be made on the floor of the window with salt sardines or salt or pickled herring. Oysters and shrimps could also be placed in this display.

In fish, the dealer has a varied array of lines which may be used for window display. We have also canned and prepared lines. In canned fish we have salmon, sardines, lobsters, herring, smelts, shrimps and anchovies. In prepared we have codfish in its different preparations. These lines can be shown after the style of any canned and package goods display.

Points that Assist.

Show cards can be used to good advantage. In canned fish emphasize the fact they are ready to serve. Point out that fish is a good food and that it is sanitarily prepared.

All kinds of fish and fish foods combined may be worked into an excellent display. It it is possible, it is suggested that the dealer have a painted fishing scene for a background. The addition of a number of ordinary fish poles and fishing lines will give a touch of the realistic. Down either side of the window a wall of canned salmon can be built up. On the floor of the window the different varieties of fresh, frozen, salt and pickled lines may be shown on white porcelain trays. With the addition of catchy show cards such as, "Fish to suit your fancy," the whole should present an attractive display that should sell goods.

How Butter and Egg Markets Stand

Importation of New Zealand and United States Butter Prevents Prices Soaring—Canadian Production Supplies Only Small Percentage of Demand—Egg Market Depends on Weather—Eggs Coming From United States—Lard in Good Demand.

Left to the Canadian supply alone, where would butter prices be to-day? Undoubtedly at a higher level than now obtaining, for without importations of New Zealand and United States stocks, an acute situation might now be ruling in this commodity in Canada.

The small stocks of storage butter carried into early winter have been referred to on several occasions. Added to this winter production has been exceedingly light. It, therefore, became evident some weeks ago that left to itself Canadian demand was going to greatly exceed supply. At that time no relief could be looked for across the border, for values were reaching record heights there. New Zealand butter was, therefore, called to the rescue and considerable quantities have been brought in. Now prices in United States have slumped, making possible importations from across the line.

This will have a steadying tendency on market. Canadian production is supplying only a small percentage of demand so that imports are necessary. Indeed country merchants in farming sections are in many cases not receiving sufficient butter to care for their own demand. The fact that other countries are ready with offerings will have the tendency of keeping prices from ascending higher.

Eggs have also had to be brought in from United States in large quantities in order to care for Canadian appetites. Storage and pickled eggs have been off the market for some time and new laids are alone offered. Lent is working for a larger consumption, while the new laid egg itself, once the consumer commences to use it, is such as to further appeal to the consumer's palate.

The weather now rules the egg market. As the temperature moderates, production will increase, and prices accordingly ease. While the Canadian supply is showing up to better advantage of late, it as yet falls far below the demand, and big quantities are being brought from across the border.

Lard is in good demand, the result of the high prices prevailing for butter. Lent is not conducive to a big meat demand but hams and bacon are moving fairly well. Live hogs are steady under limited supplies.

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS—Market has been devoid of features, prices for all lines being steady with fair local and country demand in hams and bacon. The call for lard is good and the movement of barrelled pork about up to the average. The Lenten season has had no effect on the market, but may develop new features as the season progresses. Hogs are likely to show an advance in price as a result of the short stocks.

EGGS—The extreme cold weather and heavy snow storms last and this week had a trying effect on egg market, almost resulting in famine due to blocked roads. Dealers found the only means of supplying customers was to borrow from each other. Price advanced 5c, but declined almost immediately. The mild weather of latter end of last week relieved the situation, and the roads clear once more made importations possible. Prices will soon drop to the 30c level, provided U. TORONTO.

PROVISIONS—A firmer feeling in lard is one of the features of week. As pointed out in our last issue, high prevailing price for butter works for a larger consumption of lard, thus accounting for firmer tone. Some wholesalers whose stocks are being heavily taxed are quoting prices ¼c up. Lent does not work for a big demand for meats, but hams and bacon are moving quite freely. Hogs are firmer and 10c higher.

BUTTER—Importations of butter from United States and New Zealand brought relief to the butter market, which was fast developing into an exceedingly acute one. Left alone to the supply of Canadian butter, prices would have undoubtedly advanced to higher level than now obtaining. With storage stocks exhausted and Canadian production supplying only a small percentage of demand, relief had to be sought elsewhere. A considerable supply was brought forward from New Zealand, while decline in price of this commodity across the line made possible the bringing in of butter from Chicago. Several houses have brought along considerable quantity, thus having a steadying tendency.

EGGS—"Purely a weather market" was the way one dealer summed up the egg situation. That is to say, that as the weather becomes milder, production will accordingly increase and prices moderate. For some time now pickled and storage eggs have been an unknown quantity, and new laids have had to be wholly depended on. The Canadian hen falls far below supplying present demand and considerable quantities are coming in from United States. As the temperature moderates, however, Canadian eggs will become a more important factor in supply. As supplies increase, prices will ease.

Money Lost in Buying Inferior Eggs

Details of an Actual Purchase Sent to Commission House—Out of 120 Dozen Alleged Fresh Stock 40 Dozen Came Below Mark—Shipper Loses About 3 Cents Per Dozen—Where The Trouble Lies.

A produce firm in an Ontario town recently experienced a rather unpleasant transaction, one which is of frequent occurrence and which has much to do throughout the year with the price of eggs.

This firm prchased 120 dozen eggs from farmers in the surrounding country, all guaranteed to be strictly new laids, and sent them on to a Toronto commission house.

The Expected Profit.

The eggs were bought at 35 cents a dozen. The produce dealer expected to make 5 cents per dozen or a little more than 12 per cent.—a profit no one can call unreasonable when cost of doing business is concerned. The farmer's word was taken that the eggs were fresh and sent them forward to Toronto. One hundred and twenty dozen at 40 cents meant a return of $48 on an initial outlay of $42.

Out of the $6 gross profit, the dealer had the commission and the freight to pay and did not expect to have a net profit of more than 1 or 2 per cent. per dozen.

Here is the statement he received from the commission house on arrival of the eggs:—

Fresh —80 doz. @ 40c...	...$32.00
No. 2 —24 doz. @ 28c	6.72
Inferior—14 doz. @ 23c	3.22
Rotten— 2 doz. @ 0c	0
120 doz.	$41.94

The Actual Loss.

The eggs cost originally $42. Add to this say 3 cents per dozen for commission and freight and we have a cost of $45.60 leaving an actual loss of $3.66 on the small transaction without taking into account necessary overhead expenses on which any such transaction must bear its share.

Cause of the Trouble.

No dealer can or should do business on such a basis. The trouble lies with the farmer who holds his fresh eggs too long. He probably notices from the daily press that eggs are high and going higher and desiring to get the best price going holds stock for probably two weeks or a month. This necessitates culling on part of commission men after candling when the real character of the eggs is shown up in its true light.

To get at the root of the evil, therefore, the dealers must get the eggs when they are fresh. On a declining market like the present this is not difficult as the farmer naturally and quite rightly wants to get the best price going. But when prices are going up like they were three, four and five weeks ago it was not so easy.

A Possible Solution.

Before buying it might be a good policy with some produce and country town merchants to stipulate that the farmer be paid according to the result of the candling. In a tactful way this could be gone into; perhaps the farmer would be more careful if a diplomatic letter were written him pointing out the result of such a sale chronicled above and showing the necessity of farmers sending in eggs when new laid. A circular letter would possibly serve the purpose so that none would take offence at thinking they were singled out from among others. But it must be worded very carefully.

Many merchants are fairly good candlers themselves and on receipt of eggs at once determine their character. Farmers are generally a good class of people and will submit to reason.

Practice Should be Eliminated.

At any rate eggs should be paid for in accordance with their quality. If all merchants buying them would stick to this principle, egg producers would soon discover that the best time to dispose of their stock is when it is fresh. It would also help to lessen the cost of eggs to the retailer in the large cities and to consumers as well.

Don't You Believe It!

Some people are prone to believe that there can be little or no difference in quality between one line of Soda Crackers and another. But if such people will just compare the lightness and crispness of a Mooney Perfection Cream Soda with any other make of cracker they will realize at once that there is a big difference in favor of Mooney's.

Let your customers try—they will be delighted.

Why are we Successful?

We have always had a strong faith in the ability of the retail grocer as a salesman, and while we have put into CLUB JELLY POWDER superior quality, that gives entire satisfaction to the consuming public, we have allowed for a profit to the dealer that makes it well worth his while to give us the benefit of his salesmanship. The combination has proven successful, and we regard the grocers of Canada as real partners in the work of giving the general public the best that money can buy—

In the washtub Wonderful Soap works with even greater aptitude as a cleanser of wearing apparel or household textiles. Being absolutely pure, it may be used with the utmost safety in washing even the finest fabrics.

DO YOU KNOW HOW MANY OF YOUR CUSTOMERS ARE BUYING THEIR TEA FROM a PEDLAR INSTEAD of from YOU?

If you would like to know we feel sure you have an ambitious clerk who would just like the chance to call on each one personally and find out. The pedlar is now selling a much poorer grade of tea than he sold formerly. High markets have driven him to it. If you will make these personal calls we promise you you will get an agreeable surprise.

You will find that these customers of yours who have been buying from pedlars are not at all satisfied with the tea they are getting and will be very ready to give you an order for tea they can depend on.

Sell them Red Rose Tea once and we think we can guarantee they won't buy from a pedlar again.

Larger Profit---A Cleaner Store

Every merchant loses part of his profit if he sells kerosene and gasolene by the faucet tank and tin measure method. No matter how careful you are, some oil will be spilled. That's loss. The floor becomes saturated and invites fire. The foul odors arising from this condition fill the store and contaminate foodstuffs, resulting in wasted goods and dissatisfied customers.

BOWSER

SELF-MEASURING SYSTEMS

remove these objections. The heavy steel tank is evaporation and leak-proof. The self-measuring pump discharges any amount into the customer's can, counts the gallons and computes the charge. The salesman don't touch it and the measurement is guaranteed.

Auto Delivery Curtails Delivery Expenses

Service is one of the main features which determines a merchant's patronage, with delivery the most important part. Merchants are more and more beginning to realize the many points in favor of automobile delivery, because it brings them more business and because it is cheaper than any other method.

The Menard Commercial Car

has been designed to meet the demand, and is a quiet car of great reliability, reasonable speed, with a large reserve of power and a frame of strength and size capable of carrying a load of considerable bulk and up to 1500 lbs. weight.

The design of tires used on the Menard Commercial Cars reduces the cost of maintaining tires to a nominal sum. There are many other features of the Menard that will impress it upon merchants for its superiority above all others.

Send for prices and full particulars.

Have You Told Your Customers All About OXO CUBES

Have you told them about the 4,000,000-acre OXO cattle ranches, where the hundreds of thousands of OXO cattle thrive? About the factories, covering 500 acres, where OXO is made? About the absolute cleanliness of the process and the product?

Have you told them what a delicious, invigorating drink can be made in a minute with one OXO Cube? Have you mentioned any of the dozens of ways in which Canadian women are using OXO Cubes in the kitchen—in soups, stews, gravies, hashes, meat pies, and with such dishes as boiled rice?

Why not develop the big possibilities for trade which there undoubtedly are in OXO Cubes?

THE MOST LIBERALLY MANAGED HOUSE IN CANADA

If you could stand beside each clerk as he makes a sale, and make a note of the details there'd not be much chance for mistakes, would there?

You would know the amount and kind of the transaction, and who handled it.

You would know that the customer got the right change, and that you got the right amount of money.

You'd have a record of every cash transaction in the store that would make the night's "balance" a very simple matter.

And your clerks would be better salesmen, more careful and accurate because they would get credit for good work, and know that the blame for mistakes would be fixed beyond dispute.

That's exactly what a National Cash Register does for you

The amount and kind of each transaction is publicly displayed and a positive and permanent record kept for your private inspection.

Separate adding wheels show you the totals of Cash Sales, Charge Sales, Money Received on Account and Money Paid Out—at any time during the day.

The Sales Strip, kept locked inside the machine, gives you an itemized record of every transaction made during the day—just as complete as if you followed your clerks all day and recorded the various amounts yourself.

You know how many customers each clerk waited on—the amount of each clerk's sales for the day, a separate record of each sale—who made the mistakes—who did the best work—and you know exactly the amount that should be in the cash drawer.

The National keeps track of every detail of every transaction—stops leaks, checks losses. How can you afford to be without one?

You place yourself under no obligation by writing for Free booklets, explaining the uses of National Cash Registers in your business. Write now to

'For I want what I want when I want it"

How can you figure the sales YOU lose by not selling FIVE ROSES?

How big is the profit that day after day slips past your open door?

Only one way to judge of this, Brother Grocer.

—By watching your competitor's gain.

Every bag or barrel he sells of FIVE ROSES might have cashed YOU a profit.

And this is trade you can never seduce—

Since FIVE ROSES makes permanent patrons.

Every bag or barrel sold brings profit somewhere to a retailer.

Why not get it YOURSELF?

Every bag or barrel makes the next sale easy with its further profit.

And this is proved beyond a doubt by the really sensational increase in FIVE ROSES sales.

Just think, in 1888 there were only 800 barrels of FIVE ROSES sold in the world—now the Keewatin mills can make 10,500 barrels a day.

Which means only one thing, Brother Grocer—

Five Roses is packed to suit your trade in barrels and halves. Also in bags of 7, 14, 24, 49, and 98 lbs.

Daily capacity, 10,500 barrels.

Increased sales for the retailer, since we never sell direct.

It's the best-sold flour—why?

Because it's the best flour value for buyer and seller alike.

In the West homesteaders write u- that they often go for miles out of their way to be sure of getting their bag of FIVE ROSES.

Think of the stores they drive past on the way—the lost sales.

Don't let customers cross the street. Sell FIVE ROSES.

Don't delay—to-morrow's profit can't make up for to-day's neglect.

"Just as Good" means absolutely Not as Good!

You can pay a competitor no greater compliment than by comparing the worth of your goods with his, and likewise you can offer a woman no greater insult than by confronting her with "something just as good," when she knows what she wants and has come to your store to get it.

Moral—"Give them what they ask for."

Enterprise Accuracy and Enterprise Quality are in These Coffee Mills

It is best to consider well, in buying a coffee mill for your store, whether there is character under the brilliant finish—whether the machine will do the work perfectly and continue to do it. That is what are made to do. Enterprise Mills are made under our own patents. Expert mechanics make every part. The grinding system gives absolutely uniform, perfect results. There is no crushing of the coffee, but an even grind to the fineness you want—every time.

All parts interchangeable. And under our system of manufacture, there cannot be the deviation of the thousandth part of an inch. Replace a part next year—ten years from now—and it fits exactly. Strong, staunch grinders guaranteed equal to steel do the work evenly and perfectly. New grinders can be put in your machine at low cost. The easiest running machines made. Better to be sure of good quality—service—first of all. The name Enterprise is your guarantee of both. Let us send you catalogue showing you the line of Enterprise machines—many styles in hand and electric power.

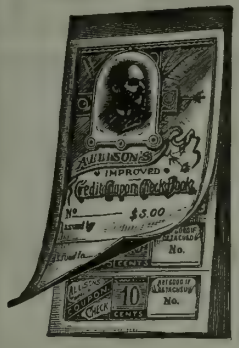
DO YOU KNOW ALL OF YOUR "CREDIT CUSTOMERS" PERSONALLY? IF NOT, YOU NEED

Allison Coupon Books

Because they will enable you to handle a vastly greater number of credit accounts profitably and with SAFETY. You don't need a high salaried organization either, for they eliminate a great deal of work, simplify bookkeeping, prevent errors and disputes, and—best of all—afford an easy means of checking close on each customer, who might otherwise let his account run too long. If you have a few "slow" but perhaps "good" credit customers, just try ALLISON COUPON BOOKS and then keep your eye on the cash book. See what a difference it makes.

HERE'S HOW THEY WORK:—



When a man wants credit, give him an Allison Coupon Book, and have him sign form at the front which becomes then his promissory note to you. As he buys, you tear out coupons, and when his book is exhausted you can collect your note or extend his credit for another book, as you deem wise. No pass books, no charging, no time wasted, no errors, no disputes.

Purity-Cleanliness-Freshness

AFTER years of experiment in the proper making of jams, Chivers & Sons are now the recognized leaders of the preserved fruit industry in the Old Country. Exhaustive investigation by the world's best critics has pronounced them "excellent."

PURITY—Cleanliness—Freshness—these three, are the hall-mark of this world-famed make of food products. Starting in a very small way with a mere handful of employees, Chivers & Sons have developed into a thoroughly organized concern employing thousands of people.

Chivers & Sons' Fruit Preserves

have a flavour that is unequalled, being composed of the choicest fresh fruit skillfully prepared. This delicious flavour may be attributed to their method of preserving and packing, almost immediately after the fruit is gathered. This is an advantage obtained by Chivers' factory standing in the midst of thousands of acres of orchards in the finest fruit-growing district of Cambridgeshire.

A feature that you will find as a selling point is the careful packing in tins or bottles. By a special process all the tins are prepared so as to prevent the possibility of any detrimental effect on the fruit.

You safeguard your reputation, Mr. Grocer, by stocking foodstuffs of perfect purity and quality—tried and tested. You will find it the means of bringing many repeat orders—at good profit.

Where Do Your Profits Go?

The most likely way of being swindled out of a margin that should be yours is claimed by Old Sol. He beats down tremendously upon your stock, and in that way lessens its value that you cannot get your price or cannot make quick sales—the attractiveness is wilted. But if you have a Raymond awning it centres attractiveness to your store, and the good condition it keeps your stock in makes sales that pay you.

Definite Move to Ontario Organization

Members of Different City Associations Meet After Banquet to Discuss Plans—Some Reasons Why They Maintain Such an Organization is Necessary—Circular Being Drafted to Send to Representatives of All Ontario Associations.

For a long time it has been the dream of a number of dealers to have an Ontario Retail Grocers' Association. That dream is evidently about to be realized.

Those who have been keeping in touch with association work in The Grocer of recent issues will have seen that the London, Toronto, Hamilton and Brantford associations have been ventilating their views on this question in no uncertain manner. All these associatios are now working together, and the others are wanted. Ottawa in the east, to Windsor in the west, will be asked to help, and in any town or city in Ontario where there is now no association, these places will be requested and urged to organize.

As recently announced, London and Toronto associations have passed resolutions favoring the proposition. Brantford and Hamilton have since done the same, and in each of these four bodies are men giving time and labor to the preliminary work.

Banquet Speakers Favor It.

At the banquet of the Toronto R. G. A., report of which will be seen in this issue, speakers from the four cities emphasized their opinions on the need of such an organization.

J. A. McIntosh, past president of the Hamilton body; E. J. Ryan and Thos Shaw, of the London association; W. J. Mellen, president of the Brantford organization, and W. C. Miller, past president of the Toronto R. G. A., all spoke strongly on the subject, and with these men and organizations behind the proposal, there is every license to predict an Ontario Retail Grocers' Association in the near future.

So strong was the sentiment that, although the banquet did not conclude till one o'clock on Thursday morning, an after meeting was held at the Arlington to arrange a conference before the visiting retailers went home.

Those retailers present at this conference were:—E. J. Ryan and Thos. Shaw, of London; W. J. Mellen, Jas. Burns, Ed. Church and Geo. Harp, Brantford; R. Davies, W. C. Miller, D. W. Clark, Donald McLean, Fred. Thorne, David Bell and R. Matthews, of Toronto; J. A. McIntosh and Ed. Hazel, of Hamiltion, had to leave early to catch a train. Inspection of scales, wholesalers' discounts, wholesalers selling direct, and the Garnishee law were among the questions considered to be of first importance, which could best be dealt with by a provincial body of organized men. At this meeting it was decided to call another for Thursday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, at the Iroquois, to talk over some definite method of procedure.

D. W. Clark, Toronto, was appointed chairman. Those present at this meeting were:—W. J. Mellen, Ed. Church, Geo. Harp and Jas. Burns, Brantford; E. J. Ryan and Thos. Shaw, London; R. Davies, D. W. Clark, W. C. Miller and D. Bell, Toronto. W. J. Bryans, associate editor of The Canadian Grocer, was appointed secretary pro tem.

To Get in Touch With Others.

There was no one opposed to the formation of a provincial organization, so the matter of getting the views and co-operation of other associations and individuals interested in the work was considered.

It was finally decided to send a letter to all other similar Ontario bodies. This letter will be drafted from those submitted by the committees of each association represented so as to make it as comprehensive and as strong as possible.

Questions for Consideration.

Some of those present deprecated the new regulations of Ontario wholesalers cutting of cash discounts. They could see no good reasons why their discounts should be cut off if the wholesaler got cash for his goods. This will likely be one of the first problems for consideration once the organization is formed.

Attention will also be given to the expensive system under which debts must now be collected. The Garnishee Law, already referred to, stipulates that a man's wages cannot be garnisheed unless his employer owes him more than $25. In other words, the law protects a delinquent to the extent of $25; in order to collect a $25 debt the debtor must have $50 coming to him from his employer at one time.

Division Court proceedings are necessary to collect a debt, and as the expense of these usually prove to be out of proportion to the size of the debt, retailers feel that reform is necessary.

Among other things co-operative bills will be watched. These are introduced periodically into the House of Commons, and as grocers are more affected than anyone else they maintain that a provincial association of grocers will unitedly do much to disparage any class legislation of this sort.

A customer doesn't appreciate having to eat bread wrapped in paper on which the dealer's licked finger has left its mark.

Ontario Assn. Strongly Advocated

Discussion of This Question Chief Feature at Retail Grocers' Banquet—Visiting Retailers From Hamilton, Guelph, London and Brantford—Elimination of Cash Discounts By Wholesalers Condemned—Legislation That Should be Gone After—A Large Attendance.

(Staff Correspondence.)

Toronto, March 7.—If the vim which a number of speakers put into addresses at the Retail Grocers' Association Banquet last week continues to develop, there will, in the no distant future, be an Ontario Retail Grocers' Association. In one sense of the word, the banquet was a cosmopolitan affair. There were present, members of the trade from London, Hamilton, Brantford and Guelph, as well as local wholesalers, their traveling salesmen and a few brokers and manufacturers. It was held at the Arlington House.

The toast list was a lengthy one and stirring and deliberative addresses were heard on Canada, Our City, The Trade, The Drummer, Our Guests, The Trade Journal, The Ladies and on the formation of a provincial organization, but the greatest of these was the last. J. A. McIntosh, past-president of the Hamilton Retail Grocers' Association, led in the attack. He was followed by vigorous addresses from E. J. Ryan and Thos. Shaw, of the London Retail Grocers Association, W. J. Mellen, president of the Brantford R.G.A., and W. C. Miller, past president of the local association. These men speaking on behalf of their various organizations, urged the establishment of an Ontario body with which would be affiliated the city and town associations.

Wholesale grocers present addressed the gathering while the entertainment fell chiefly on the shoulders of the travelers—the jolly good fellows of the past and present.

Starts the Ball A-Rolling.

When the 150 or more guests had taken the edge off their appetites, President R. Davies' baton roused them to the realization of the presence of orators. He appreciated the response of so many to the association's invitation and hoped all would enjoy themselves.

After the King had been duly honored, Ed. Hawes proposed the toast to Canada, referring to her powers in manufacturing. Ald. Alf. Maguire responded in a strong patriotic address which was punctuated by much applause.

Want a Day of Rest.

J. S. Bond, Toronto retail grocer, before proposing the toast to Our City adopted the visiting retailers for the night. "A city or country can only rise to the level of its people," was one of his important assertions. He advised that the City Fathers continue to keep the lid down tight on our closed Sundays. "We all want the seventh day as a day of rest," he declared. His meaning did not include closed slides, he made plain.

Chas. Parsons, of Parsons, Brown & Co., wholesale grocers, responded in the unavoidable absence of Ald. D. Spence.

"Our Guests" were introduced by D. W. Clark, Avenue Road grocer. Mr. Clark welcomed the visiting retailers briefly and called upon the Hamilton representatives who had only a few minutes left to catch the train. Ed. Hazell, president of the association and J. A. McIntosh responded.

Clear-Cut Determination.

"I had intended to speak for an hour to-night," began Mr. McIntosh amid laughter, "on a Provincial Association, but I have to leave you sooner than that.

"It is a topic dear to my heart and I will not stop till I see one established. The time is at hand when the retail grocers of this province should unite against manufacturers and wholesalers. Some grocers in Hamilton have to work 12 to 16 hours a day to make a living, and the retailer shouldn't have to live on the small percentage of two per cent. which we get on many articles. This question of an Ontario association is coming up a week from Thursday night in Hamilton and I can tell you we're for it."

Take Things Easier.

"We're not like the last speaker from Hamilton," said E. J. Ryan, of London. "London grocers don't work 16 hours a day. Eight to ten is the longest and we have the Wednesday half holiday all summer. We attend the fall fairs and enjoy ourselves in London and also look after our business."

Mr. Ryan, in referring to organization intimated that if the retailers had had a man like E. F. B. Johnston to plead their cases they would be getting better margins of profit. "We're criminals now if we take our discounts," he said. In many cases, wholesalers who only stored the goods were getting good profits whereas we have to sell those goods and get little reward.

Sell What They Wish.

"And we sell whatever goods we like," he added. "If we want to sell any kind of soap we can do it despite what the customer may ask for.

"Where would the labor men be today if it were not for their unions? If we were to go in a body to our members of parliament we could get anything in justice we desired. Where would the wholesale man and his discounts be if we were united? We are the men who sell the goods; we want to help the wholesale man but we want justice.

"'It's the other fellow we're after who doesn't pay his bills,' say wholesalers, but we get nothing for paying ours. It is up to us to organize and if we all have the interests of the business at heart it won't be long till we get discount for cash, besides those on vinegar and tea. These are still left us, why? Because we can buy them direct. If we get a reasonable profit on the goods we sell we have no contention. We are 50 to 1 compared with the wholesale trade and we ought to win. You can always depend on the London Retail Grocers' Association to go into the question of provincial organization," he added and his remarks were greeted by prolonged applause.

Between Devil and Deep Sea.

Brantford was next heard from. "I came down to stay all night even if it takes me all week," humorously remarked W. J. Mellen, and everyone knew his nationality. He had been fooled once before by an early train schedule.

"I'm for organization," he declared. "We're up against it. We're between the devil and the deep sea. The wholesale house is after us on the one side and the consumer on the other. There is the question of giving credit and not knowing when we will get our money.

"There is the Garnishee legislation. The law puts its arm around a man and protects him to the extent of $25. Is there any fairness or honesty in that? It's the man who wants to do you who desires such a law."

Referring to the recent address of E. F. B. Johnston before the Lominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild, he took it that what the wholesalers could do under the law the retailers could also in their own sphere in regard to prices.

"You must remember, of course," said Mr. Mellen, very truly, "the law as it is in the statute book doesn't mean much; it's how the judge interprets it from the arguments of the lawyers.

The Price-Cutter Dwindling.

"If we organize and go after legislation, we can get what is fair to us. In every community there are always men who will cut prices. Thorough organization and realization of fair margins of profit will stop that. We have a good organization in Brantford. We do not break established prices. Once in a while someone will kick over the traces but we get him back again. But a city organization cannot do much as to legislation. But we can get what we want with an Ontario association. Just here we want to remind you that Brantford has the credit for giving the knockout blow to the Trading Stamp evil."

A Willing Association.

Thomas Shaw, of London, also strongly advocated provincial organization. "We feel very strongly on this question over in London," he said, "and have already taken some steps in our association to help it along. We are willing to send delegates anywhere to get it going because we feel that many of the wrongs of the trade will be righted when we have it."

Social Side of Organization.

Neil Carmichael, Toronto, in proposing the toast to "Our Association," emphasized the value of organization in the trade. "The social side of our association is shown here to-night," he said, "and it is well that we keep this side in view because this form of sociability brings the trade together and that is a good thing." He bewailed the fact that many grocers were not interested, as little can be accomplished without union. A few cannot care for all the vital subjects that come up, and it is desirable that a larger number not only become members of the association but active workers.

Wm. C. Miller in replying to this toast first made reference to the length of time the association had been established and its aims.

Benefits Trade in General.

"Our association is actively engaged in everything concerned with the welfare not only of our own association, but the trade in general. We realize there is much that can be accomplished by co-operation and association work. For this reason we feel the need of assistance from outside associations.

"There are many matters where we are being intruded upon and which it will require a strong front to have righted. With this in view, Retail Grocers' Associations throughout the province have been approached and we are now on the verge of the formation of a provincial organization. Banded together we will be able to go to legislative bodies and demand from them our rights.

Unfair Peddler Competition.

"There are many grievances which we need to have righted. One thing we require is action against the peddler who for a small consideration is allowed wide selling privileges while the retail grocers have to pay rent, taxes, and bear all the other necessary expenses.

Some of the men behind the proposal to form an Ontario Retail Grocers' Association.

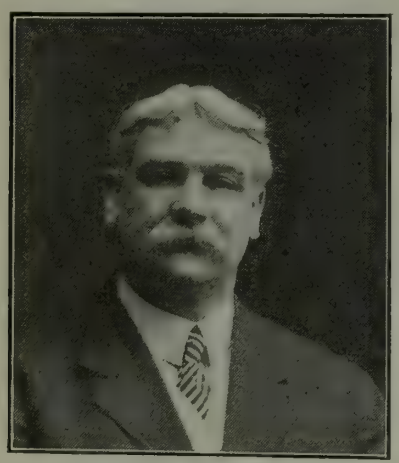
"Then, again, we want a law to get after the dead-beat. There is too much red tape connected with the present system. The present amount of $25 which we must leave a man in garnishment is too much. We want legislation to have it reduced to $10.

Wholesalers Selling Direct.

"We should not stand for wholesalers selling to consumers which is so prevalent now. Instances are voiced every day in which the retail grocer is being wronged in this manner. We must have this remedied. When a provincial organization is completed much will be accomplished in correcting these abuses."

Uniting Sections of the Trade.

The toast to "The Trade" was proposed by Donald McLean, Roncesvalles Avenue, and replied to by Frank Sloan and J. H. Ince, wholesale grocers. Mr. McLean referred to the advantages of bringing the wholesale and retail trade together and thought it would tend to bring about a more amicable settlement of alleged wrongs.



D. W. CLARK
One of the few charter members of the Toronto R. G. A. He is a strong advocate of an Ontario Organization.

"It is unfortunate," said Mr. Sloan, "that the retail and wholesale trade do not come together oftener. I am sure it would help to make matters between them much smoother. The wholesalers are not in business to rob the retailer. They have to look after their own interests but I can say that they also study the interests of the retail trade." Mr. Ince added to these words, expressing his great pleasure at being present.

"Treat the traveling man right," was the theme of Frank Johnston's proposal of the toast to "The Drummer." In replying, G. Todd, of P. C. Larkin & Co., gave a poetical toast to the "traveling man." Herb Moore, of Pugsley-Dingman, also responded, touching generally on conditions surrounding recent soap movement.

"Travelers are often looked upon in the wrong light by the retail trade," he said. "There are no doubt some men on the road who have an over amount of persistency and a lack of judgment, but I do not think the majority can be described in this way. The drummer is an important link in the trade and his ideal should be to co-operate with the grocer in the true sense of the word." Wes. Williams, T. H. Estabrooks Co., Limited, added a trade song which took the fancies of the grocers.

WES. WILLIAMS' BANQUET SONG.

Bob Davies is now on the throne,
And he has a way all his own;
At the end of his year
We will all give a cheer
For the way the association has grown.

He has a fine horse for the Show,
And he's always right after the dough;
He'd win without doubt,
If Dick Matthews stayed out,
He's beat him now twice in a row.

The vice-president's name is Dave Clark,
And his place is straight north of Queen's Park,
When the day's work is o'er,
He closes his store,
And his clerks don't go home in the dark.

Now everyone here knows Fred Thorne,
And all must acknowledge the corn,
If with him they'd compare
In the secretary's chair,
They will have to get up in the morn.

A boy entered Bill Miller's store,
Set a basket of eggs on the floor,
My mother says, "Please, there's chicken in these."
Says Bill, "It'll be forty cents more."

Neil Carmichael is right to the fore,
He'll do his own share and some more,
On legislation he's strong,
He will right every wrong,
And show that he's game to the core.

If names have the know-how to sell,
The Davies and Daves have done well,
For under the tent
With the new president
Are Dave Clark, and Dave Spence and Dave Bell.

Frank Johnston is built rather fat,
And members are hard to get at,
But leave him alone
And he'll wander in home
With a bunch of them under his hat.

And now here's our friend, Davy Bell,
Whose store up Yonge Street is swell,
The ladies walk miles
For one of Dave's smiles,
He's not married—that's easy to tell.

From the city hall comes Alf. McGuire,
And we know it's his earnest desire
To take a firm stand
And lend us a hand
To make pedlar's licenses higher.

J. S. Bond is the man with the smile,
He does things up in fine style;
He could sing or clog-dance
If he had half a chance,
But they expect him to speak all the while.

And now here comes Donald McLean,
Whose talk to the trade was quite plain;
If you take his advice
And never cut price,
You will not have have heard him in vain.

Of course, you all know Bailey Snow,
You will see him wherever you go,
At the picnics in summer
He sure is a hummer,
He's the principal man in the show.

Refrain.

Come all the way up,
Come all the way up, delivery;
Come all the way up, all the way up,
Come all the way up, delivery.

D. W. Clark proposed the toast to "The Trade Journal." "Co-operation is the only way to remedy grievances and attain the best results in the grocery trade," said Mr. Clark, "and much can be done in this regard by the trade journal.

"The Canadian Grocer has for many years now been the champion of the retail grocers and a connecting link between the wholesale and retail trade. It has always reported fairly and squarely without fear or favor, all questions which have come up in connection with the trade.

"I have always taken The Grocer and have found it an up-to-date and helpful journal. It has always been the true mouth-piece of the grocery trade, favoring neither one side or the other. As long as I am in business I will be a subscriber to it."

B. T. Huston, editor of The Canadian Grocer, responded to this toast, pointing out why the retail trade should be united, as unless banded together it is impossible to get anything from legislative bodies. The labor unions are an excellent example of the value of organization and the grocers would do well to follow in similar lines.

DONALD McLEAN
Who, in proposing the toast to "The Trade," advised co-operation between wholesaler and retailer.

"The Ladies" were not forgotten in the long list of toasts and this hour of pleasure. When Dave Bell called for response to "the most important toast of the evening" full eight score water glasses glimmered from the outstretched hands of as many men: as many hearts beat fast with common cause (the thought of the club awaiting them at home) as three hearty cheers were given in feminine behalf. J. H. Ince responded to this toast and with the singing of Auld Lang Syne, the 1912 banquet passed into the annals of history.

Edmonton Retailers Talk Business

Annual Banquet of Protective Association Attended by 150 Merchants—Garnishee Law, Business Tax, Peddlers' Regulations, System in Retailing and Retail Banking Among Subjects Discussed.

Edmonton, Alta., Mar. 7.—(Special).—A hundred and fifty of Edmonton's merchants assembled in the dining hall of the Corona Hotel on the occasion of the second annual banquet of the Retail Merchants' Protective Association.

President H. W. B. Douglas presided and during the evening new officers were elected with Mr. Douglas as honorary president, while M. S. Booth, manager of the Hudson Bay Co. store here, is the 1912 president.

What Assocations Stood For.

In his address the president stated that the object of the association was for the protection against granting credit to irresponsible persons and it was a protection to the community against fake advertising. In the report it was stated that the business tax would be abolished as soon as the city charter had been amended and there were other taxes and legislation that the association had fought against during the year. During the year, the executive committee had held 24 meetings and they had all been well attended. It was fast growing among the business men that the organization was justified and was doing good work.

The following gentlemen were nominated chairmen of the respective sections:—H. Aldridge, bakers; T. S. Thompson, furnishing section; R. G. Lowe, W. H. Reed, crockery; P. E. McClary, hardware; G. Morris, groceries; D. Davies, outfitters; W. T. Ash, jewellers; Adam Esch, stationery; J. H. Lines, drugs; W. T. Henry, furniture; A. E. Ludwig, dry goods, and E. J. Hart, gents' furnishings. W. H. Ketchum was re-elected secretary.

Garnishee Law in West.

The newly elected president, M. S. Booth made a few remarks concerning the work done by the association during the past year and referred to the abolition of the floor tax and the demands made to the legislature in regard to garnisheeing and early closing. They had been before the city council many times but had never received the attention that they thought they should have received. They intended to get a representative on the council so they elected Mr. Douglas. They did not intend to ask favors of him, but they wanted to be seen when they do have cause to appear before the council.

Continuing, Mr. Booth said that there seemed to be laws in the province which protected the dishonest debtor against the honest retailer and they were trying to get these laws amended. He urged the members if at any time they had any kicks or any troubles they would harbor them not unto themselves, but acquaint the executive so that they could go into the matter for them.

Peddlers' Law Broken.

Mayor Armstrong, an ex-honorary president of the association, said there were many infringements of the laws of the city just the same as there were the laws of the association. During the years past, quite a number of cases had been brought to his attention of the infringement of the peddlers' by-law, and he had set the watch dog on their trails and brought many of them to the courts. There was one man he tried to bring before the court but he "flew his kite" before he could be got.

He hoped their deliberations throughout the year would be even more successful than in the past for he realized that the success of the retailers in the city depended on the legislation they obtained. Nothing they had obtained so far could be classed as class legislation for he did not think that their laws affected any particular class of people to the detriment of others.

Abolition of Business Tax.

Although a lot of time was spent in framing and wording by-laws there was always some individual who would come along and under circumstances, do something which the by-law did not cover. It was most difficult, said Mayor Armstrong, to get by-laws in such wording that they would cover all the points in such a way that the magistrate would not hold that the by-law was invalid or incomplete. In conclusion he said he had for a number of years been in favor of the abolition of the business tax and the poll tax. The latter was a farce and was a grievance and a burden to many, for only 25 per cent. paid the toll tax, while 75 per cent. got off scot free. He was glad that it had been done away with along with the income tax.

What System Means.

An interesting address was then delivered by Mr. Griffin on the subject of systems. The speaker made use of many anecdotes which had come under his notice and made many humorous remarks concerning the habits of clerks and salesmen. System in business, he said, was not merely the question of accounting or bookkeeping or any sort of record. It was all these and more. It means a carefully thought out plan for handling every detail and transaction. It was necessary in every business no matter what it was. It was even necessary in conducting a man's personal affairs. The so-called system expert who knows very little about business in general but who is a good salesman, often makes a good sale but he will often try to convince you that his little device will solve all your difficulties.

In business there is only one right way but a hundred wrong ways. Find out that one right way and you are on the road to systematic management, and the saving of money and trouble. In conclusion the speaker quoted the business man's prayer as follows. In the morning when he gets up he says:

"Now I get me up to work.
"I pray the Lord I may not shirk.
"And if I die before the night,
"I pray the Lord my work's alright."

Bank Manager Talks.

H. C. Anderson, manager of the Traders' Bank and secretary of the Edmonton Clearing House Association was the next speaker and he choose as his theme, "Finances." The speaker said that first of all when a man went into business he generally had a small capital. He must have a good character and sound integrity, and must have exemplary references before he can obtain credit from any wholesaler.

He must have sound wisdom in selecting the site for his business and another most important asset must be in the selection of his clerks. The clerks must be courteous and obliging for they are the ones that help create business. He thought all retail business men should make themselves known to their banks for if at any time they required to overdraw it is always a wise policy to be acquainted with the bank manager. Judicious advertising was another great asset for it brings results.

Settlement of Accounts.

A great many retailers do not appreciate the necessity of a complete record of every little detail. Accounts should be sent out regularly and there should be a distinct understanding as to the time of settlement when the account is first opened. There should be regular annual stocktakings for it often reveals merchandise on hand that has been lost track of. In conclusion the speaker announced himself as of the opinion that the best days for the retailer in Edmonton are yet to come.

Alex. Livingston touched briefly on the accomplishments of the association during the last year and explained to the members and any intending members what the association was doing.

During the course of the evening the business was interspersed with songs and music.

TO STRENGTHEN OUR STAFF

The Canadian Grocer proposes to add to its staff in Montreal an assistant editor, a young man with a thorough knowledge of the grocery business, who has had a training in a high-class grocery store, and who has the newspaper man's instinct for recognizing an item of news when he meets it, along with the trained grocer's appreciation of the inwardness of trade conditions. To such a man a liberal salary will be paid and excellent chances offered for advancement.

This step is in line with the general policy of advancement outlined by The Grocer at the beginning of the year and an expression of our determination to give our subscribers in every part of Canada the benefit of the best possible information from the strategical centres of trade.

NEW MODE OF DELIVERY.

The delivery question in every large store is an important one. Where two or more vehicles are required the expense stretches out to considerable proportions in fifty-two weeks and if it can be curtailed any it should.

On another page of this issue are given the experiences of two retail dealers with the automobile system of delivery. These indicate that this system should be looked into. If as asserted one motor car can do the work of two, three or four horses, and if repairs do not exceed those of a couple of wagons, then it would seem the question is one for deep study.

In addition to that there is the advertising value of the motor delivery. Some people are vain and want the best of service and if it can be given reasonably without fear of loss of other custom a change in system ought to be considered

It is a fact we cannot deny that during the past two or three years auto delivery has made rapid strides in Canada and if we are to judge from the interest displayed in this method at the Motor Show which closed a week ago, it will make much more rapid progress during the coming few years.

MANITOBA FLOUR UP.

Some millers have announced this week an advance of ten cents per barrel in Manitoba flours due they claim to the strengthening wheat market which has reached the high-water mark at bay ports.

All millers are by no means convinced that flour should be higher. While some have actually made the advance, others are only contemplating it and still others do not intend to follow suit just now. The latter state that while it is true wheat has reached a high level at bay ports, yet that wheat is in few hands and values can be easily strengthened. They further claim wheat can be brought east from Winnipeg by an all-rail route cheaper than it can be purchased at the ports.

But the trouble in such a case is to get Winnipeg wheat east under the present congested conditions of the railways.

The situation is therefore quite an interesting one when analyzed and what will develop from it will be closely followed by all concerned.

DON'T NEGLECT FISH DEPARTMENT

The retailer should not neglect to give to his fish department the full amount of effort that it deserves these days. With a fair amount of boosting under the present favorable conditions, it will produce gratifying results.

More desirable weather conditions could hardly be wished for. Fish can now be handled with minimum expense and trouble.

The presence of Lent makes fish the standard food of many people on a larger number of days than usual.

Many other lines of food which fish can replace are high in price, and fish being comparatively cheap, is thus naturally brought into greater favor.

Then again, fish in its several varieties is an excellent food. The dealer should talk food qualities of this line in his advertising, personal salesmanship and window cards.

Fish, properly handled give to the dealer a good fair profit. It assists in attracting customers to the store. Surely, this is a line that deserves a little honest effort from the retailer.

PROGRESSIVE EDMONTON DEALERS.

From report of the annual banquet of the Retail Merchants' Protective Association of Edmonton, Alta., this organization is a real live one. The chief objects of the association are the protection of retailers from bad debts and from legislation of an unfair and injurious character.

Among the prominent questions affecting the western trade are the garnishee law, peddlers' licenses and the dead-beat, all of which are common to all sections of the country.

Observations made at the banquet on system in the store and the retailer's relation to his banker are full of sound advice and ought to be read by every dealer. One cannot know too much about these matters amd when the opportunity presents itself advantage should be taken of it.

Edmonton has a good strong association of merchants and much good will come of such meetings as that of their annual banquet.

GIVING OVERWEIGHT IN CANDY

The question of overweight in selling candy is one to which we have frequently called attention in the past, but the following letter from one of our readers is worth while commenting on again. It supplies a method to overcome the practice, for appearance sake, of throwing into the paper bag the two, three or four chocolates or pieces of candy sometimes left on the scoop when the exact weight has been secured. Here is the letter:—

Editor Canadian Grocer.—The grocer has a certain selling price for his candy. Then, he should give what is paid for according to that price and no more. When he buys from the wholesaler or the manufacturer, he finds they do not throw any in. When a five-pound box of chocolates is purchased, he gets that amount and no more. Why then should he give overweight and over-value to his customers to the detriment of his profit and business. Success on handling candy in bulk depends to a large extent on accurate weighing.

There is a tendency when candies are being weighed out, if there are a few left over to throw them in. A clerk in weighing as he gets near the required amount will take only small scoopfuls and when the scales balance he finds a few left in the scoop and for appearance's sake throws them in. Now I operate exactly the other way. As I get near the weight, I take large scoopfuls and when the scales balance, I have a large amount left in the scoop which customers can't expect me to throw in. Thus I give no overweight.

The author of the above has certainly some originality about him as well as being a student of human nature.

RIGHTS OF THE TRAVELER.

A deputation of commercial travelers waited on Sir James Whitney, Premier of Ontario, during the week protesting against conditions of some of the hotels in local option districts which now do not come under control of the government.

Some of the things they complained of were the following:—

Rates out of proportion to the accommodation.

Food inferior, badly cooked and horribly served.

Dirty bed clothing, with some beds like a veritable rag bag.

Dirty sample rooms in many places.

Cold rooms with insufficient bed clothing.

Woeful lack of sanitary improvements and conveniences.

The Premier and Hon. Mr. Hanna, provincial secretary, promised to look into the complaints and gave the assurance that if further inspection were needed it would be attended to.

Certainly if the traveling man has to endure all or any of the hardships mentioned above something should be done. He is a necessary attribute to the carrying on of commerce and should be treated with respect.

If the placing of even a nominal tax on such hotels thereby bringing them under government control, would remove the inconveniences then it should be done without delay.

"LOST WITHOUT IT."

"Find enclosed $2 for subscription to The Canadian Grocer. Been without it a month now. Lost without it. Substitute did not take the place."

Once a subscriber of The Grocer has been accustomed to getting his weekly paper and reading it, he cannot very well do without it. The above letter from a retail dealer emphasises this point. About a month ago he dropped it, but see what he says. He was lost without it and the "substitute did not take its place."

It has long been recognized that any general dealer who will be successful in business must specialize in each department of that business. A general knowledge is of little use. By the assembling of specialized knowledge on each department, is the only way to keep out of the rut. There are questions of vital interest to the grocery trade arising from time to time which are of no possible interest to any other section of retail mercantiling. They must be considered apart from everything else.

CREDITING RETURNED GOODS.

It is not alone essential that the grocer have a competent charge system that will make it impossible to miss the charging of any goods that leave the store, but he must also have a proper system of crediting customers not alone with cash payments but with any goods that may be returned to the store.

Lack of this is the direct cause of grocers losing customers. Here is a particular case: On the surface this man was a good grocer. He tried to stock only good goods, but if there happened to be anything a customer did not think was quite up to the mark he was glad to take it back.

A customer on receiving his bill one day, looked it over and to his astonishment found that although the dealer had not objected to taking back these goods, many articles had never been credited.

Of course he apologetically made the correction when it was brought to his notice. That satisfied the customer and things went on as before. However, when the next bill came, there were still a number of articles returned during that month that had not been credited. The customer was naturally angry but other things being satisfactory he decided to still deal there. But when more bills came in with the same mistake he stood it no longer, and decided to transfer his account to a merchant who had a proper system of making credits and who did not have to be watched closely.

A system must be put into work that will serve as a check on all goods returned. Not a half way plan that will generally work but one that will make sure all the time. When a deliveryman brings back goods he should not leave it to memory to have them credited at some future time but should at once do so.

It pays to be sure and accurate in these things. The grocer who wishes to succeed cannot afford to be otherwise.

Automobile Deliveries at Motor Show

Advances Made During Past Three Years—Hundreds of Canadian Dealers Now Using Them—Comparison Made With Horse and Wagon Cost of Delivery—Windsor Dealer Saving Almost $800—Used to Have Four Horses.

Toronto, March 7—(Special)—Three or four years ago there were few, if any, automobile deliveries in Canada operated by retail dealers. To-day there are hundreds of them, and the number is rapidly increasing from month to month.

At the Motor Show, which closed here last Friday night, there were exhibited a dozen or more makes of auto delivery, including two electric cars. Not only were they exhibited, but the sales resulting will without doubt reach high up in the five figure column. Three years ago some of the first demonstrations were held, and few, if any, delivery cars at that time went to retail grocers.

Many Becoming Interested.

This year one firm reports sales of twelve delivery cars at the Motor Show, whereas three years ago they sold only nine during the entire year. Another firm expected to close sales of 20 or 25 as soon as actual demonstrations could be made, while the others all reported an encouraging outlook.

All of this tends to demonstrate the attention the trade is giving to this new form of delivery. Dealers claim it has three distinct advantages over the horse and wagon system. It does the work of at least two horses, and, if necessary, three, and it is a splendid advertisement for the store maintaining it. They also claim that if handled with reasonable care the cost of maintenance is much less than that of the up-keep of two horses, feed for them and wear and tear of vehicles and harness.

There does not appear to be much in auto delivery apart from its advertising value—from the standpoint of the merchant who only needs one delivery horse, and particularly if it stands for any length of time awaiting orders. But the man with two or more horses should take a look into this new system. If it can be made a money-saver it is worth careful consideration.

Value as an Advertisement.

Unquestionably, it is a good advertisement. Large stores which now have this method, state that frequently customers ask to have their groceries sent up by the "automobile delivery." While one may criticize such people for paying so much attention to appearances, yet from a business standpoint, someone has to cater to their high fancies. If they will pay for it, give them the service.

Auto delvery must, therefore, be considered from standpoints of economy, quantity and quality of service, and good advertising.

Windsor Dealer's Experiences.

Windsor, Ont., March 7—(Special)—In this section of the country there are many automobile delivery systems among retailers. W. J. Cherney, one of Windsor's grocers, has had this system in operation for past two years, and is convinced of the economy of it.

Prior to the introduction of the auto in his delivery service, Mr. Cherney had in use four horses. He discarded three of them, replacing them with the auto. Below will be found his comparison of the cost of maintenance of the two systems:—

Horse Delivery Expenses.

	Per Week.
Horses (3)	$15.00
Horses (shoeing)	1.50
Harness	1.00
Keeping up wagons	2.00
Wages (2 men)	19.50
Rent of barn	2.00
	$41.00

Automobile Expense.

	Per Week.
Gasoline	$3.60
Machine oil	.80
Keeping up tires	1.50
Other repairs	.50
Man and boy	$19.50
	$25.90

This shows a saving in expense each week of $15.10, which in a year would amount to $785.20. Even if this saving in expense were but half that amount an automobile would soon be paid for.

Began in Business With Motor Delivery

Retail Grocer Who Figures on Large Saving in Year—Claims His Car Will Do Work of Three Horses—Kept it Running All Winter—Firm Next Door Will Invest.

Geo. Arnold, a retail grocery dealer at 924 Queen street east, Toronto, is one who has adopted the auto delivery method of getting his goods out to customers and who is well pleased with the system. So confident was he of the value of automobile delivery that when he began business last year at the above address, he did not go to the expense of first purchasing a horse delivery. Having had experience with a touring car he felt that for him, automobile delivery would be the best and cheapest.

"Not only is the cost low," he says, "but the other advantages are so great as to make me strongly in favor of this method of delivery."

Mr. Arnold's car is a twenty-horse power one and of the soft tire variety. It has a covered body, affording protection to goods in transport from rain, sunshine as well as dust and dirt.

Cost of Gasoline.

"I use the best quality of gasoline," says Mr. Arnold, "which costs me 18½ cents per gallon. My car requires 15 gallons every two weeks which makes the cost of running the car $1.38 per week. I have had it since before Christmas and it has required practically no repairs. Indeed I expect the cost of repairs to be low, according to the cost of upkeep of my touring car. Of course, within a year repairs will naturally be more than at the present time.

"That $1.38 per week is practically the only expense which I have in connection with it at the present time. The cost of feeding and shoeing a horse would alone amount to $3.50 to $4 per week. We figure that the total cost of horse delivery is $5 per horse per week. The expense of a driver for the car is $14, about the same as that for a horse. My clerk and I, however, do the deliverying ourselves.

Could Do More Work.

"My car," he continued, "is not at present used to its full capacity. We have demonstrated that it can do the work of three horses in delivering. The retail establishment next door, Arnold's meat market, put it to a test recently and it did the work of three horses and wagons.

On this basis the cost of maintenance figures out in dollars and cents as follows:

Wagons Per Week.

Three drivers at $14	$42.00
Three horses' keep at $3.50	10.50
Total	$52.50

Autos Per Week.

1 driver	$14.00
Gasoline	1.38
Total	$15.38

Difference per week, $37.12.

Saving per year 52×$37.12= $1,930.24.

In this estimate it will be noticed that nothing has been figured for repairs for either auto or wagons.

The dealer next door has also decided to adopt automobile delivery in his business.

"Another good feature of the automobile," said Mr. Arnold, "is that it will work all year round. Even the heaviest snow storms this winter did not stop it from covering its route. At any time during the day it is ready for service."

"What do you consider the chief good points of automobile delivery?" was asked Mr. Arnold.

"Well, the comparison shows that it is cheaper," he replied.

"Then another valuable feature is the quickness of delivery. Orders do not have to be held until a schedule time as with horses. If Mrs. Jones rings up and wants some goods in a hurry, we can send them at once and it means nothing but a little more gasoline.

"We deliver with it both in the neighboring district as well as outlying sections. Distance makes no difference.

"The original cost is more of course than that of a horse and wagon, mine being about twice the amount of a good complete delivery outfit, but I believe it soon makes up for this difference."

Food Legislation in The United States

Third Article of Series on Progress of Pure Food Legislation —Early Difficulties of Dr. Harvey Wiley—Each State Has Law of its Own—National Law Solves the Problem.

By W. S. Greening.*

We have seen that in Great Britain the enactment and enforcement of laws regulating the purity of foods was primarily due to Arthur Hassall, so in the United States, the name of Dr. Harvey W. Wiley will always be associated with the passing of the Food and Drugs Act of 1906, which is so far, the most perfect and advanced legislation ever enacted for the protection of the consumer. The passage of this bill was a personal triumph for Dr. Wiley, for it was the result of a struggle lasting over twenty years, during which every possible weapon was used by his opponents to defeat him, and a bitterness aroused unequalled in the whole history of United States.

Uniformity Difficult.

Pure food legislation in the United States is complicated by the ever present conflict between State rights and Federal jurisdiction. The question of food regulation comes entirely within the province of each State, and the law in each was different—good in some and bad in others, and indifferent in most.

Up to 1880 the matter aroused little public interest, although conditions were anything but satisfactory. Undoubtedly, a great deal of impure food was sold, but the general feeling seemed to be that of "caveat emptor" (let the buyer beware). Some famous cases like the wooden "nutmegs" of Connecticut seem to have been regarded as evidences of rather smart Yankee "cuteness," and were admired or treated as a joke rather than as a subject of public concern. The British law of 1875, however, aroused a good deal of interest in America, and several State legislatures passed acts along similar lines.

General Confusion Results.

As in most matters of this kind, Massachusetts took the lead, and her food laws have been regarded as a standard for the other States. Unfortunately, each State, instead of following closely this model legislation, made various variations, dictated in some cases by a desire to be original, but more often allowing the "interests" to slip in clauses which nullified the effective working of the acts. The result was hopeless confusion. Two States side by side would have totally different laws, and to make matters worse, it was discovered that State laws could not be made to apply to shipments from another State. For instance, if an article was prohibited in Ohio, but legal in New York, a dealer or manufacturer could ship it into Ohio from New York, in spite of the pure food laws of the former State. This condition of affairs became intolerable, and it was evident that some remedy had to be found.

Must Have National Law.

Another serious difficulty was, owing to the lack of standards and uniformity, the American export trade in many lines, notably meat products, was suffering, as a foreign power was apt to mistrust American products if he happened to purchase an unsatisfactory lot of goods. The result was lack of confidence in American goods generally. It was felt that little could be done to remedy existing conditions until a national pure food law was passed, as no matter how good the different State laws were, without inter-State commerce could be controlled, it was impossible to make any lasting improvement.

Various food laws were presented to Congress, and a good many passed this house and were sent to the Upper House for ratification, but one and all failed to get through the Senate committees, and after a struggle of over ten years, the question seemed to be as far from solution as ever.

In all, some twenty-three pure food laws were presented to the National Houses of Assembly in sixteen years, and all met the same fate. Some of these laws were not well considered and badly drawn, and had no chance of passing. Others were good laws and had the support of the best public opinion in the country.

Treated as Jokes.

The usual method of blocking these bills was to refer them to the Committee of Manufacturers in the Senate. As this committee seldom met, and as the members were all carefully selected by the big "interests," the bills never got any further. They were either never reported to the Senate at all, or through some technicality were reported unfavorably. Pure food laws were, in fact, a standard joke. One Senator in referring to a bill in regard to lard, stating in a joking vein, that "it was Greece, but living Greece no more."

All this time one man never got discouraged, but kept up the fight with renewed vigor after each rebuff, and eventually, his efforts were crowned with success.

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley was an ex-college professor of chemistry, and had in 1898 become chief chemist in the Department of Agriculture. He had a very definite idea of what was needed, and saw clearly that until proper standards were established it was impossible to hope that a satisfactory law could be passed or enforced.

For some years he worked at the task of perfecting a set of standards which would cover every known food and drug, and in 1903 managed to get money appropriated by Congress to conduct a series of experiments regarding the effect of preservatives in food, the use of artificial products such as saccharin, vanilline, etc., and generally, to decide by actual experiment what foods should be prohibited by a civilized State.

In addition to this work, he toured the country, making speeches, in which he pointed out the evils of the existing conditions, and gradually, but surely, got the public opinion behind him.

* Mr. Greening, the author of this important series, is vice-president of the Pure Gold Manufacturing Co. He will go into the question fully, explaining in future articles the scope of the United States and other pure food laws.

During the war with Spain the embalmed beef scandals made a tremendous sensation, and helped along the cause. In 1904, Mr. Upton Sinclair's novel, "The Jungle," made a public disclosure of a really terrible state of affairs in the packing industry in Chicago. One immediate result of this book was the refusal of the British Government to buy any more American food products until an investigation was made into the truth of the allegations. It was generally seen on all sides that the situation was serious, and public clamor began to be exerted in favor of a national, comprehensive food law.

Got Ear of Senators.

On the other hand, the opposition was bitter. A radical pure food law would mean a tremendous loss to a great many large food manufacturers, and they fought every attempt to enact a national food law, with a bitterness unknown since the civil war. As the "interests" were in control of the Senate, their position looked secure, but first Senator McCumber, and then Senator Heyburn were won over, and as they were on the Committee of Manufacturers, they finally reported in favor of a bill, which passed the Senate on June 30, 1906. This came into force on January 1, 1907, and is the famous Food and Drug Act, which is to-day law in the United States.

This act applies to the manufacturer of foods and drugs in the district of Columbia and the territories of the United States. It also covers all foods imported into the United States from any foreign country, and lastly, and most important, it controls all goods shipped from one State into any other State.

The provisions of the act and their enforcement will be the subject of another article.

An Effective Transition.

In a general way, it may be said that despite the clamor of interested persons whose business in adulterated foods it has destroyed or seriously injured, it has worked wonderfully well, and has had the effect of changing the United States from the country in which food adulterations flourished probably more than any place in the world, into the country in which the public health is protected in the most efficient manner.

As soon as a national law was passed an effort was made to get all the States to adopt this law instead of their own separate legislation, and although this movement has been slower than was anticipated, there is every reason to believe that all the States will eventually abandon their conflicting laws and we will see one law both for inter-State commerce and for the States themselves.

The Humorous Side.

Wm. Miller's latest poetical effort:—

"Little drops of water, little grains of sand Kept behind the counter—Do you understand?"

The political story of Dave Bell continues to tickle some of those who heard it.

"How to get 16 ounces out of the same pound twice," was the problem with which Frank Sloan was supposed to tussle.

Wm. Miller hired an Irishman to deliver two rabbits to a Bloor street home. While grabbing for his hat, the rabbits escaped, and dashed up Bloor street. "Run you little divils," yelled Pat after them, "but sur'n you don't know the address."

Guelph was represented by Mr. Benson who says the grocers there want to see a provincial organization.

"If that gentleman from London (meaning E. J. Ryan) hadn't gone so early, I would like to have had a round out of him," remarked Frank Sloan, but Mr. Ryan was still present. However, it wasn't necessary to call in the police.

J. F. Howitt, Pure Gold Mfg. Co. traveler, can tell a few of them. Ask him where the negress washerwoman was vaccinated.

Geo. Bond's songs were a pleasant part of the entertainment.

R. Davies and Fred Thorne led the chorus at the head table which ran:—"Six for a quarter," and "One too many," when Herb. Moore faced the audience.

One of the stories:—

"I wish I knew the place where I was going to die," said Pat.

"Why?"

"Sure, I wouldn't go near it."

Charley Parson's description of Toronto's recently constructed new Union Station was more minute than the specifications.

That everything was conducted in parliamentary fashion was seen to by J. S. Bond and D. W. Clark.

Next time Mr. McIntosh, of Hamilton, goes to a banquet we venture to say he will be prepared to stay all night even if it takes him a week. (Lessons from W. J. Mellen's Second Book.)

S. Bone who was unable to be present, wrote President Davies he was very much in favor of the Ontario organization.

Harp, Church, Mellen, Burns—this was the fine contingent from Brantford.

A Herring Margin-of-Profit Problem

When is a Margin Not a Profit?—Value of Close Calculation —Where the Waste Gets to—Percentage of Goods That Do Not Pay Average Expense Account.

*By Henry Johnson, Jr.

Nova Scotia, Feb. 15, 1912.

Canadian Grocer,—Gentlemen: The grocers in —— retail fresh herring at 30c per dozen. These fish are costing $1.80 per hundred, or 21.6c per dozen, plus about 3c per dozen freight, as barrels average about 30 dozen fish, and freight and cartage averages 90c per barrel. That means 24.6c per dozen cost laid down. Selling at 30c the margin is 5.4c per dozen, or 18 per cent. of the selling price. We contend that the retail price should be 35c. First, because 18 per cent. is too small a gross margin; second, there are always a few small or torn fish in the barrel, which it is good policy to "throw in" when making up a dozen for a customer; and, third, even selling these fish at 35c per dozen, you are giving 6 3-5 pounds of good food for 35c, or at the rate of about 5 1-3c per pound. Is there anything you can offer a customer to beat it for value?

In discussing this matter with a grocer, he stated that very few grocers' expenses ran over 14 per cent. of sales, and that many did business on as low as 10 per cent. for expense, and that an expense rate of 12½ per cent. was common. We would much like your views on the matter. Perhaps your clever Mr. Johnson might tell us what he thinks, in your columns.

Yours truly,
OLD SUBSCRIBERS.

N.B.—For obvious reasons we do not wish real name of town or our firm name published.

The Margin of Safety.

Certainly the price should be 35c a dozen. The average margin of safety in the retail food business is 20 per cent.; but note that such is the needful average. With numbers of articles necessarily sold on a much narrower margin, it must be our constant aim to get more than 20 per cent. on as many items as possible, so we may realize the normal average. Again, thus must be even more constantly our aim in the case of perishable or semi-perishable goods, or such as are subject to unusual shrinkage. We are all too apt to compute our margins on the gross amount of a shipment, forgetful of the fact that, in breaking bulk and selling in small quantities, it is much more than likely that we shall fail to weigh or measure out nearly as large a quantity as we paid for.

If we could sell 360 herring out of each barrel and got 35c per dozen for all of them, we should have a gross margin of 10.4c per dozen. That figures out a shade under 29¾ per cent.; and that would not be too large a percentage to get. But there is a shrinkage in these fish. I do not know how great that shrinkage is, but I think that it is not unreasonable to estimate it at 10 per cent. Thus we pay $6.48, not for 360 herring, but for 324. That figures 2c each, 24c a dozen. Add 3c for laying in, and the cost is 27c per dozen. On this basis of computation, therefore, we have a margin of 8c per dozen, or just under 22⅞ per cent.

Make Them Pay Their Way.

At 3c per dozen gross margin, these fish will pay us only 10 per cent. That puts them into the class of goods which, like sugar, do not pay their own way. As stated, we want as few of that class as possible.

If I am wrong in my estimate of shrinkage, I suggest that you play I am right anyway. Because, if I figure too widely on this shrinkage you will figure too narrowly on some other. Thus, things will be evened up—probably much more than evened. The retailer is usually all too modest about claiming what is justly coming to him.

Note that even this correspondent goes over to the consumer's side, when he asks if there is anything we can offer the customer to beat these herring at 35c per dozen. The obvious answer is, that those same herring at 30c make cheaper food for the consumer; but that is not the point of the argument. The real point and correct contention is, that nobody is permanently benefited by work done without fair and honest compensation.

The Logical Conclusion.

The retailer is a better retailer when he enjoys an honest margin. The consumer benefits through paying the retailer fairly, honestly for his service, because then the retailer is enabled to render better service on a more liberal scale. Moreover, he does it every time he gets a chance. Thus, the first question to be decided is, what is the fair, living margin on those herring? On what basis can the retailer handle them and have something left over from his expense account? He should not have much; he does not ask much. But he should have something. In this case, it seems logical that 35c per dozen is the right price for him to sell at.

It is a common failing with grocers to look at the necessary average margin as the maximum margin in computing what they shall get for an article. That was evidently the trouble with the grocer to whom this correspondent put the question. It is the trouble with manufacturers and jobbers also. The man who sells us such articles as evaporated peaches thinks he is liberal when he offers us "25 per cent."—figured, as is his habit and training, on the cost—thus just 20 per cent. actually. Yet those goods must pay us 30 per cent.—on the selling price—or we shall not realize the margin we must have to cover shrinkage and have a little net earnings left over.

A Friendly Wager.

Before I passed on that question of the said procer's "14 per cent.," also, I should want to see a statement of his business, with full details of his expense account. Blindly, without knowing the man, and with full cognisance of the fact that he is a Canadian, and, therefore, likely to be pretty well posted, I am ready to wager the cigars that I shall add from 2 per cent. to 4 per cent. to his expense account, getting all my data from him.

I am reminded of the time when I heard a merchant talking details of expenses at a grocers' meeting. He was precise and so crisp in his statements that it was evident that he knew just what he was talking about. One asked him what his expense account was. The reply came quick: "Eleven and six tenths." That is pretty nearly the prize for moderation in expenses; but I have since verified it and found it O.K. But that was not the joke. The fun came in in watching those other grocers nod approvingly and mutter: "Yes, y-e-s; just about right." Bless their hearts! Probably not another single man in the room really knew what his expense account was!

Average Percentage of Expense.

The fact is, that 14 per cent. is to-day a very modest expense account. If I am wrong, gentle readers, "show me." I am always anxious to learn. I am especially more than anxious to learn definitely and in figures of such as run their business on a lesser percentage of

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Sugar—Easier.

Hallowee Dates—Decreased.

Spices—Steady.

Montreal, March 7.—The market in general offers more activity this week as a result of the March trade. Supplies in the greater number of lines are satisfactory, and prospects for the spring trade look encouraging. The weather has been favorable, and shipments are once more satisfactory, much to the relief of those merchants who have suffered greatly from snowstorms and extreme cold.

The sugar market offers a little easier tone. No changes have taken place, and it has been stated that nothing of importance will move the market until reports of the beet crops are known.

The high spell of Hallowee dates seems to have passed, and prices are now on the decline.

SUGAR.—No changes have been made in either price or demand during week, and this attitude is certain to be maintained for some time to come. Consumptive demand still holds strong under the high prices. Cuban markets are lively at present, and local dealers find themselves over supplied.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

POINTERS—

Sugar—Raws easier.

Corn Syrup—Light colored 10c case higher.

Bosnia Prunes—Quoted 8½ to 9c.

Canned Lobsters—Small stocks.

Toronto, March 7.—Quietness is generally reported by wholesalers this week. "Quieter than I have known it for a long time," was the way one jobber put it. Bad roads is about the only excuse that can be offered for present lull.

However, trade has continued fairly brisk during January and February which are generally quiet months, so that a more moderate trade was to be expected at this time. With spring and its accompanying activity now not far distant, an improvement in trade can be looked for before long.

There is less talk of an increase in discount on paper bags which was being discussed for a time. Manufacturers evidently do not see their way clear to make any change at present. One firm on 10,000 bags quotes discounts of 50, 10, 5, and 2 per cent. Another quote 50, 10, 5 and 3 per cent. on 100,000.

Market on raw cotton is firming again after its period of easiness, but no change has taken place in cotton twine.

Sugar—Sugar market as reflected by movement of raws is not as strong as week ago. Raw market in Europe has declined quite materially from high point of 16s 3¾d to 15s 1½d. The coal strike in England is given as a reason, at least in part, for this easing off, banks under unsettled conditions becoming cautious and refusing to carry speculators. European situation is also not now as stringent for supplies as it appeared some time ago, and it is now estimated that only 150,000 tons from Cuba will be required to complete the U.K. needs of this campaign, a good part of which has already been purchased.

Cuba is also showing up to better advantage of late and New York refiners now supplied for a time ahead are using their powers as much as possible to ease prices. Cuban raws have declined from $4.86 to $4.55.

There is undoubtedly an easier feeling but whether it is only temporary or not remains to be seen. Next buying movement on part of refiners will help to decide that question. Meanwhile, demand from retailers and wholesalers is quiet.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.—One firm manufacturing light colored corn syrup have advanced price on that variety 10 cents per case, making it 35 cents per case higher than the ordinary amber colored instead of 25 cents more as has been case. This has been an excellent winter for sale of syrups and sales continue unabated. One manufacturer states his firm has never caught up with orders since the season commenced and is still behind.

The advance supplies of new maple syrup are expected to make their appearance in a couple of weeks. Meanwhile this is a good maple syrup season and retailers would do well to give prominence to their stocks.

DRIED FRUITS.—Some jobbers report a fair movement of dried fruits. Others note a quiet demand.

While Hallowee dates are reported slightly easier in Montreal, the tendency is, if anything, in other direction here. As reported before, stocks are rather inclined to scantiness here, half boxes verging on a clean up. One pound packages are quoted at 7 cents.

Bosnia prunes are quoted slightly low at 8½ to 9 cents by some firms. Evaps are steady as are also raisins and currants.

TEA.—Contrary to expectations, shipments from Northern India to United Kingdom for first half of February were about half a million pounds more than for same period of 1911, making total shipments to February 23, eleven and a half million lbs. over those of last season. This increase has, however, been cared for. The Ceylon tea market, during February, showed a steady tone, especially for fine and medium varieties.

On local markets, general steadiness is the rule.

COFFEE.—No material change in situation locally or on other markets, "I look for continued steadiness throughout the season," stated a local coffee man." The present Brazilian crop listed to begin to arrive around June 1, is not only short, but lacking in quality in some instances. With the strong statistical position, I do not look for any marked reaction, at least this side of the next crop."

There appears to be a more settled feeling in coffee in New York and buyers are not operating so cautiously as hitherto.

BROOMS.—Broom market remains about the same. Indications for the future do not at least point to lower prices and there are those manufacturers who predict higher values before season has run much longer. Broom corn market is holding steady. One manufacturer states that one car of corn he has on the way is long past due by reason of delayed transportation. He believes what corn is left in south-western states will be spoiled by the unusual storms which have been prevalent there, as the corn is for most part stored in open. With season only nicely started, no new corn being available until October next, he looks for strong market to rule in brooms. With spring housecleaning not far distant, demand for brooms should shortly show more life.

LATE MARKET NEWS.

TORONTO.—Following direction indicated, eggs have continued to ease under increased supplies. The middle of the week found 25 to 27 cents per dozen being quoted, with dealers expecting further easiness probable.

The first car of Florida tomatoes of the season arrived in Toronto this week. They come in crates containing six baskets and will sell at about $5 per crate. Hothouse tomatoes are about at an end.

Two additional firms have announced a general advance of 10 cents per barrel in Manitoba flour, quoting $5.80 per barrel in car load lots.

Mills continue to boost prices on bran and shorts. Several mills have added another $1 per ton during week. Stocks are exceedingly small. Bran is quoted at $25 to $26 per ton in car lots and shorts $2 per ton higher.

CANNED GOODS.

TORONTO.—A normal volume of canned goods is moving from wholesaler to retailer. Consumptive demand as reported by retail trade is brisk. Stocks are being rapidly reduced and jobbers expect a better buying movement to set in before long.

"No, I have not found any big demand for canned salmon since the Lenten season commenced," said one jobber in reply to a query. "Most retailers stock fairly heavy in the fall and their stocks have not been reduced low enough to induce purchasing. There is always a larger demand for canned fish towards latter part of Lent, when handling of frozen fish becomes more difficult."

As has been pointed out before, stocks of lobsters are small, and as last year, a clean up is likely early in the season. Quotations on ½'s is $3.00 per dozen.

Booking for canned goods for this year's pack is already being done, although no prices are being named. It is reported, however, that one firm are guaranteeing that price on tomatoes, peas and corn will be such as to allow of them being retailed at 10 cents.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Syrup—Advanced.

Evaporated Apples—Strong.

Coffee—Steady.

Winnipeg, March 7.—There is little new as far as changes in prices are concerned this week, but all expectations as to activeness of the various lines have been more than fulfilled. The spring rush may be said to be gaining momentum every day, and in short while will be at its height. Wholesale firms are busier than ever, as many have already started with the arrival of the longer and brighter afternoons to close sharp at noon on Saturdays. Orders for late shipments, and advanced orders for summer and fall shipments are being received daily, and indications still point to a record year.

The feeling of the market this week is one of strength, and firmness prevails in all lines. Sugar, which caused the sensation last month, is holding firm, and at present opinions differ as to future movements. Syrup is the only line to show change, which was an advance of ten cents per case for one brand of corn syrup, while corn syrups in general holds steady. Evaporated apples and dried fruits are scarce, and in active demand, and higher prices are looked for daily.

SUGAR.—Situation in sugar is exactly same as it was towards close of last week. The market is steady as far as prices are concerned, and demand appears to have been affected little by the recent advances. As stated above, opinions differ as to future movement, as the local market will, of course, follow the action of the larger markets to the south and east.

SYRUP.—An advance of ten cents per case is reported in one brand of corn syrup. This is a white or clear syrup, as compared with amber color of some. No apparent reason could be secured from wholesalers for this advance, many attributing it to general strength of syrup market during last few weeks.

DRIED FRUIT.—There is absolutely nothing new in dried fruit situation. Same tightness exists regarding one or two lines as published before, but no change has taken place yet. The demand has been steady, and rumors of advances have had little or no effect on the demand for these lines.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, March 7.—Business is fairly good in wholesale grocery lines. Trade is pretty well distributed, but heaviest run appears to be on canned goods. Since Lenten season has arrived there is large increase in sales of canned tomatoes, baked beans in tins, and also catsups. Split peas and beans are also in good demand. There is an active market for all kinds of fresh fish in cans, with exception of halibut, which is a slow seller on this market.

There is good inquiry for dried fruits such as prunes, peaches and apricots. There is not much call yet for evaporated apples, though some excellent stock has been marketed. They are going to the trade at 10½ cents per pound. Prunes are selling from 7½ to 10 cents per pound. Local dealers say that there will probably be an advance of twenty cents per dozen in the price of at least some English pickles, in the near future.

Nova Scotia potatoes have been marked up ten cents per bag to $2.34, but Island stocks still holds at $2.25. Cape Cod cranberries are now selling at $13 per barrel, and Nova Scotia at $8.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKET.

St. John, March 7.—The market during past week has been quiet, but steady, and few changes have been recorded, although all stocks, practically, are firm. Business has been fair for latter part of February, and quite up to general average for this time of year. Local wholesalers are greatly interested in general developments planned for 1912 in this city, as they expect increase in trade to be considerable Flour situation remains unchanged although both flour and oatmeal are decidedly firm. Advices to local grocers are to the effect that flour will be higher. Reports from west are that there are large quantities of wheat beneath the snow, and that much will be totally lost.

Although no change took place this week in molasses, it is reported much easier than for some time, and a further decline is looked for soon, although in sympathy with sugar it is apt to stay solid for a time, at least. Sugar has remained unchanged, and indications according to local advices, are that because of the disappointing returns from the southern colonies in sugar planting, a scarcity or lightness of stocks will prevail.

Large importations of Irish potatoes have been made at this port during last week or so, and this it is thought will continue for some time, because of the general scarcity marked throughout the Dominion. A steamer last Friday brought out another large cargo of potatoes from the Emerald Isle, and most of these were shipped to Montreal market. The price remains unchanged, selling at from $2.50 to $3.

Butter ranges from 30 to 36 cents a pound, and is none too plentiful. It had been thought that market would have been eased by the week-end, but this did not take place.

A HERRING MARGIN-OF-PROFIT PROBLEM.

expense. 12½ per cent. is uncommonly low—I make that statement, also, with the invitation that you "show me" if I am wrong. As for 10 per cent.—well, I know just one man who does so well. I have recently stated his peculiar case in these columns. It was so remarkable that I analyzed it in two articles.

I shall make the statment, for refutation, if there be any to do the refuting, that 15 per cent. is to-day a fair average expense account for the grocer. I shall be just delighted if any of you can show me otherwise.

The summing up is about this way:

The average grocer handles 2,000 items. Each article has its own character, use and weakness as a profit-earner. Without having gone over the ground myself, I accept the statement of one very well posted grocer that 40 per cent. to 45 per cent. of those articles do not pay a margin sufficient to cover the average expense account. Thus, the remaining 55 per cent. or 60 per cent. must pay much more than the average margin, or we shall fail.

Get Benefit of Every Doubt.

These being the conditions, we must adopt the plan of giving ourselves the benefit of every doubt in the fixing of margins in respect of all goods wherein we have any choice. This because of the fact that custom has decreed that nearly half of our goods must be sold on a margin less than the cost of doing business.

And this must be our rule of action until such time as our business is so completely reduced to a science that we shall know just what it costs to handle each separate item. Then we can just as scientifically fix and demand a corresponding margin.

Meantime, sell the Herrings at 35c the Dozen!

Several Mills Advance Flour Prices

To Extent of 10c Per Barrel in Manitoba Flour—Others Maintain Prices at Old Figure—Some Undecided—Wheat at Bay Ports Reaches Record for 1911 Crop—Considerable Flour Booked Ahead—Feed Scarce and High.

During the week several mills announced an advance of 10 cents per barrel in Manitoba flour. This upward move has not, however, been general, a number still maintaining prices at old figure.

Millers are not working in unison apparently. While as stated above, some have advanced prices, others state flatly that they will leave their quotations unchanged. Others appear to be undecided whether they will follow the upward move or not. One mill has raised prices east of Montreal only. "We are considering a general advance, however," one of their representatives stated. "In fact," it was finally admitted, "we are quite likely to advance prices in general."

"I see that some of the millers have announced a change in Manitoba flour," The Grocer stated to representative of one manufacturer.

"Which way, up or down?" was the answer, to whom the change was news. Such an answer would leave the impression that it was doubtful whether the upward move was warranted. It was pointed out that wheat at bay ports had reached the high water mark for 1911 crop.

"Yes, that is correct," he replied, "but values at bay ports can hardly be taken as a gauge to the market. That wheat is in few hands and values may easily be raised. The Winnipeg May wheat market is just about at same level as when the last advance took place in flour in October. Wheat can be brought from Winnipeg, all rail, cheaper than it can be obtained at bay ports."

Another miller admitted the above. "But," said he, "the trouble is to get the wheat here from Winnipeg. It takes a long time with the present congested conditions."

"I understand," said another, "that some mills have advanced prices, but we will not."

"Do you think the wheat market warrants it?" he was queried.

"Yes, I think the wheat market warranted it some time ago, but I think that it is a piece of folly on the part of those mills who are raising prices now."

"One mill I know of have had their travelers out getting retailers to book up because prices were going to advance. They have loaded the people up, and now they raise the price to give the idea to purchasers that they bought wisely."

MONTREAL.

FLOUR.—Several mills have advanced prices 10 cents per barrel this week. All millers have not, however, taken part in the upward movement.

FLOUR.—On Wednesday morning a number of mills announced an advance of 10 cents per barrel in Manitoba flour, bringing it up to $5.60 per barrel in car lots. This advance, however, was not general, several mills still maintaining prices at the lower figure. Others seem to be swinging in the balance, undecided whether they will follow the upward move of the other mills or not.

Taken on the basis of Manitoba wheat at bay ports, it looks as if the flour advance was the sequel to upward move which has brought wheat to-day to highest level recorded for the 1911 crop. However, the fact is pointed out by one miller that this can hardly be taken as a gauge. He points out that wheat at Winnipeg has not moved in unison with that at bay ports.

Trade in flour is fair for the season. There has been considerable sold ahead. Offerings of Ontario flour are noted a little freer.

FEED.—Bran and shorts, and, in fact, all feeds continue scarce, with prices strengthening. One firm quotes Manitoba bran in car lots at $25, and shorts at $27. Another mill quotes $26 and $28 per ton for these lines. Most mills require dealers to take certain percentage of flour in each carload. One miller requires 150 bags of flour to be taken with each carload.

Vegetables are Both Scarce and Dear

Supplies of Many Lines Well to an End—Marked Scarcity of Canadian Onions, Carrots and Parsnips—Spanish Onions Show Considerable Increase in Value — Grapefruit Continues Firm—Some Cuban Stock in More Desirable Sizes Now Coming Forward.

The scarcity and high prices of vegetables are perhaps the outstanding features of the market. Indications for some time, and indeed since early last fall, have pointed to the fact that time would come when some lines of vegetables would be practically unobtainable. Already this condition is being approached at some Canadian centres.

Scarcity of home-grown onions has been evident for some time. Nor can stocks be brought in from the United States to afford relief as is usual at this time because values are high there as well. The result has been a heavy strain on Spanish onions which, combined with rather light stocks in Spain, has worked for higher prices on this line. Values on primary markets have advanced about 75 cents per case in past three weeks, with an upward move in prices here in consequence.

Carrots and parsnips are in extremely scanty supply, at least at a great many centres. The same condition exists to a considerable degree in cabbage, beets and kindred lines. Celery continues scarce and high. Northern California is expected to begin shipping a little stock in a couple of weeks. The advent of Florida stock on market generally eases prices somewhat but this year has been an exception to the rule, as for the season of year the total amount of celery being offered is extremely small.

The amount of Florida grapefruit has been limited all through the season. Prices have been high and still continue firm. Some Cuban stock is now coming along and in more desirable sizes, running from 64's to 80's, while major portion of Florida has been 46's to 54's. The marmalade orange season is getting well to an end. Navels and Floridas are selling fairly well.

Further imports of Irish potatoes have been made. The general market is ruling fairly steady. New Brunswick dealers state that supplies in that province are not large enough to weaken the situation. There is considerable stock resting in farmers' pits which the spring will bring forth, but some state that while this may be true in an odd locality, that it is by no means general.

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUITS.—Little movement has taken place in this market on account of the recent heavy snow storms and cold weather, which has greatly affected shipments and caused many delays.

The orange demand is steadily increasing notwithstanding the limited supplies and held up imports.

Tangerines now offer a scarcity and only change in price on the market for the week. They are now selling at $6 and may still go higher.

GREEN FRUITS.—There is a fair movement of fruits reported. Last shipment of marmalade oranges has been received and this week will see stocks well to an end. Eating oranges are meeting with fair demand.

Grapefruit under strength previously noted has moved another notch upward for Florida stock. There is some Jamaica fruit on market while some Cuban is also coming along in desirable sizes. Prices on latter will rule about same as Florida.

Cranberries are coming to end of their tether. English hot house grapes are firmer and higher.

VEGETABLES. — Strength in vegetables is not anything new. Special stress was laid on the fact last week that stocks were small and prices likely on many lines to continue on the ascent. Parsnips and carrots are particularly scarce, many dealers having practically none to offer. The prevailing price this week is $1.75 per bag on these two lines. Cabbage following last week's indications are quoted higher at $3 to $3.50 per barrel, stocks being small.

The trade has been made well acquainted with the situation in home grown onions which are extremely scarce and consequently high in price. The amount that could be brought together in Toronto would be small. The strong market on Valencia onions was pointed out

Fruit Makes Attractive Displays

And Brings Customers Into the Store—How Window in Accompanying Illustration Was Dressed—Cost of Fixtures—Frequent Changes Made.

There are unlimited possibilities in dressing fruit windows. Certain dealers depend entirely on their displays for getting people into the store, and, of course, they must give close study to the window's selling properties.

The accompanying illustration is a window shown by P. Frank, corner Church and Carlton Streets, Toronto, and one that sold a large quantity of goods. The cone-shaped arrangements were made from three pieces of wood covered over with imported moss. Boxes of apples resting on the corners of the boxes, making diamond shaped designs, are shown at the bottom of triangles. The sides of one is covered with grapes and dainty boxes of confectionery fill the intervening space. The other triangle is similarly constructed, with the exception that apples are used instead of grapes up the sides.

Between the triangles there are evergreen trees, which do not show up well in the picture. Apples are tied to the limbs of these, making an attractive background. Two pretty little baskets hang at either side of the window filled with choice fruits. In the bottom of the window may be seen four pots, from which wheat is sprouting. This is only used as a decoration, as are also ferns and palms. There are also figs, dates, apples and candy on the bottom.

Cost of Fixtures.

Mr. Frank states that the fixtures and decorations used cost him about $50. As they can be rearranged many times and the cost divided over many displays, this cost doesn't fall heavily on any one window. His windows are always models of attractiveness, and bring many buyers into the store for groceries, as well as fruit. He has also a soda fountain.

No window is allowed to remain intact for long. They are frequently changed, and the changes bring customers back again and again.

Fish Demand Continues Unabated

Thanks to Favorable Weather — Record Trade Being Transacted—Fish Can be Handled Now With Minimum Expense and Trouble—Some Lines Beginning to Show Scarcity — General Market Expected to Rule Steady to Firm.

Thanks to weather man, there has so far been nothing to mar Lenten trade in fish. Now well entered upon the Lenten season, demand is at its height, with good volume of business still to be transacted before the curtain is rung down on the busy season.

As has been said, weather conditions continue extremely favorable. They have been ever since latter part of December. Fish of all kinds can be handled with minimum expense and trouble, and this has been an important factor in encouraging retailers to push this line. Sales have been made easy by reason of the high values ruling for other food commodities. The result has been record trade during past two months, and when figures are summed up for the season, they are expected to be exceedingly gratifying to wholesaler and retailer alike.

The big demand is already beginning to make itself felt in number of lines of prepared, smoked and pickled varieties, which are being marked off the list. This is more apparent at some points than others, and the lines in scant supply also vary at different centres.

There is not expected to be same abundance of supplies towards end of Lent that has been known in some other years, and general markets are expected to rule steady to firm. There is the possible exception that dealers at some centres may find themselves carrying larger stocks on some one line that they would desire, but the number of such lines will be few.

QUEBEC.

MONTREAL.—"Trade is still booming," was the way one wholesale dealer put it when asked the condition of the market. The Lenten demand continues in all its briskness, and as yet no signs of easing off are perceptible. The extremely heavy demand, however, is beginning to tell, and as result new green No. 1 and skinless cods, Labrador sea trout, Scotia herring, B. C. salmon and Labrador salmon are almost, if not altogether, out of the market. A few changes in price have varied the situation.

The market has seen the last of Malpeque oysters, which have been ranging high of late. This can be accounted for by the cold weather at the beginning of the season.

ONTARIO.

TORONTO.—We are now in the very midst of the Lenten season, the period of brisk demand. Weather conditions are extremely favorable. It is no wonder then that a good, brisk trade is being done in all varieties of fish. Dealers are all well satisfied with volume of demand, and there are those who state that up to the present time, this season's trade has been record one, and compares most favorably with last and preceding years.

Frozen fish are selling well, as are also smoked. Pickled varieties do not appear, however, to be doing so well. Some local houses report that stocks of sea herrings are practically to an end. Halibut and white fish are favorites in demand. Ciscoes have good sale, as have also Finnan Haddie. Interest in oysters is not quite so keen as earlier in the season.

Prices are expected to rule steady to firm, with possible exception of some lines, on which certain dealers may find themselves carrying too large stocks. These lines will be few in number, much fewer, indeed, than last year. Several lines already show indications of scarcity as the season advances. Special mention is made by one dealer of halibut and salmon.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

ST. JOHN.—Aided by fairly mild weather, fish dealers throughout the city during past week have been encouraged with run of trade, through a fairly plentiful supply of fish of most kinds. Prices have remained about same in all lines, and the demand was up to average for this period of the Lenten season.

NOVA SCOTIA.

HALIFAX.—Business is brisk in local fish trade. There is fairly good supply of stock on the market.

The market is practically bare of live lobsters. There is a marked decrease in catch of lobsters along the coast, the smallest for many years. Shipments to the United States market are only about one quarter what they usually are.

There was marketed during past ten days a magnificent lot of smoked salmon. These fish had been salted, were recently taken out of pickle, then dried and freshly smoked.

A Strong Evaporated Apple Situation

Belief of Men Interested That Few Car Loads are Left in the Country—High Prices of Other Goods Added to Demand—Not Much Relief to be Looked for.

Montreal, March 7—(Special)—The situation at present in evaporated apples is thoroughly interesting, and the probable trend of events is arousing a speculative spirit, as recent increases in the prices of various food stuffs, notably butter, canned salmon, prunes, etc., will mean a dropping off in the consumption of some of them by the poorer classes, and an extra demand for evaporated apples.

Will the supply be sufficient to meet the demand? This is a question to which no definite answer can be given, but indications at time of writing point strongly to a scarcity, and consequently, still higher prices. Indeed, many prominent dealers have no hesitation whatsoever in stating that a higher level will be reached and that not before many weeks have elapsed.

Little Relief in Sight.

While the United States apple crop was satisfactory, Canada did not show up any too well in her production, with the result that there was not such a large quantity as usual for evaporation, nor can much relief be expected from outside sources, as Cuban grown apples were exported extensively in barrels, with results readily apparent.

There seems to be no sign of any decrease in prices, because the stocks in the country at present, which are admittedly low, must satisfy consumption until the beginning of November next.

Not Many in Canada.

It looks as if someone is going to make a few dollars from evaps., and the chances are most rosy if we are to place absolute confidence in the belief of a dealer who expressed himself positively thus: "I don't believe there are thirty-five carloads in Canada at the present minute."

WEIGHT OF PECK OF POTATOES

If Buyer Simply Asks for a "Peck," is He Entitled to Receive 15 Pounds?

Editor Canadian Grocer,—Kindly answer the following in an early issue of your paper:

Is a customer legally entitled to 15 pounds in a peck of potatoes?

I had a recent dispute on the matter. I measured a peck, which failed to weigh 15 pounds. However, as the measure was a just one, and I had given fair measure, I claimed I had given a peck anyway, as a peck was a measure and not a weight.

It is so generally understood by the trade and public alike that 15 pounds of potatoes are a peck, that no doubt it is policy to give it. but I would like to know if it is breaking the law to sell less than 15 pounds for a peck.

Thanking you for any information you may give.

STEELTON GROCER.

March 1, 1912.

Editorial Note.—From the Inspection and Sale Act passed some years ago by the Dominion Parliament it would seem that when a customer asks for a "peck of potatoes" he is entitled to 15 pounds. Under the heading "Weight of Bushel," which appears in Part X. of the Act, we find the following: "In contract for the sale and delivery of any of the undermentioned articles, the bushel shall be determined by weighing, unless a bushel by measure is specially agreed upon." Following this is a list of articles with weight of bushel following each, including potatoes.

It would, therefore, appear that unless a bushel "by measure" is specifically stated the buyer would be entitled to receive 60 pounds, or 15 to the peck.

AN IRISH POTATO WINDOW.

Jno. Blood, a Yonge Street, Toronto, grocer, is noted among other things for original window displays. Last week he had an Irish window, which not only caught the fancies of passers-by, but sold goods. In it were nothing but a couple of boxes of potatoes. They were Irish potatoes, and Mr. Blood placed an Irish "Erin-go-Bragh" green flag in each. It was a simple method of announcing to those passing that the potatoes came from Irish soil, and it sold the goods.

Produce & Provisions

Pushing Provisions for Easter Trade

Wholesalers Interesting Retailers in Hams and Bacon for Easter Trade—Retailers Would Do Well to Anticipate Wants Early—Eggs on the Decline—Canadian Production on the Increase—Butter Holds Steady—Imports from United States Still Continue.

With close of Lent four weeks distant, wholesalers are preparing for increased demand on pork products, which will naturally follow. Wholesalers are now beginning to interest retailers in hams, bacon and other lines for Easter trade. Retail dealers would do well to early anticipate their wants in this regard. By placing their orders early they thus make sure of delivery at time they require the goods.

Consumptive demand for provisions is naturally not brisk. One redeeming feature is good demand for lard, induced by high values for butter. Wholesalers report that stocks of lard are being kept closely cleaned up. Fairbank's circular shows the world's visible lard supply on March 1 to be 331,369 tierces, as compared with 294,449 on February 1, and 144,546 tierces on March 1 last.

Receipts of live hogs have been lighter of late, with values firmer. The trade has been inclined to believe lighter movement was due more to weather conditions, which have been unfavorable for transportation rather than to falling off in willingness of the country to sell hogs.

Eggs, as was pointed out could be expected, have declined during week, and same movement will likely continue. Amount that has had to be brought from the United States to supply the demand has decreased considerably, indeed, nearly altogether at some points. The Canadian yield has become a factor in supply earlier than was anticipated a week ago. during the heavy snow storm period the Canadian hen was apparently more industrious than she was given credit for, and with better roads, amount of new laids coming to market has shown a goodly increase. With values across the line lower, and the production increasing here, further easing is naturally looked for.

Butter values remain steady. Here, the Canadian production has shown no increase, and imports from across the line have been free, in order to supply demand. Unless situation in the United States changes, indications are for values to remain fairly steady, until Canadian yield commences to show its usual spring increase.

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS.—Situation as regards provisions is much the same. Consumptive demand is seasonably good, and met with favorable supply. The high and steady price of butter has increased lard sales, and under these conditions no easing off in price can be looked forward to.

Hogs offer the only interesting feature of the week. Prices advanced last week, owing to the temporary scarcity, but are easing off somewhat again this week.

BUTTER.—Butter values are resting steady at last week's level. There has been no change in general situation, importations of supplies from New Zealand and United States, as pointed out last week, having steadying effect. Canadian storage stocks have been cleaned up, as has been known for some time. Canadian production is light. One wholesaler states that three cars of United States butter have come to Toronto in past week. Providing there are no important changes in situation in United States, Canadian market can be expected to rule fairly steady, until Canadian production begins to show the usual spring ncrease.

EGGS.—Easing off in egg prices, which we have pointed out past two weeks, was to be expected. Values during week have been on decline and end is not yet. Canadian production has become a factor in supply earlier than was anticipated. It was expected that the weather would have to moderate considerably before there would be much Canadian hen fruit come forward. Apparently, however, while heavy snow storms were blackading the roads, the hen in many sections was providing a surprise for the market by an increased yield. Better roads have brought forward larger supplies.

Values on the whole are steady. There is a fair movement.

POULTRY.—Receipts of poultry include some dressed and some alive. Market rules about the same. There is more call for poultry at end of week, probably for the Sunday dinner, and better market rules at that time. Country shippers should, therefore, try to send their supplies along on Thursday or Friday.

Is Butter Better Than it Was in the Past?

Correspondent Thinks it is Inferior, But Opinions of Wholesale Provision Dealers Differ—Country Merchant Sells Creamery Butter Finding Little Sale for Dairy Article.

Editor Canadian Grocer,—On page 37 of The Grocer, of February 23, there is an article regarding high butter. The writer is under the impression that the butter we get now is not as good generally speaking as it was some years ago. Perhaps you have some information by which you could convince him of his mistake, and the writer personally would be interested to know.

WHOLESALER.

Hamilton, Ont.

The contention in the article in question was that the general improvement in the quality of butter had much to do with the high price. It was pointed out that the fairly well-to-do consumer who finds poor butter on his table, spreads it as thin as possible, but when it is good, he spreads it thick. The question, however, is whether butter has improved or not in quality in recent years.

Cannot be Compared.

No doubt it is a debatable question, because it is next thing to impossible to absolutely prove that there has been an improvement. There is no basis on which butter can be really compared, except by individual tastes, and these are liable to differ. Then, again, we haven't the butter of five years ago to compare with that made to-day. We can depend to quite an extent, however, on the opinions of those who have been in close touch with this article for years past. Summing up the ideas of a number of butter dealers interviewed by The Grocer, it would seem quite safe to say that on the whole, butter has shown an improvement in recent years.

Creamery Butter Better.

"If you include creamery butter, the sale of which is steadily on the increase," said one Canadian wholesale provision dealer, "I would say that butter has, on the whole, improved considerably in recent years. There is, however, a lot of rather inferior dairy butter produced. Still, I am rather inclined to believe that generally even dairy butter is better than several years ago. While women may be deteriorating as bakers of bread, I think that the farmer's wife is improving as a maker of that which is spread on it. Why shouldn't they, too, with all the improved methods which have been given them in late years?"

Another wholesaler thought decidedly that butter had improved in quality. "Not many years ago there was little creamery butter made. Every farm wife, no matter whether she was accomplished in the work or not, made her cream into butter. The fact was that many were poor butter makers, and a lot of inferior butter was the result. Now, the farmer's wife who can't make good butter in many instances sends her cream to the creamery, where a superior article is turned out."

Much Better Chances Now.

"To say that butter has shown no improvement in late years," said another, "would be tendering a poor compliment to the farmers' societies and agricultural departments of our Governments, who have been laboring for a number of years to assist the farmer in turning out a higher standard of butter. Farmers have been taught to use improved methods and take more care with their butter, the fact being held up that good butter not only brings a higher price, but a larger consumption."

Higher Quality Selling.

A country general merchant approached on the subject said that he sold a larger percentage of good eating butter than he used to. "I used to sell dairy butter entirely," he said. "We used to get good and bad, a good deal of it bad, Gradually the farmers in the country around here began sending their milk to cheese factories, and their butter to butter factories, so that much less dairy butter was made. Then I began selling considerable creamery butter to my customers. The creamery article was generally pretty good, so that I found it almost impossible to sell dairy for eating purposes. Customers don't want butter unless it is really good."

The opinions thus expressed would seem to indicate that the Canadian consumer is buttering his bread with a superior article to that of years ago. However, it is just possible that those men interviewed may have been more fortunate than others in their butter problems. The opinions of others would be appreciated.

Grocers: There is some difference in everything, and this is especially true of baking powder. The important difference is Quality. Baking powder containing alum (or its various aliases) is condemned by food scientists as unfit for use in foods. Magic Baking Powder does not contain alum. All the ingredients are plainly printed on the label. The ingredients of alum baking powder are never printed on the label. Buy only the kinds that state this information plainly.

Talking to the Point

CLASSIFIED WANT ADS get right down to the point at issue. If you want something, say so in a few well-chosen words. Readers like that sort of straight-from-the-shoulder-talk, and that is the reason why condensed ads are so productive of the best kind of results.

CLASSIFIED WANT ADS are always noticed. They are read by wide-awake, intelligent dealers, who are on the look out for favorable opportunities to fill their requirements.

An Accounting System that Inspires Confidence

You have often thought, no doubt, that you would like to abolish your credit business; not that you don't get a good percentage of accounts, but simply because it entails too much work—time that you would devote to more profitable business uses had you not to do that work.

Why work, work overtime, when the remedy is at hand

THE "BARR" ACCOUNT REGISTER

The only proper, speedy and safe means of handling credit accounts—a device that is incomparably superior to any that has ever been offered on this or any other market.

The practical working out of the one-writing account system has demonstrated beyond a doubt that itemizing, that drudgery of retail bookkeeping, is a useless waste of time and labor.

The total or balance of every customer's accounts is always at hand. Everything is above board—a fact that inspired confidence—and confidence brings trade.

Ask us to demonstrate the superiority of the Barr for your particular needs.

You can sell and honestly recommend the SHIRRIFF EXTRACTS. They will give your customers the greatest satisfaction, being purer, stronger and more true in flavor than any other make.

It stands to reason that if you hand a confiding customer a trashy extract, she will buy that commodity somewhere else next time. And while she is buying that, she will most likely order something else if your competitor is wide-awake—as he most likely will be.

More Than Ninety Flavors

More Than Ninety Flavors

ALL SHIRRIFF'S EXTRACTS are best in their line, but the greatest success of all is

Shirriff's TRUE VANILLA

Made from the real Mexican vanilla bean, it has the true vanilla flavor. This flavor is almost unknown now, because of hundreds of chemical concoctions on the market under the name of "vanilla."

So, if you sell SHIRRIFF'S TRUE VANILLA, you will be giving your customers an extract that will be a revelation to them.

You will please them and add to their confidence in the goods you sell, generally.

WE GIVE YOU A GOOD PROFIT ON EACH SALE WITHOUT LOWERING OUR STANDARD OF QUALITY.

"A Bird in the Hand," Etc.

And we all know the remainder of that old saying—"Is Better than two in the Bush." This saying can be adopted wonderfully well in placing a stock in a grocery store. The moral we may gain is to stock only goods of known quality, goods that will sell readily; and is not that going to pay you better than putting in a stock of goods of questionable character, that linger so long on your shelves, that value has depreciated sufficiently to wipe off any profit you may have had in view?

The goods of KNOWN QUALITY that will positively give you a quick turnover are:

Griffin & Skelley's Canned Fruits

Picked by skillful hands, chosen by ever-watchful eyes, packed in the Factory of Precision—the best that Dollars and Cents and Brains and Sense can offer particular folks.

Canned Asparagus, Apricots, Peaches, Pears, Cherries, Plums and other wanted table fruits. Quality Goods!

Coco Fruitine or Vegetable Butter

An absolutely pure extract of the cocoanut. Superior to butter or lard or oil for cooking and doubly economical, because so very rich. Tasteful, healthful, nourishing.

New to you, perhaps, but not to England, where it enjoys enormous sales. "Quality Goods."

Wonder Fly Killer

Not a Fly Catcher, But a Fly Killer and Exterminator

A recent article written by a health expert on the fly, had for its part:—"The danger of health is greatest in parts of the city where sanitary precautions are most neglected; but even if you live in a comparatively well-cared for part of the town, do not receive the fly as a harmless visitor, for he may come in a carriage or on horseback from the filthiest spot in the city."

To-day's Popular Food!

What were considered common foodstuffs of a short time ago have soared so in the present day that they are almost eliminated from the daily table. In their place may be found beans---baked beans. Through the soaring process of other foods stood pat, and therefore are exceedingly popular among all classes. But it is not this price business that their popularity is indebted to, but rather the exceedingly fine flavor and good quality---cooked just right and flavored exactly. Every day the public are increasing the call for baked beans. For you to satisfy the most fastidious of your trade---stock "Simcoe Brand." From the first day the case is opened, there are steady sales at profits that will please you.

"Simcoe" Brand Baked Beans

Dealer Threatened With a Revolver

Woman Who Owed Him Account First Used the Broom—Merchants Tell of Debt Collecting Troubles—Want Change In Garnishee Law—Pushing Articles on Which Profit is Fair—General Discussion on Trade Matters.

Whenever grocers are gathered together, it is only natural that they talk of experiences which they encounter in their business, as well as vent their ideas on business subjects.

Discussion in this particular case had drifted to the possibility of forestalling the dead beat by one dealer being willing to exchange information with another regarding customers in order to prevent them from running up bills at several stores.

From One Town to Another.

"This information can be exchanged to good advantage even by dealers in different towns," broke in one dealer.

"A new family recently moved into our town and requested credit from me. I enquired where they came from and with who they had been dealing. I gave them credit while I wrote to their former dealer enquiring as to their credit. He answered immediately that 'if the man kept sober he was good pay.' Thus I was put on my guard, and knew when to draw the strings.

An Ill-Kept Home.

"A grocer can gauge a person's credit pretty well by appearances," commented another. "I visited the house of a new customer to whom I was giving credit. Although the man was making good money, the furniture in the house was scanty. I came to the conclusion that he wouldn't be reliable. Afterwards I learned he was addicted to the habit of drinking as well as being imprompt in settling his grocery bills.

"When pay day came and my bill had not been paid, I made a visit to their home. I got no farther than the door. The husband was out but his better half was much in evidence. She met me at the door. Apparently she resented my friendly call and much more so when I made known my mission. She swung the broom freely and with deadly intent to injure.

Threatened to Shoot.

"'Get out of here,' she commanded, 'or I'll put holes in you,' at this she departed into the house, apparently in search of some more deadly instrument than a broom. Her sister who was there at the time, advised me to leave, saying she would try to get the husband to settle the bill. I went and the bill was after all paid."

Want Change in Garnishee Law.

"We certainly need the garnishee law changed," came from another; "it is a rank injustice to the merchant at the present time. When the law was passed requiring that $25 be left to the person garnisheed, wages were paid mostly by the month, so that it was satisfactory to the merchant. But now, wages are paid by the week in many cases, and semi-monthly in others, and the $25 restriction is too much."

"And you can't scare them," put in another, "by threatening to garnishee, for these dead beats know the law just as well as the merchant."

There was some trouble in collecting this account.

Selling Goods With Profit.

Conversation switched to the dealer's power to sell the brand of goods he wishes. Several present gave instances in which they had turned the demand to something just as good and on which they made a better margin of profit.

"There was a certain brand of tea," remarked one dealer, "on which the price was raised, leaving but a small margin of profit. I told my clerks to sell anything else but that brand, providing the quality was just as good. At the end of the first day one of my clerks informed me that he had switched six customers from that tea to another."

"I find that most regular customers will purchase what I recommend," said another. "Many a customer will come in and ask 'which brand would you advise me to take?'"

Buying Paper Bags.

One grocer wanted the opinion of the rest on whether it would be profitable to purchase 100,000 paper bags because he got one per cent. more discount than on 10,000. Most of those present were of the opinion that it would be no saving to buy the larger amount by reason of the extra one per cent.

"I pay 60 cents per thousand more," one commented, "to have my ad. printed on my bags. I think it is a good method of keeping a person's name before the public."

"EASY-ON-THE-PURSE" GOODS.

A window in a Quebec town that recently attracted some attention, as well as extra business was named: "Goods which are easiest on the purse."

Along the front was a long tray containing beans with the price per lb. Back of this were three trays, containing rice, rolled oats and rolled wheat with price cards attached. The background was built up of table syrup with a show card, "Butter is dear—use syrup." Flanking the display on one side was a pyramid of tomatoes inscribed with: "The-fresh-off-the-vine flavor," while on the other canned pumpkin similarly built up with a card: "What about pumpkin pie?"

GRAIN MEN COMPLAIN.

Eastern millers are objecting to charges made by lake port elevators for storage on grain after shipping instructions have been given. They want the responsibility for storage to cease within ten days after filing shipping instructions. One grain man says that grain ordered shipped by him in December still lies in the elevator, and that he has received a bill for $3,800, accumulated storage charges, that he never figured on when he sold the grain. They will petition Dominion Government for redress.

Good Ad. Copy Needed to Get Results

Something Specific Necessary to Hold the Attention—Samples of General Talks Which are Not Strong Business Getters—Time of Year to Use Liberal Space.

By A. H. McKay.

Too many retailers are disposed to follow along the lines of least resistance. But it remains a fact that the dealers who have made strong efforts to bring trade to their stores are those who are making the best successes.

This time of year is generally regarded as a quiet season in comparision to others. Efforts and plans should be made to turn it into a brisk selling season and one of the best methods is to use newspaper space and use it correctly.

The value of a window display does not depend on the number of articles that can be got into it. The same applies to an advertisement. One point brought out clearly and plainly is better than a dozen touched on the surface.

..Our..

Receives Our Special ..Care..

We aim to give only the best goods at popular prices.

The stock being renewed every week ensures freshness that cannot otherwise be secured.

If you are not a customer of ours give us a trial.

We are sure we can please you both in quality and price; as well as good services.

J.G. McGowan & Co.

Too general. Something definite tends to bring results.

A case in point is the advertisement of McClelland's appearing here. The original space occupied was 4½ in.x4½ in. in dimensions—room for a fairly good announcement. But notice the copy used:

"Pruning shears, pruning saws and clippers, long and short handles," and

Apples, Apples

OWING to the recent cold snap which lessened our sale of Apples, we find we have a few barrels too many on hand for this season of the year.

In order to reduce our stock to the required amount we have decided to sell until further notice as follows

Choice Greenings a bbl. $4.50
Good Cooking Apples, 7 lbs. 25c
Or 30 lbs. for - - $1.00

We only have 15 bbls to sell at these prices so get busy and get your share

D. A. NICOL

An ad. that should bring business. Outside border detracts from ad. itself.

"Our oysters, haddies, kippers and cod are fresh arrived."

Goods With No Connection.

This is a poorly written advertisement and not likely to bring many returns. In the first place shears and saws are not associated with oysters or haddies and, therefore, there is no excuse for mentioning them in practically the same breath. An advertisement should be written in the same conversational manner the dealer would use face to face with a customer. If such is the case one would scarcely term the McClelland ad. a good one. Better give the entire space one day to fish and say for instance:—"A change of diet your family will like," as a heading, and follow up with, "First quality oysters, fresh and not water-soaked, per pint, 30 cents," etc., giving prices in each case. The following day give the space to shears and clippers if you wish, but not the two together.

Regular and Special Prices.

The advertisement of Murdoch & Wilson, Virden, Man., deserves commendation. The writer of it compares special prices announced by a Winnipeg dealer with his regular quotations and shows them both to be the same. This is splendid material to discourage mail order business in small places, and Murdoch & Wilson are to be congratulated on their enterprize. This is the kind of advertising that places confidence in the home merchant and every dealer should make it a point to use something like this frequently.

Something Specific Necessary.

The trouble with the J. J. McGowan & Co. (Treherne, Man.,) copy is that the talk is too general. Let us suppose the writer of this advertisement is selling goods to a customer. Would he make the statements he has in the ad., or would he say, "This is a splendid line of preserves we have just received; the manufacturer is thoroughly reliable and we can recommend it; the price is 25c.," etc.?

What is needed in every ad. is at least one specific line mentioned with something about its value and the price. If the space is large enough it might be portioned off into sections, each given up to a particular line. Almost any one of the statements made in the McGowan & Co. ad. would make a fairly good heading.

Murdoch & Wilson

Phone 87. Cor. 7th Ave. and Nelson St.

This is the sort of newspaper advertising that discourages mail order business.

Take Care With Borders.

The Apple advertisement used by D. A. Nichol, Whitehood, Sask., is well written and should bring good returns.

A more striking heading might have been used such as "Where the cold snap helps you," and followed up with the present wording. The listing of prices is a good feature and makes the selling power of the ad. more effective.

The border, however, is rather black and will to a certain extent detract from the ad. itself. By using plain, narrow black border with plenty of white space about the copy, one will never go wrong. Best printers nowadays do not use the heavy meaningless borders. A special border design appropriate for the goods or store is of course a different thing.

Copy should be plain, conversational, in ordinary every-day store language and it should be set up with some care.

The kind of advertising that should not be used.

Mineral Waters Offer Good Opportunities

There is Large Business to be Done in This Line, if Proper Attention is Given—Such Goods Can be Easily Sold by Displays—Preparations Should be Made Early for Spring Trade.

By O. S. Johnston.

Perhaps you wonder why attention is drawn to mineral and aerated waters. Perhaps you look upon these goods as belonging to the ice cream parlor or confectionery, etc., store. If so, why should you? Why shouldn't you sell soft drinks just as well as your Grecian friend down the street?

Reason this out, Mr. Grocer. Your customers may not ask you for a dozen bottles of soda water or a similar quantity of lemonade, but the mere fact that they do not ask you offers no strong reason for your believing that they will not purchase them.

Must be Stocked to be Sold.

If you had a few bottles of quality minerals around your store and in prominent positions, you would undoubtedly catch a number of your customers either looking at them or examining them. At that very time, then, you have a favorable opportunity to do a little selling work, and surely you can give one hundred and one sound reasons why your customers would find it convenient to have a few bottles. When your clientele realize that you are out to meet their every requirement, in fact, anticipate their wants, you may rest assured that your name is going to be used thus: "Oh, Mr. —— will have that, he seems to have everything we want."

Now, don't you think that your business as a grocer, your advertisement which says "everything for the household," both make it your duty to have those lines at hand for which you expect a demand and for which you find it possible to create a demand?

Creating a Demand.

Now, these three words, "create a demand," are frequently used by retailers, not only in the grocery, bnt in practically every other business, during interviews granted travelers. The traveler is gently told, most politely at times, to see that the consumer is sent to his store to ask for the goods and then an order will be sent through for supplies. It certainly is quite satisfactory to be asked for a new line, but you must agree you are admitting inability to sell, acknowledging a lack of creative salesmanship when you say "start a demand first."

Provided you are convinced of the quality of a certain line, provided the article is one which you faithfully believe in salable and satisfactory, you can sell it, yes, you can sell it if you make up your mind to do so. The manufacturer is as eager to see his goods take a permanent hold on the market as you are to see your business improve daily, and he will give you help in various ways. But if you insist on him spending a large sum on getting the housewife to your store, you may cut away part of the profit. In other words, you may pay a few cents to secure a sale which could well be put in your cash box and turned to good advantage. And some manufacturers with splendid lines are not in a position to enter on large consumer advertising and demonstration campaigns all of a sudden.

Displays Will Sell Goods.

Supposing you had a neat stand with three or four shelves or rungs standing in the centre of your store, carrying samples of eight or nine different drinks, such as soda water, lemonade, ginger ale, lime juice, cream soda, etc., don't you think that the neat arrangement and color effect would create a desire and lead to sales? Certainly it would. The order could easily be filled from a stock kept in a cool corner in your store room and money be made easily.

Where Service Paid.

An instance of poor and good service came to the writer's attention quite recently. A new mineral water was placed on the market by a well-known firm, and a fairly up-to-date grocer was asked for it. The customer was told: "No, I have not got it, sir, but I can give you ——." "No," said the customer, "if I had wanted that I would have asked for it. I want——." Now, that grocer never said, "I'll get it in," but simply let the prospective buyer leave the store fully convinced that he would not find it of much benefit to deal there, and determined to call on a more wide-awake man. He did so, but found the goods wanting in the second store also; but the clerk expressed a desire to supply him, and made it his business to have the required quantity at the man's house within a reasonable time. He was awake to new accounts, and has won extra business, and finds repeat orders. "Vouloir c'est pouvoir," that's all. Of course, profit must be considered in such cases.

Spring is coming rapidly and the summer, the season when a big trade should be yours, if you muster your forces and prepare a campaign for mineral waters. Later on instances will be given of what others have done with these goods, what selling methods they have adopted, and perhaps instances such as these will prove conclusively that any goods can be sold provided they are of a good class and the proper force is put behind them.

Criticizes Agitation to Form Association

Member of Grocers' Section of R. M. A. Thinks an Ontario Retail Grocers' Organization Unnecessary—Tells of What the R. M. A. Has Done and Attempted—Weight of Bag of Potatoes.

The Editor, Canadian Grocer,—As chairman of the provincial committee of the "grocers' section" of "the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada," will you allow me a little space in your columns to say a word in reference to the agitation on the part of some retail grocers, who seem to think that there is something not right in their business environments, and that the panacea would be a provincial grocers' association, distinct from all other retail merchants.

They claim that they are anxious to "adjust" such matters as "the Scales Inspection Act," "the Garnishee Law," "to have more power to confer with wholesale grocers and manufacturers on trade conditions," and "to watch more closely co-operative store legislation." If those who are supporting this agitation had been alive to their own interests and had supported the existing association, they would know that all these matters have been looked after, and while we have not accomplished all we desire, it is owing more than anything else to the fact that so many of the grocers are withholding their support, and are thinking of doing alone what the united retailers have already largely accomplished.

Work Already Attempted.

The Scale Inspection Act has been repeatedly discussed by the united retailers, and a resolution has been submitted to the Government, and is now under their consideration.

We introduced a measure into the Ontario Provincial House to amend the Division Court Act, and to reduce the present garnishee amount, but owing to other changes being necessary in the act, our amendment is standing over until they are brought in.

What better can the grocers expect than what we have secured for them from the wholesale men, when they now invite the retailers and the manufacturers to their conferences for consultation? The machinery is all complete, and is ready for the retailers to take advantage of it.

When they state that their intention is "to watch more closely" co-operative store legislation they must have been asleep. Do these men not know that this bill has been defeated three times for their benefit at a great deal of time and expense, and without their aid? Could any closer watchfulness have done more? Did we not accomplish all we could hope for?

Changes in Weights.

Some years ago trouble arose from the fact that we had no legal weight for a bag of potatoes, and as 90 pounds, which was supposed to be a bag, and was more than the sugar bags which are available for that purpose, would hold, and were also too heavy for delivery by grocers, we asked that a bag of potatoes should have a legal weight of 75 pounds. Before the Government would proceed to do this they discovered among the vegetable growers that the weight of bushels of different vegetables were entirely wrong. For instance, 60 pounds of carrots, the legal weight per bushel, would almost measure one and a half bushels. A conference took place, and the vegetable growers adjusted all the different weights, and as the legal weight of a bag of potatoes in Quebec was 80 pounds, the conference found no objection to that weight and recommended that a bag of potatoes should be 80 pounds. As soon as we saw this, we at once, in the interests of the grocers, explained the advantages of 75 pounds, and succeeded in getting their consent, and this will now be the legal weight of a bag of potatoes. This is equal to five pecks. What a puzzle it would always have been to the grocers to get a customer to understand the price of a bag and compare it with 5 1-3 pecks. This shows that nothing escapes the watchful eye of the "grocers' section of "the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada."

If those grocers who are so anxious to form a separate association could put their finger on anything that has been neglected by the officers of the association, unless it was impossible of accomplishment for want of funds which were not supplied, then I could understand why they are endeavoring to create this agitation, which is a step backward. I may boldly state that the defeat of the co-operative bill alone, to say nothing of the many other things that we have accomplished, saved millions of dollars to the retail trade and protected the country in general from confusion, trouble and cost.

Declares it to be Ingratitude.

No retail merchant can say, if he knows what "the Retail Merchants Association" has done for him, that he has not received directly or indirectly at least $50 for every dollar he ever paid, and those that never paid anything have nevertheless derived their full share of the benefits. Could, therefore, anything be more ungrateful and more unwise than, in the face of all this, to be withholding their financial support when the machinery is already waiting for united action, and reasonable financial support.

In all their business affairs the grocers, as a section of "the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada," are entirely separate, but yet operate under the same charter, with the decided advantage of the help of all other retail lines, in matters of legislation and expenditure. This is an age of coming together the world over, and the entire retail trade should stand together under the best possible relations with the manufacturer, the wholesaler and the consumer.

If the retail grocers of Hamilton, London, Brantford, Guelph or any other cities and towns are really in earnest to improve the conditions of the retail grocery trade, I advise them as a friend and as an old grocer, and one who has given organization work a lot of time and thought, to look carefully into what is now being done, and what has been done for them by the "grocers' section" of "the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada." If it is found that nothing has been accomplished, as some of the "Rip Van Winkles" in the grocery trade seem to think, then they will have cause for complaint, but if, as they will find, many men have sacrificed their time and their ability to help improve the conditions of the grocery trade, then I think that these men should at least receive the grateful thanks of the trade, and not be passed over without recognition by a few who have been asleep while others have been working.

If the retail grocers of Ontario desire to improve their conditions they must be united, and work in harmony. As chairman of the "grocers' section" of "the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada" for the Province of Ontario, I ask the hearty co-operation of all retail grocers in Ontario, and if we all stand together and work together in harmony through one properly organized association, we will accomplish far more than we can by being organized in separate associations working independent of one another. I ask every retail grocer who is anxious to improve his trade and who wants to know how we are organized to communicate with me.

Letter Announcing Cash Business

Udora Merchant Points Out Advantages to Customers and Himself by Adopting This System—Asks Assistance From His Patrons.

Udora, Ont., Mar. 14.—"For Cash Only." This is the keynote of a letter which R. S. Webster & Co. (Wm. O. Webster) has sent out to customers in announcing the 1912 policy. This firm has been in operation here for more than 40 years.

The circular letter was written in a friendly style pointing out the merchant's reasons for selling for cash. It reads as follows and will be found interesting to any contemplating a similar move:—

"Dear Sir,—

"Ten years of this business under the present management have gone and we take this opportunity to extend our cordial thanks for the kindly patronage you have accorded us in the past. We take this confidence you have placed in us doubly kindly in its being an evidence that to you and your interests we have made good.

"It is our purpose to further advance our ability to do the very best for the people of this locality by raising our business to an absolutely cash basis, and after January 1st, 1912, will sell for cash only.

Credit System Costly.

"It has been long recognized that we have been selling staple lines of merchandise on credit of longer or shorter terms at prices as low as or lower than other merchants get for cash, and we are confident that the savings we can make by the cash system will enable us to make price reductions to our customers that will be well worth while.

"The credit system is costly to all concerned, and you have to pay your share of the losses that accrue from it. We suggest some savings the cash system will make for us and you:—

(1) Bad debts. Dead beats creep into the accounts of every business man and you have to pay your share of these losses.

(2) Items we forgot to charge.

(3) Cash discounts we can get on much of our buying, and best prices available for every cash purchase.

(4) Interest on money we would require to raise to assist us in carrying heavy credit accounts during the summer months.

(5) Fully 5 per cent. of our time taken up in bookkeeping which we can turn to better earning use.

(6) Worries of the credit system that sap a great deal of the energy out of every business man that he should have for use in his business.

Want People's Good Will.

(7) Most of all, the good will of our neighbors—short credits do make long friends. We could fill quite a page with the people who get mad when we ask them for their accounts and go off to some other store with their money. We want your good will.

"Time was when we had few banks, and it was required of merchants that they should be bankers and carry large credit accounts, but now there are plenty of banks well equipped for handling credits, and we are willing they should get this business and allow us to devote the whole of our means to the collecting and distributing merchandise for our people's needs.

"We anticipate that this important change in our business may for a short time incur some slight inconvenience, but we will shortly accommodate ourselves to the benefits of this cash system, and understand that our declining to let goods go out of our store without receiving cash for them does not mean a refusal to trust our customers. This cash system comes into effect promptly on January 1st next.

"To any who may not have paid up accounts due us we especially request that these be all cleared off our books this month, as any delay over that time may oblige us to hand the accounts to other hands for collection and so entail costs."

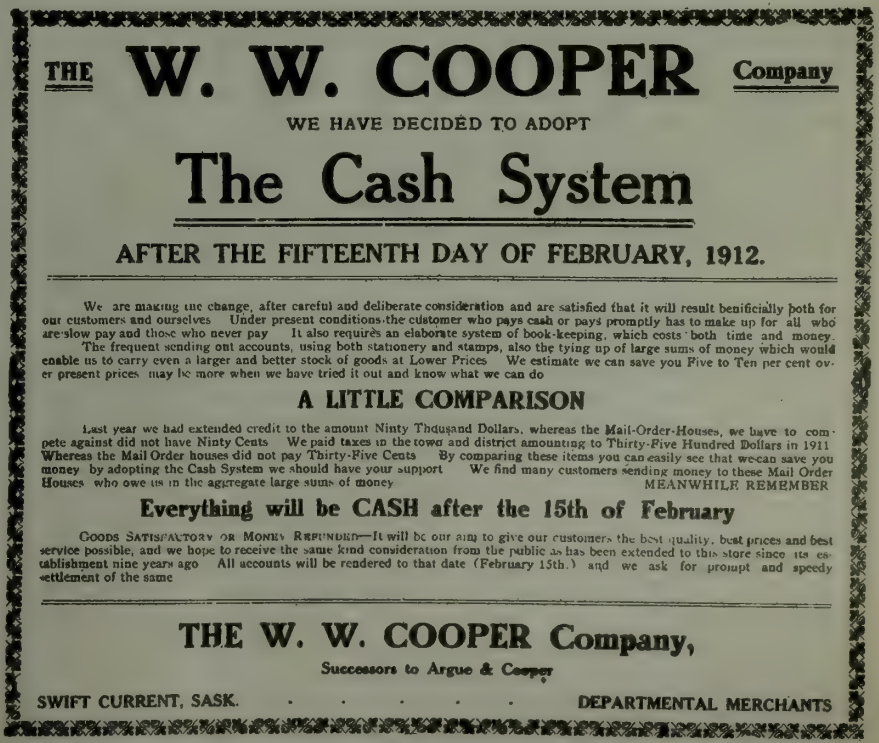
GROCERS BLOCK EARLY CLOSING.

Lucknow, Ont., March 14.—(Special)—Remembering a futile effort made a year ago to close business places by mutual agreement, 27 business men of Lucknow recently petitioned the council to pass a by-law compelling early closing of retail places on four days a week. Only five merchants among those approached refused to sign the petition. At the present time the hardware and dry goods stores close at six o'clock on five evenings of the week, but the grocery stores remain open until the last straggler leaves the street. The council refused to take action on the petition, maintaining that a by-law was a disagreeable means to the end in view, and that the council had the right to demand that at least 75 per cent. of any one class of business men should be represented on the petition. On this basis, the grocers were found wanting, and so the old system remains.

If you complain about poor business, you may expect people to get the opinion that your business is not making good.



THE W. W. COOPER Company
WE HAVE DECIDED TO ADOPT The Cash System
AFTER THE FIFTEENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1912.
We are making the change, after careful and deliberate consideration and are satisfied that it will result benificially both for our customers and ourselves Under present conditions the customer who pays cash or pays promptly has to make up for all who are slow pay and those who never pay It also requires an elaborate system of book-keeping, which costs both time and money. The frequent sending out accounts, using both stationery and stamps, also the tying up of large sums of money which would enable us to carry even a larger and better stock of goods at Lower Prices We estimate we can save you Five to Ten per cent over present prices may be more when we have tried it out and know what we can do
A LITTLE COMPARISON
Last year we had extended credit to the amount Ninty Thousand Dollars, whereas the Mail-Order-Houses, we have to compete against did not have Ninty Cents We paid taxes in the town and district amounting to Thirty-Five Hundred Dollars in 1911 Whereas the Mail Order houses did not pay Thirty-Five Cents By comparing these items you can easily see that we can save you money by adopting the Cash System we should have your support We find many customers sending money to these Mail Order Houses who owe us in the aggregate large sums of money MEANWHILE REMEMBER
Everything will be CASH after the 15th of February
Goods Satisfactory or Money Refunded—It will be our aim to give our customers the best quality, best prices and best service possible, and we hope to receive the same kind consideration from the public as has been extended to this store since its establishment nine years ago All accounts will be rendered to that date (February 15th.) and we ask for prompt and speedy settlement of the same

THE FALL IN EGGS.

The Canadian hen has come down from her high perch to lay a few eggs. For a long time, like the Canadian cow, she stood apart from mankind. A month or two ago she layed 'golden' eggs. Now she lays pretty nearly the ordinary variety.

The middle of February wholesale price of eggs in Montreal was as high as 50c per dozen. They are now around 27 to 29 cents, a decline in four weeks of about 20 cents or an average of 5 cents per week. At this rate it would only take 6 more weeks to get them down to nothing at all.

However, while eggs will likely be some lower the rate of declines of the next few weeks will not be as great as in the past.

Production of eggs is rapidly increasing as warm weather approaches but so is the consumption with cheaper eggs. It may be the latter will hold its own with production and if so eggs will not go further down to any appreciable extent.

In Toronto wholesale prices are down to arround 24 cents as compared with 40 and 42 a month ago.

On the other hand butter is still butter. There has been little or no change in price from a week ago, but when new cows begin to assist in a week or two, it is expected the price will ease off somewhat.

QUALITY AND NOT QUANTITY.

It is frequently said that the Canadian consumer is more particular about quantity than quality; that he will purchase those goods of which he gets the most for his money.

This certainly has been a truism with the majority of the Canadian people as well as with other nationalities. But it is passing and passing rapidly. In every city, town and village nowadays the most successful dealers will generally be found to be those who make quality their keynote and not quantity.

This is true with regard to the grocery store particularly. What we eat we want it to be clean, wholesome and of a high grade of purity. We all know of the increasing numbers of women who will pass by the unclean, ill-kept, unattractive store for the brighter, more inviting and immaculate establishment farther along the street Examples of this may be seen everywhere and while it is true that we still have many poorly kept stores stocked with many inferior goods throughout the country, yet dealers are more and more recognizing the importance of cleanliness and catering to the better natures of consumers by stocking and getting behind high-class goods.

Every retailer should realize this fact: that the people of Canada are rapidly seeing not only the advisability, but the necessity of eating pure foods. Stocks should be bought accordingly and every grocer should lend his assistance in creating demand for such goods.

TOO MUCH GENEROSITY.

When a new man starts in the grocery business, he is sometimes prone to be a little too generous. He gives two or three biscuits over the pound, four or five chocolates above the amount paid for, or perhaps does not take the coppers due him in making change.

While the generosity of such a dealer is to be commended, yet his business acumen cannot. In these days when the average margin of profit is shaved down so closely, he cannot afford to give away a little extra with every order. This is a "small" leak in a business which amounts fairly high during a year. It does not take many sales a day to give away thirty or forty cents. During 310 business days it would mean more than $60—the price of a scale or two or three months' rent.

Let every customer pay for what he or she receives and that only. As long as honest weight and honest value are given, no one can conscientiously expect more. A grocer cannot disappoint any person by giving only the proper weight and proper change.

This generous spirit causes one of the little business leaks that should be eliminated. If all the small losses were done away with there would be fewer failures in the retail business to-day.

SELL EASTER NOVELTIES.

Easter is not now many weeks distant. Good Friday falls on April 5, three weeks from to-day.

Many dealers are now arranging advance displays in Easter confectionery and novelties and if an early appeal is made, it will bring sales if not now, at least later on.

These novelties are usually so attractive that when placed in a show case or window they make a strong appeal. Every grocer should handle some of these goods even if only a few. They lend an extra tone to the store, attract occasional new customers who may become permanent, they provide a good extra profit and can easily be sold at this coming festive season.

Many dealers who began with an exceedingly small stock of Easter goods a few years ago, now have a large sale for them and buy extensively. Others can work up a similar trade.

STOP THE PETTY THEFTS.

A short time ago The Grocer called attention to the fact that many dealers were losing money through petty thefts on the part of men who delivered them goods. A reader, who is a specialty salesman, calls attention to a case which bears out the necessity for our warning. He writes as follows:—

"One of my customers the other day told me how the man who had been delivering him butter for a long time had stolen one pound at a time. It was his custom to take the box of butter to the refrigerator and place so many pounds on the shelf.

"In counting it he would take one pound of the grocer's butter from the opposite side and place it amongst what he was leaving. It was found out by the girl in the store who discovered the pound one day mixed with the other and began to suspect that something was wrong. She placed a cross on a number of pieces of paper inside the wrapper of each pound of the grocer's own butter. Next day when the man brought the butter, she walked through into the kitchen. But it was arranged that her father be stationed at the head of the counter and watch his movements. Presently he saw him place a pound of his butter amongst what he had brought. He accused him of doing it and of course the delivery man protested his innocence, but the grocer showed him the cross on the piece of paper inside the wrapper.

"He then begged him not to say anything as he was a married man and had a family.

"If such a man did each of say forty or fifty customers every day out of a pound of butter at thirty-six or thirty-eight cents per pound it would amount to a pretty good salary."

As we have emphasized before, dealers should be careful to see they get what they pay for. A man will through carelessness lose a lot of money in a year and not know where it has gone. Make positive beyond any doubt that you are not being "done."

BRIGHT WESTERN PROSPECTS.

The Board of Trade of Moose Jaw, Sask., claim there is every indication of a shortage of men in April in that district, unless the immigration at the latter part of the present month is heavy enough to meet the demands. Already the farmers of the district are sending in orders to the local employment agencies for men which will make the demand for farm help busier than in any previous spring. For the programme of building which is going on in that city this year, there will be needed altogether, according to the estimate of a contractor, fully 5,000 men, including carpenters, finishers, bricklayers, and concrete workers.

A city official estimates that the sewer, pavement, and water programme for the year will require several hundred men.

If this is an indication of western progress this year, prospects for a good 1912 are quite bright. It is an undisputed fact that the coming year will see a large influx to the West and business will be particularly good if the weather permits the grain yield to be an average one or better.

WHO PAYS THE TRAVELER?

At a travelers' meeting in connection with the recent convention of hardware dealers at Guelph, Ont.. the question of treatment of Knights of the Grip was brought up. A British Columbian dealer urged upon the retailers the necessity of treating the traveling representatives of distant firms with courtesy and consideration. "When you notice a traveler in your store," he said, "don't keep him waiting. If impossible to see him at once, appoint an hour and let the man—who is as busy as you are—get off on other business."

There is more than mere courtesy suggested here. The whole question of conserving energy and expense is involved. A retailer keeps a traveler needlessly; the traveler misses a train; has extra hotel expenses, and is unable to cover his territory as quickly as he had hoped. Multiply that state of affairs by the number of thoughtless dealers who do fail to put themselves out for the travelers. The wasted days which this calculation would show—could it be made—would be startling.

But who pays for the wasted days. Is it the manufacturer, the jobber? At first, perhaps, yes, but sooner or later the extra selling cost thus necessitated works back to the consumer. The retailer will have to sell him the goods at a higher price. Possibly this may not mean a financial loss to him—but it will mean harder work, for every one knows that the higher price goes the harder it is to sell the article for which that price is asked.

No, the retailer is vitally interested in keeping down the cost of marketing manufactured products. Higher cost of marketing means higher cost of selling, to the consumer, and the profit being the same, the lower an article can be sold the better.

Another dealer at that convention told a story which all travelers, and all those visited by travelers will appreciate.

"I was talking up our paint," he said. "I had stated that there was no better paint made, and explained that we had aimed to make it like the human skin—able to give off moisture and yet able to exclude it. But we haven't quite achieved our aim," added Mr. Kennedy, "We're free to confess the Lord has us beaten."

"I'm glad to hear," said the dealer, "that someone has you beaten."

During a discussion in which was being urged the importance of keeping the attention of customers who had "just dropped in," one merchant told of a young boot salesman who had taken off a young lady's shoe, and carrying it under his arm he attended to three other customers before returning to her. "That," said the merchant. "was a wise clerk. He made certain that his customer would stay."

Lesson 12---Course in Cardwriting

A Style of Alphabet Suitable for Use as Headlines or for Special Fancy Cards, But Not Appropriate for Sale Cards—Decorative Features.

By J. C. Edwards. Copyright, Canada, 1911.

No reasonable argument can be used to uphold the use of fancy letters as practical for sale cards. The plainer a letter is the more readable and therefore, the more productive of results.

Though this course has been compiled with the express purpose of presenting the reader with only practical alphabets for use in modern show-card writing, there are times when the less practical lettering is advisable even in every-day work.

There are times when a fancy trim is called for, and while a plainly lettered card is proper, yet a fancy touch is more in harmony. Now this fancy touch does not need to be so fancy as to detract from the legibility of the card—it must be quickly made as well. Old English lettering, in its original set style is not practical and is less readable than almost any style used in lettering to-day. Yet it is a handsome letter and when nicely written makes a fine effect. This is the reason why we present here a corrupt version of the Old English, taking away the fussy parts and transforming the letters into an easily and quickly written style which can be read without trouble.

Placing Emphasis.

Where one word or so requires to be brought out more prominently in the inscription this letter may be used effectively. This is demonstrated in the card reading "Fancy Letters should never be used on any kind of sale card, etc." The words "fancy" and "letters," being the subject, and the most important parts of the card are made prominent by the use of this alphabet. The small letters in the reader of the inscription are made with a small soennecken pen (No. 2½). This lettering will be taught in later lessons.

The decorative feature of this card is the grey panel scheme used at both ends of the card—the one on the left being used as a relief for the capital F. The other card illustrates the use of flat stroke fancy lettering for the whole inscription. Note how much harder it is to read this card than the one previously described. Compare the two and you will readily see the reason for not advocating this or any fancy letter for sale or quickly read cards.

A very simple form of decoration is used in this card, but which adds just enough life to relieve the plain black and white appearance

At the bottom of plate 12 there are a number of strokes given which, if practiced, will give the elements of this letter and be of great aid in helping you to master it.

Persistent Practice.

Persistent practice will accomplish a great deal in card-writing, in fact, it is the secret of success. You may ask where this style of letter would be used to advantage.

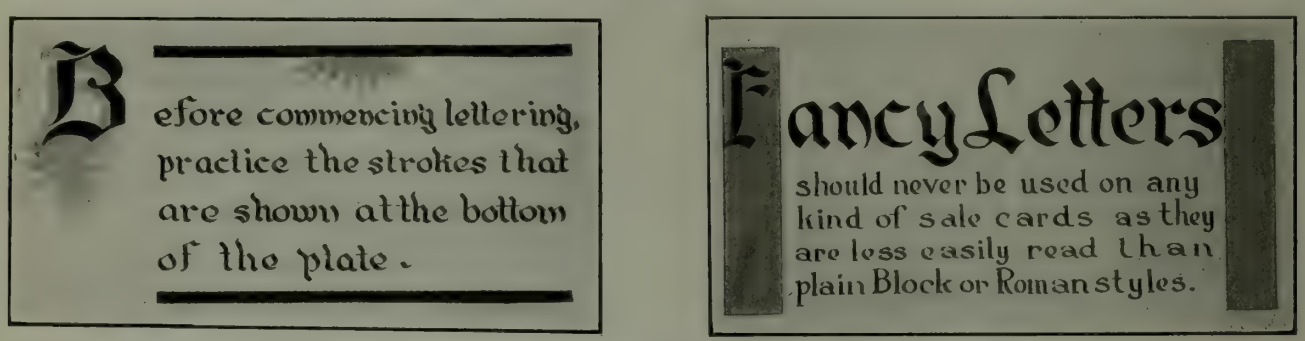
Your special sale cards may bear the formal inscriptions lettered with "Flat Stroke Fancy" and illuminated in whatever way you may desire, or they may have an informal inscription with the main words in "Fancy." Your Easter cards, your Christmas cards and such important cards may be made with this style of lettering. In fact, new goods cards where quality and style—not price—is the main feature, may be lettered to a more or less degree with this "Flat Stroke Fancy" lettering. You must use your better judgment in deciding what you use.

The Use of Capitals.

Capitals of this style of letter do not blend well together. They are even less readable than the lower case and should never be used only at the beginning of a sentence or when only two or so words are used as the headline they may all begin with a capital.

There are only about three letters in the lower case which are like the capitals and these are S and X and Z and even these are slightly different inasmuch as the S in the capitals has the lower or last stroke continued right up and across the face of the letter. The Z is practically the same but the X is finished slightly different. The rest of the letters are decidedly unlike each other.

The lower case is more simple to execute. A number 7 red sable flat brush was used to make this plate.



Before commencing lettering, practice the strokes that are shown at the bottom of the plate.
Fancy Letters should never be used on any kind of sale cards as they are less easily read than plain Block or Roman styles.

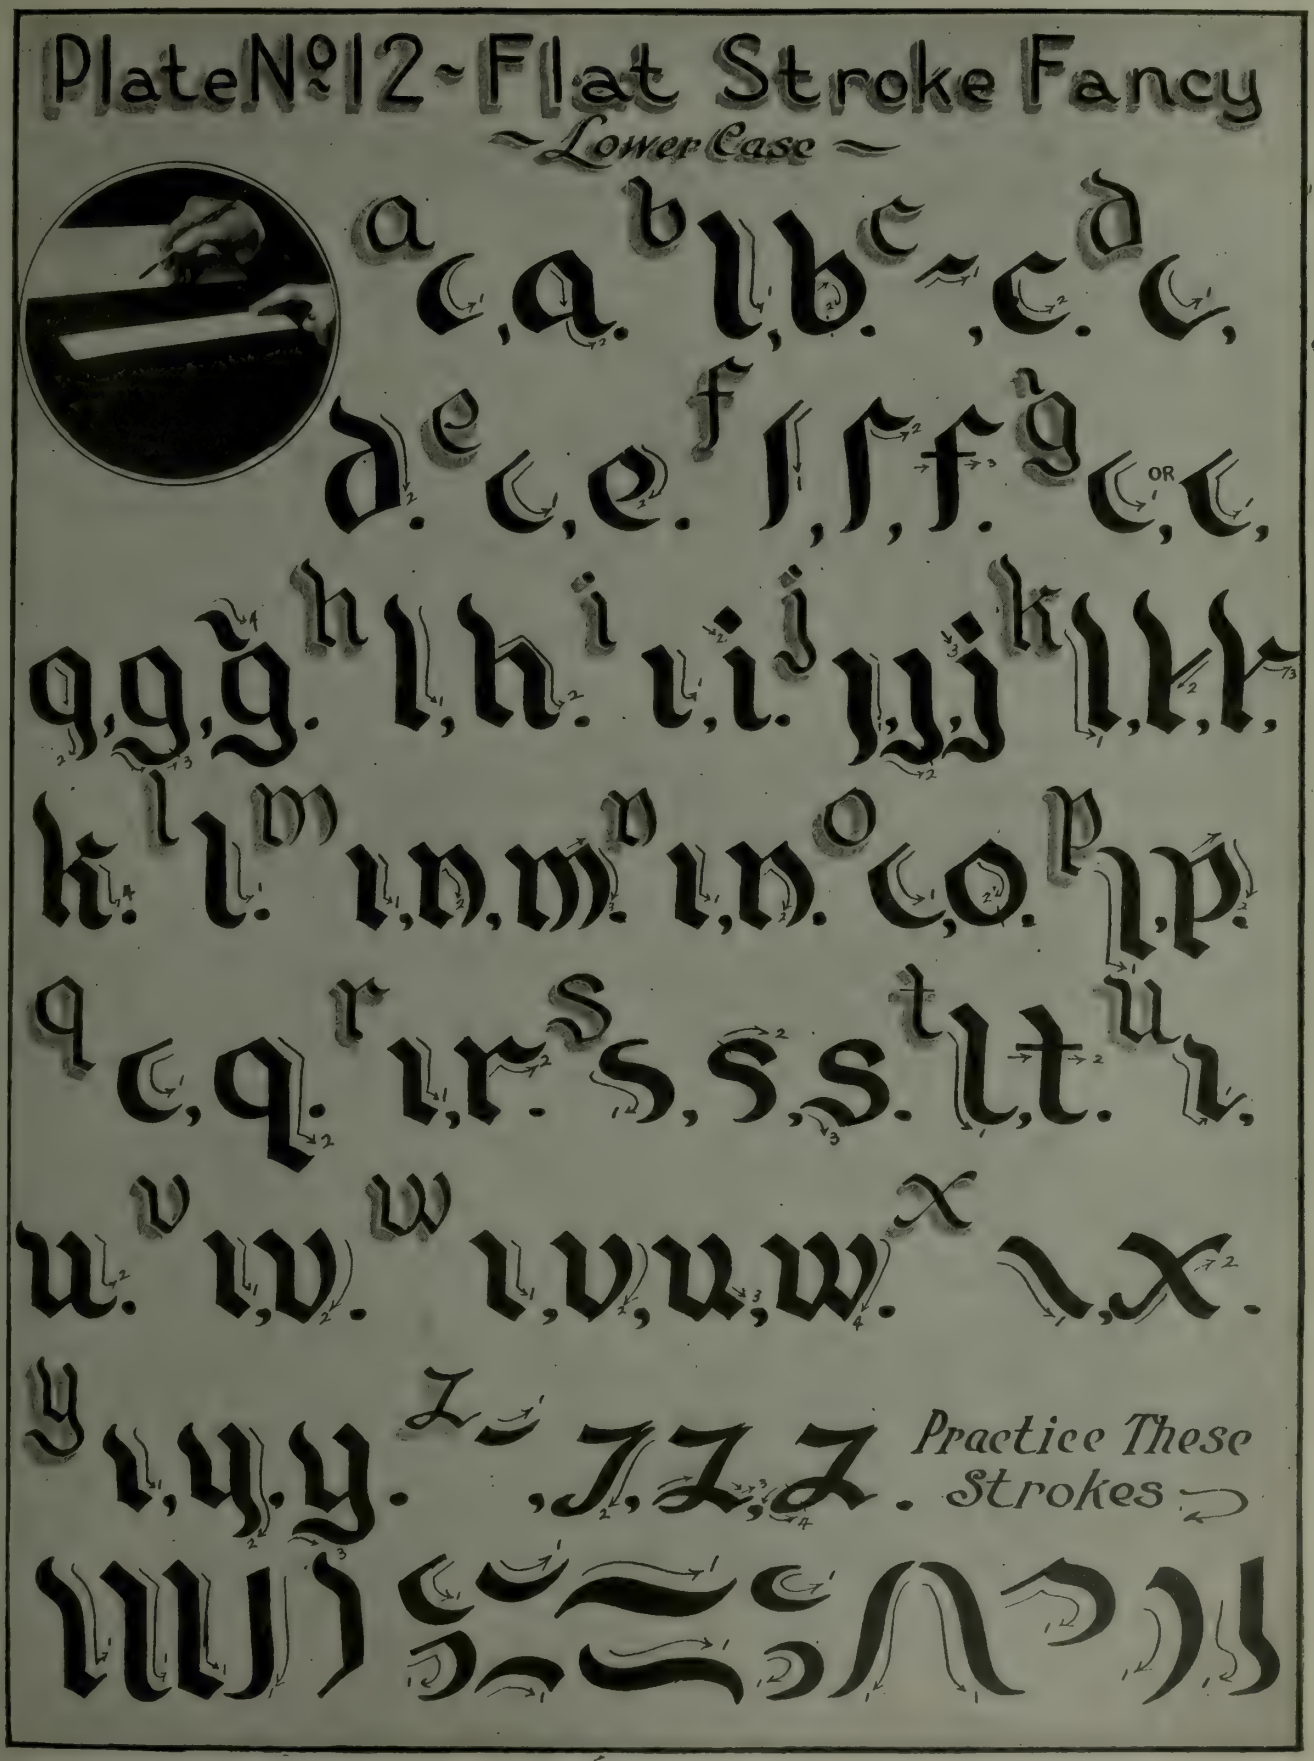
AN 18-PAGE ADVERTISEMENT

The August Scheele Company, a retail grocery concern of Elgin, Ill., in one edition of the local paper recently used 18 full pages of advertising. Besides the general announcement of the store, pages, half pages and quarter pages were devoted to various goods of manufacturers which the store carries, the manufacturers whose goods were advertised assisting in the cost.

The Postum Cereal Co. are erecting another new factory at Battle Creek, Mich. This makes the 19th building in the cluster belonging to this firm.

A "5 and 10 cent" grocery department is the latest innovation by a department store in Muskegon, Mich. Bulk goods will not be handled, but every five and ten cent seller in canned foods and other lines will be sold in this department. What tea, coffee and sugar is handled will be put up in packages.



Flat stroke fancy lettering, which has its more practical value in the various decorative purposes to which it is applicable.

A Retail Grocer's Faulty Statement

Lots of Work and Little Money—Good Credit Trade—No Proper Account With Himself—Many Details Lacking.

*By Henry Johnson, Jr.

One who wants to know writes me as follows:

———, Ont., March 1, 1912.

Henry Johnson, Jr.,
Care Canadian Grocer,

Dear Sir,—I have read with interest some of your articles in The Grocer and I decided I would write you, send you a copy of my statement and ask your opinion of the progress I have made. Sometimes I feel quite satisfied with my progress and again at times I think there must be something wrong. I am turning over a lot of stuff, handling a lot of money, and yet I am hard up all the time. I do a large credit business, monthly accounts, etc., people who want good goods and good service to whom price is no particular object, and these accounts I value more than some of my cash business. Is that right? But at the same time some of them are not very prompt in settling; it is nearly always the middle or end of the month before I get my cheque for the previous month's business.

I took over this business in March, 1908, from my employer, paying $2,126.54 for stock and fixtures, and also put in $273.46 in cash, making my investment $2,400, and at the end of ten months (I always take stock January 1st) my statement showed:

Stock	$1,874.37
Book accounts	1,076.70
Fixtures	1,425.81
	$4,376.88
Capital account	$2,400.00
Liabilities	1,700.69
Net gain	276.19
	$4,376.88

Every year since then has shown a small net gain, which has always been added to capital. 1909, $340; 1910, $216.82. For 1911 I enclose a more complete statement:

Stock	$3,270.10
Fixtures	1,450.00
Book accounts	2,453.03
Cash	151.60
	$7,324.73
Capital account	$3,133.01
Bills payable	2,337.87
Bank	1,292.31
Profits added	561.54
	$7,324.73

My personal account was	$1,234.45
Profits added to capital	561.54
Gross gain	$1,795.99
Cash turnover	$27,113.73
Expenses	3,417.48
Cost of doing business	12.60%
Rate of gross profit	6.62%
Rate on turnover	19.22%

Expenses include everything but my personal account, which varies from month to month; some months when I require it, as when insurance comes due, I may use $200, and the next month only $50; but it is a grind all the time—I never have a cash surplus.

Is this a normal condition of affairs, or is there something wrong? Hoping to hear from you in the near future,

G. A. J.

That is the kind of letter which makes me sorry that I have not more space at my disposal, for that is the kind I should like to handle immediately. But I shall do the best I can with it now—and hope I may be of some service.

Many Things Not Right.

Several things are wrong here. Fortunately, the business has not actually run behind, so far as I can see from figures given, and Mr. J— is ready to listen to suggestions, so I have no doubt at all that he will act on whatever good points may be given to him.

I cannot go into full details because those are not given me to work with. I should like to have an analysis of expenses and a transcript of the last closing entries in the ledger, so I might see just what Mr. J— considers "expenses." It is evident to me that he omits some quite important things.

Take the first ten months of the business. The investment was $2,400. At 6 per cent. interest that costs $12 per month to use; hence the cost of that capital was $120 during that ten months.

Again, there was an investment of $1,425 in fixtures. That item is properly discountable 10 per cent. annually. That figures $11.87½ per month; $118.75 for the ten months. If those two items be deducted from the profit item of $276.19 very little will be left. I do not think either item was deducted because the fixture account is held at $1,450 three years later. If $50 has since been invested, the account should now stand at about $1,079.32.

The Proprietor's Salary.

Another point is that the proprietor's salary is expense, just the same as though he hired a man to run the business. This expense must be kept and limited to a fair percentage on the total sales. That percentage is necessarily larger in a small business than in a large one; but in no case must it run much over 3 per cent. Such ratio on this business would allow for a salary of practically $810—say $67 per month—and that is what Mr. J— should limit himself to; but, for ready figuring, let us suppose that he will do $30,000 in 1912, so that we can put in the salary at $75 per month, $900 per year. That is the amount on which Mr. J— should live during 1912. He must live on it if he is to play safe. He must live on it for the good reason that it is ALL HE HAS, legitimately, on which to live.

When a man undertakes to manage a business, he undertakes to account for the safety of and fair return on the entire investment. Properly speaking, he can no more take liberties with that business than if it did not belong to him at all.

If, then, we take Mr. J—'s statement of expense at what he gives it and add thereto the items I have enumerated, we shall have something like this:

Expense account	$3,417.00
J—'s salary	900.00
Interest	193.98
Depreciation	119.93
Total expenses	$4,630.91

and that figures over 17.15 per cent. on the sales of, say, $27,000.

I do not know how Mr. J— has computed his margins. He gets his expenses all right—as most of us do—through figuring them onto the sales. Maybe he computes his margins that same way. I am inclined to think he does this or he would have gone broke long ago; but I should like to know that he does this.

The Delivery Expense.

If he has horses and wagons, too, as I suppose he has, those must be separated from the general fixture account and then discounted, or depreciated, 20 per cent. instead of 10 per cent. This because delivery equipment cannot be counted on for more than five years on the average, while other fixtures are good for many years and 10 per cent. is a conservative discount to charge against them annually.

Altogether, I incline to the opinion that Mr. J— is an industrious man all right, but one who takes some things from the wrong end of the calculation. His idea is that he must have "what he needs" as his own share. He must change that plan around and take the view that he shall get, by way of salary, what his business can afford to pay him. If he proves such a good manager that the business shall grow, then it must pay him more; but he must first show his deservitude in this tangible way.

*The writer of this article is one of the most successful dealers on the continent. He has spent almost 30 years in the retail grocery business and is well equipped to answer questions and smooth out difficulties with which others may have met.

Credits Must be Watched.

When he gets to figuring closely in this way, on himself, he will be careful about expenses. As those run to-day, basis about 17 1-5 per cent., they are too high; 12.60 per cent. is fine—I urge him to work to that line. He must watch his credits—I can only touch on that point now—and collect promptly. Remember, the first duty is to the business which hires you and pays for your best efforts. The customer is important to any business, but not so important that it is ever good practice to relinquish the rights or best interests of the business to any whim or convenience of the customer.

Another point I can only touch upon is the advisability of limiting the capital investment somewhat. Earnings, when any are really shown, should be disposed of with some judgment. If the business really NEEDS additional capital, put in some of those earnings. The remainder should then go to a surplus account. But be sure there is real need—not some lazy, or dilatory habit of your own in the collection of bills to which you are catering under the mistaken impression that your business is "growing."

Remember the Savings Account.

Lastly. The way to have money is to lay it aside and KEEP IT. I have talked on this subject before. I shall talk again some of these days. But Mr. J—should begin at once to lay aside $25 every month, in a savings bank—and NEVER touch it nor fail to add the new $25 every month, at the beginning of the month. After he has accumulated $500 that way I can tell him what to do with it. Meantime, take it out, charge it to surplus, and SAVE IT.

This is only introductory. I want my friend to send me the further details asked for. I want to keep up this discussion with him until all the ground is covered. So I hope he will write again very soon.

The Management of a Retail Business

By H. C. Carson, F.S.S.

Nowadays, when every nation, great and small, is engaged in the struggle of commerce, the lack of knowledge in the matter of languages and customs is being recognized as one of the chief drawbacks to development and progress. The time may come when a universal commercial language will be adopted, and business customs will harmonize, one nation with another, but until such time, the ability to translate readily and correctly will be found to be a money-making asset in any commercial or financial house. Many mistakes, sometimes merely humorous, but quite frequently very costly, have been committed in the past by firms content to leave the translation of a business letter in a foreign language to the capacity of the ledger clerk or someone else in the office professing a knowledge of the language in question.

Unfortunately for the amateur translator, there is a considerable difference between, say, the French of the evening classes and the French spoken and written by the commercial men of that country. This is why the casual translator, who is quite capable of an intelligent reading of a French novel, sometimes makes errors in the translation of a business epistle which cause more than annoyance.

The wide development of business has brought into the commercial arena countries whose tongues are absolutely unfamiliar to the ordinary man. For instance, a good deal of business, in Canadian goods most likely, is being transacted between England and nations and races speaking such languages as the Frisian, the Slavonian, the Lithuanian, the Sesotho, the Maya, the Pangasinan, the Tagalog, and many others, and it must be realized that there is real need for competent translators. This brief list of tongues excludes those spoken and written by the peoples of the Far East, the Chinese, the Japanese, the Persian, the Armenian, etc., all of whom do a tremendous business with Great Britain, and a growing business with Canada and other countries.

The translation bureau, when adequately equipped, saves the business house all trouble in the translation of foreign correspondence. There are in London several bureaus which make it a boast that their translators can correctly render into English and language of any country which is, so to speak, within the pale of civilization. The translators are highly accomplished men, each specializing in a particular branch of the languages spoken by the races of the commercial world. Some deal with the Latin tongues, other the Slavonic, others the Eastern, and so on. The translators in the first-class bureaus are, moreover, men who have mastered the principles underlying the commercial practices and regulations of the countries with whose language they have such intimate acquaintance. They are, therefore, competent to not merely translate, but to make perfectly clear any points which might baffle a university professor who possessed their linguistic ability, but who lacked their knowledge of international business procedure.

The time is coming when Canada will be in the vortex of international trade, and if the business is to be done direct, without the intervention of other countries better equipped, Canadians must give heed to this very important question. The establishment of bureaus now probably would not pay in dollars and cents, but their inauguration and maintenance might well be undertaken, even with Government assistance, preparatory to Canada's assumption of her place among the commercial nations of the world.

THE CARE OF CEREALS.

Some Pointers Offered by Miller—Killing the Black Weevil.

The keynote in the care of cereals if the dealer hopes to build or maintain his trade is to keep the stock fresh. This in the opinion of a miller is one of the most important things to be observed by the retailer who would make a success of his cereal department.

"The grocer should make sure that the old is sold out before he starts in the new. The trouble is that employes will bring in the new and pile it on top of or in front of the old. This sometimes is done in the storehouse and again in the store so that in some instances a portion of the stock gets very old. Displeased customers is the result.

"Flour for a time at least," he continued, "improves with age, but with cereals it is directly opposite. Cereals should be used as soon as possible after being milled.

"Keep cereals away from odorous substances or they will absorb such odors. They are dried crisp and for this reason, moisture affects the flavor.

"Give cereals plenty of light," he further advised, "and keep them in a dry place, but only at a moderate temperature. And again, be sure to sell out the old before the new."

Cereals are not attacked very much by the black grain weevil. To exterminate them, this miller advises the use of bi-sulphide of carbon, which he says will destroy the insect but not affect the goods.

The success of your advertising depends upon something more than the mere ability to attract attention. It must make the people want the goods.

Canadian Grocery News Done In Brief

Police to Stop Sunday Selling in Vancouver — Kelowna Merchants Organize—London Delivery Horse Breaks Bridge and Falls Down Embankment—Changes in the Trade.

Western Canada.

R. L. Innis, secretary of the Dominion Canners, Limited, Hamilton, is ill at Winnipeg.

John Livingston, for the past ten years with John Prentice, sugar broker, Glasgow, Scotland, has been appointed manager of the Saskatoon office recently opened by the W. H. Escott Co., wholesale grocer brokers. Mr. Livingston will also have charge of the company's interest in Regina and Moose Jaw.

Merchants of Kelowna, B.C., have organized a retail merchants' association with the following officers:—President, R. F. Morrison; vice-pres., F. S. Coates; sec.-treas., G. S. McKenzie; directors, W. Lloyd-Jones, D. W. Sutherland, G. A. McKay, C. C. Washburn, J. Ball.

J. E. CHURCH,

Secretary Brantford Retail Grocers' Association.

Mayor Findlay, Vancouver, B.C., has issued orders to the police to stop Sunday merchandising. This order applies to tobacco stores, general stores and confectionery stores in particular. Drug stores will not come under the order. In the past it has been necessary to secure special permission from the attorney-general for each individual prosecution under the Lord's Day Act, but the mayor points out that Hon. W. J. Bowser has signified his willingness to have the city take general action looking towards the Sunday closing of stores which heretofore have been disposing of tobacco, candy and general merchandising on Sunday.

Quebec and Maritime Provinces.

The Remy Starch Co., of Belgium, represented in this country by Laporte, Martin Co., Limited, Montreal, have sent Cheophile Kempeneers to Canada as a demonstrator of rice starch.

The Quyon Milling Co., Ltd., Quyon, Que., has been incorporated with $20,000 capital.

Manager McColl, of the Canadian Sardine Factory Co., has let the contract for erection of a factory at Chamcook, Charlotte, N.B., to Mr. Hartmann, a Montreal builder. The work of construction is to be proceeded with at once, and the company will probably be able to take fish by the first of August. In addition to sardines, the firm plans to can other lines, and will operate during the winter. One of their lines, fish balls, will demand a large supply of potatoes. The packing of these will be done when sardines are dull.

Ontario.

Haskett Bros., London, Ont., have sold to Summer Bros., who formerly clerked for the above firm.

J. C. Laird has been appointed new district manager for Canada of the National Cash Register Co., to succeed F. E. Mutton, who recently resigned.

Mrs. Ellen M. Whitley will continue the grocery business of the late John Whitley, Prescott, Ont., under the same name.

David Weir, for 60 years a grocer at St. Catharines, Ont., is dead. He came to that city from Scotland when quite a young man, and had been in the grocery business ever since.

T. N. Brown, Collingwood, Ont., has been in the grocery and shoe business in that town for more than 20 years. A little over a year ago he moved into his present premises and states that since that time business has been on the increase. Last year his cash sales increased more than $5,000 and during January and February of this year the increase is about $200 each month over corresponding months of a year ago.

The delivery horse of Gordon B. Drake, London, Ont., driven by Albert Goss, figured in a sensational occurrence last Thursday having been frightened by a foundry whistle. Just as horse and driver were going over a bridge, the whistle blew. With a side leap the frightened animal crashed into the bridge breaking about 25 feet of railing and horse, sleigh and driver went down a 30-foot embankment to the ice below. Goss managed to jump out of the way of the equipment and saved himself from injury. The animal fell on the sleigh but escaped with a few injuries, while the sleigh itself was smashed into kindling wood.

E. W. Pyke, Toronto representative of Magor, Son & Co., was confined to his home for a few days during the week with tonsilitis. He was, however, able to be at his office again on Wednesday. A man by the same name was injured in the recent Durham railway accident, but he is, of course, pleased to report it wasn't Magor, Son & Co.'s representative.

WEIGH THE GOODS.

"Weigh and count all the goods you receive," is the advice given by a wholesaler to a retail grocer recently.

JAS. BURNS

Member of the Brantford R.G.A. who is taking an active part in Ontario Association Agitation.

"We always aim," he continued, "to give the exact weight and count every time, but I do not claim that mistakes will not happen. They are liable to occur even in those houses where the greatest care is taken to prevent them, and I can tell you that when an employe in any reputable house is found to have made such a mistake, he gets 'his.'

"Nevertheless, I would advise every grocer to make sure that he gets what he is invoiced with. Even, if he does not find mistakes, very often, it is well for him to be certain that he is losing no money through this channel. It is much better to be sure than sorry."

The Market—Canned Milk Advanced

Number of Manufacturers Put Up Prices—Demand so Large They Can't Keep up With Orders—Raw Sugar Market Has Steadied Up—Has Been Record Season For Syrup—Sales Still Continue Brisk—Canned Raspberries and Strawberries Higher in Montreal and Toronto.

POINTERS—

Beans.—Declined.

Canned Strawberries.—Advanced 10c.

Shelled Walnuts.—Down.

Seeded Raisins.—Declined.

Montreal, March 14. — Local dealers still report business of a satisfactory character. Demand for all lines is up to the mark and supplies are encouraging. Spring trade is close at hand and wholesalers claim they are prepared to meet it. The general market shows declining tendencies and for the week beans, shelled walnuts and seeded raisins dropped.

Another interesting feature in the market is the 10-cent advance in canned strawberries. Canned goods have offered few activities of late, but now promise to become more lively.

Shelled walnuts are also on the decline.

SUGAR.—The sugar market for the week remains unchanged. Prices are on a parallel with last week's, and the retail demand is of a hand-to-mouth order.

CANNED GOODS.

TORONTO.—Some wholesalers reason that present demand for canned goods is fair for season. Others express a different opinion.

"I can't say that demand has come up to my expectations," said one. "At this season of year with housewives' supplies of fruits and vegetables reduced and retailers' stocks being depleted, one would naturally expect a brisk demand for canned goods. So far it hasn't developed very briskly with us."

"The real big consumption of canned goods," commented another jobber, "is just now getting under way. Retailers' stocks will shortly show the strain and our stocks will begin to move out more freely."

Tendency in all lines is apparently one of steadiness. Raspberries and strawberries in 2's, as was pointed out some weeks ago, as likely, are becoming closely cleaned up, and, accordingly, prices are strengthening. Quotation of $2.40 for 2's is now general, with some jobbers asking as high as $2.50 per dozen.

Gallon apples are quoted at $3.05, and 3's at $1.07½.

With present scarcity and high prices for vegetables of all kinds, retailers would do well to give special prominence to canned vegetables.

Evaporated and condensed milk have made another upward move. Several firms have advanced prices 10c per case on evaporated, and 25c to 35c per case on condensed. Demand, as pointed out before, has been extremely heavy all winter. Manufacturers have been working to full capacity, but are still far behind with orders. High price and scarcity of fresh milk, as well as natural increase in consumption of this line, is explanation of big retail demand. This big demand, combined with high milk and sugar, are responsible for higher prices.

MONTREAL. — Canned goods are showing signs of activity. The demand is normal. Strawberries, 2 lbs., advanced 10 cents this week and are now quoted at $2.50 generally.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

POINTERS—

Canned Milk—Advanced.

Raspberries and Strawberries—Stocks low and prices higher.

Sugar—Raws have steadied.

Corn Syrup—Big demand.

Toronto, March 14.—Trade in groceries still presents a degree of quietude, although in opinion of most wholesalers no more marked than at this time other years. Sales sheets of majority of houses show that business during January and February was fully up to standard for these months. Breaking up of country roads which will make traveling difficult will no doubt affect country purchases during March somewhat.

Collections are fair, although it is conceded that they might be better. High prices in general have made financing rather a difficult problem this winter, especially for smaller dealers. Practice of retailers stocking quite heavily in fall which has become more general in recent years has made it difficult for him, although trend of prices in late years during period from early fall to spring has shown it to be generally profitable.

Corn syrup is one of the lines now moving briskly. In fact, it has had a heavy sale all winter. Condensed and evaporated milk is showing large and increasing consumption. Several manufacturers have advanced prices on these two lines.

The trade believe that a re-adjustment on those soap prices which were recently changed is probable in near future, and that in the adjustment the free case method will be eliminated, and this line listed at a straight price. First of the month is named by some for the change.

Retailers are beginning to become more interested in house cleaning supplies as the season of demand approaches. Spring foods will now also be coming to the front.

SUGAR—Raw market has shown recovery from easiness noted last week and is now resting steady. Recent reports regarding Cuban crop have not been so good, suggesting that estimates of crop may possibly have to be reduced. Last week many New York refineries made arrangements to cover, and if outturn of Cuban crop continues unfavorable, it is possible that market may show some degree of strength when next buying movement sets in. Trade is on a routine basis, following heavy buying during February.

SYRUP AND MOLASSES — Corn syrups are still moving briskly. This has been a record season for this line. Greatest difficulty which manufacturers find is in keeping up with orders. Some firms are away behind in deliveries.

With apprach of syrup season, maple syrup will probably develop greater life.

DRIED FRUITS—Many jobbers are seeking reason for continued inactivity in dried fruits at time when demand should be brisk. There is a routine trade being transacted, but it is far from brisk. It was suggested by one dealer that probably a greater abundance of apples this year than last was partly responsible.

"There is no doubt," said another, "that rather high prices are having some effect. Apricots and peaches are at a high figure. A good prune is also worth a fancy price, while currants and raisins are by no means cheap."

"I am not worrying at all," commented a third. "Retailers are starting to push dried fruits in real earnest now and we will soon find trade in these lines improved."

All lines are fairly steady. Dates are firmly held, as also are figs. California raisins are at least not firmer, tendency being slightly in buyers' favor.

TEA—Routine trade is being done in tea. Local prices generally show no change, but hold steady. In primary markets firm tone prevails. On Colombo market, smallness of sales early in year and prospects of continuance of small sales have brought about a stronger feeling, and from now on a steady market on all grades of Ceylon tea is expected.

RICE AND TAPIOCA—Consumption of rice and tapioca is probably larger in spring and summer than at any other season. For this reason, trade should soon be showing more activity.

Condition of rice market is little unchanged from position outlined. Tapioca is firmer on primary markets.

A report from Hongkong, China, says that rice shortage during the current season has drawn upon stocks and will doubtless continue to be felt during the coming season even if normal new supplies are available. Latest advices from Indo-China indicate rather poor prospects, Saigon reporting a material shortage which will probably not permit the export of more than 700,000 tons as compared with the 1,000,000 tons it usually exports. Reports from Siam are not much more encouraging.

The general opinion in the trade, says this report, seems to be that high prices are likely to obtain. One leading firm apparently summarizes the general opinion in its statement that "on the whole our opinion is that prices for rice during 1912 will average higher than for either of the two preceding years, though not higher than in the two months of September and October in 1911."

Winnipeg, Mar. 14.—Wholesalers are pleased with volume of business in groceries. Market for season is active, the spring rush developing features of activity every day. Prospects for coming month are bright.

General steadiness prevails in market. Syrup advanced 5c per case during week. Evaps. and beans are both regarded as quite strong, while prunes are holding up well.

SUGAR—Sugar prices have shown no change during week. Easiness developed for a time in New York raw market, but has since taken on steadier tone. Cuba is being closely watched, it being felt that out-turn of crop there holds key to market.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

St. John, March 14.—One of chief changes of interest during past week has been increase of ten cents per barrel in Manitoba flour. Local wholesalers have been advised that Ontario millers may follow before long. Situation is said to be exceedingly strong. The fact that May wheat has moved upward in Chicago market and that an advance of about four cents a bushel from lowest point of fortnight ago, has been made, is said to be largely responsible for increase. Keen competition among milling companies is thought to have kept the price of flour at the old figure for some time past. An advance of $1 a ton in all grades of mill feed has taken place also.

White beans have increased ten cents a bushel. Stocks with farmers are said to be low and scarcity has caused increase. Cornmeal has also gone up ten cents a bag.

The seed market is reported stronger than for some days past and further increases are looked for even over those which have already occurred. It is being said by local wholesalers to their customers that towards last of the season present stocks will undoubtedly be well taken up, and some meaning of course, those who defer early purchases will have to go without seed.

Scarcity is noted in onions and an increase in price is marked. New Valencias (4s) are being quoted at $4.25; Valencias (5s) at $4.50 in crates containing 120 pounds. Winter stocks are pretty well sold out and new offerings are being made. New Egyptians are expected in a few weeks.

Eggs have been brought in in fair quantities from country and aided by mild weather the supply seemingly has become much better, so that a drop in price has taken place. From 28 to 30 is now asked for case stock, while hennery goods remain dearer, selling at from 35 to 38, and in some instances, 40 cents.

While potato market has received a promising supply from surrounding local centres, there have been heavy importations of European stocks, mostly Irish goods, and these have relieved market, and caused farmers to bring in some of what they were holding for further advances. Different dealers sold at $2.25 this week, and the price ranged from $2.25 to $2.75, the Irish potatoes bringing about $2.50. It is thought that after this week there will be but little potatoes brought to St. John from the neighboring country districts, as most farmers will not be willing to dispose of what they have until after seeding time, when a slump will again take place following another expected rise.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, Mar. 14.—Flour and feeds led the advance in local market during week. Manitoba flour was marked up 20c per barrel, in sympathy with advance in price of wheat. Corn and oats also showed greater strength. Corn advanced 4c per bushel, and cornmeal was marked up 5c per bag. Local dealers report that all kinds of feed are scarce, and prices higher. Middlings, feed flour and bran were advanced $1 per ton.

Receipts of eggs are increasing, and the price is starting to drop. There is also some improvement in receipts of fresh made dairy butter in small tubs. It is going to trade at 26c.

Early last week local market was almost bare of Jamaica oranges. Shipments are now falling off. Receipts of Valencias and Californias are increasing. Valencias range from $3.50 to $4.50, and California navels from $3 to $3.25.

Onions are only in fair supply. Valencias are 3½ to 3¾ cents per pound, and United States $4 per bag. Potatoes continue in good demand and price holds steady at $2.25 per bbl. for best stock. Cabbage are scarce and high, $3 being quoted.

THE WALLPAPER SEASON.

Arranging the Department to Best Serve Customers.

The wall paper season will soon be upon the retailer again, and once more will the spring selling campaign be opened. Methods that have proved successful in the past will be retained and an endeavor will doubtless be made by the average dealer to adopt new measures with a view to putting new life into sales and of securing better results than ever from this department.

Arrangements of Goods.

One of the first things to be provided for is a neat and practical arrangement of the stock. When an ideal condition has been secured in this direction the department has an aid to salesmanship that cannot be estimated. In the smaller store the methods of the larger cannot be applied, of course, on the same scale, but the valuable ideas obtained the latter can be employed effectively even in the humblest wall paper department. The securing of conditions by which a clerk can most readily and easily serve a patron should be the first aim of the manager or proprietor, and the natural divisions into which wall paper falls render it rather easy to make the beginning.

The wall paper department of Goodwin's, Limited, Montreal, is made up of a number of sections. There is that in which paper for bedrooms only is shown, that for parlors, another for halls, dining rooms and libraries, another for bathrooms, pantries and kitchens and so on. In the case of this departmental store each section is probably as large as the entire department in many of the stores throughout the country, but the smaller retailer can divide his shelves into sections after the manner in which the large store divides into sections the floor space of its wall paper department.

It is hardly necessary to point out the differences in the style and design of wall paper that prompts the divisions into the sections just mentioned. The trade are fully aware of the qualities that make a particular piece of wall paper suitable for a bedroom, another for a dining-room and so on. This knowledge is so essential that its possession may surely be taken for granted.

Steadiness in the Rolled Oat Market

Rather Strong Front to Market—Scarcity of Oats for Milling Purposes at Mills —Advance of 10 Cents per Barrel in Manitoba Flour has Become Nearly General—Feed Continues Scarce and Firm.

Advance of 10c per barrel in Manitoba flour announced last week became more general towards end of week. A fair domestic trade is being transacted, but there was considerable volume of orders booked ahead previous to upward move, as certain millers had been expressing bullish sentiments for some time.

Rolled oats present a rather strong front in sympathy with raw material. Slow transportation is responsible for scarcity of milling oats at mills. This is quite marked in some cases, and there are instances where mills have had to close down for a short time until another shipment of raw material made its appearance.

Fairly brisk movement of cereals is still in evidence, the spring slackness in consumption apparently having not made its appearance as yet. Cornmeal is steady and firm.

Offerings of winter wheat flour are small, with slightly firmer tendency, due partly to fact that country roads will shortly be breaking up, resulting in slackening in delivery of wheat by farmers.

Feed of all kinds, most particularly bran and shorts, continues scarce and with prices firm.

TORONTO.

FLOUR—Advance of 10c per barrel in Manitoba flour announced last week has become pretty general, making 1st patents in car lots worth $5.60 per barrel. Market for raw material holds steady.

There is a fair seasonable trade in flour for domestic account, although there was considerable business done previous to advance, as millers had been expressing bullish ideas for some time before.

Offerings of Ontario flour are not so free. Millers believe that with roads shortly breaking up, deliveries of wheat will be slower, with a resulting strengthening.

CEREALS—Volume of demand in cereals still continues quite brisk. Millers state they do not look for usual spring let-up in consumption to become noticeable for a little time yet.

The rolled oats market is quite strong under similar conditions in raw material, and there are those millers who hint that a strengthening in price is not altogether unlikely. There is quite a marked scarcity of oats at mills reported by some firms, due to delayed transportation on railways. One Ontario mill for this reason was closed down for a short period last week.

Cornmeal is steady and firmer.

1911 WHEAT PRODUCTION.

Final estimates of 1911 production of wheat, as received by International Agricultural Institute from all important countries, show total production in northern hemisphere of 3,154,360,000 bushels, against 3,185,565,000 in 1910, a decrease of 31,205,000 bushels. Preliminary estimate for southern hemisphere is 290,988,000, compared with 275,810,000 in 1910. This makes the world's total, according to Institute, 3,445,348,000 bus., as against 3,461,375,000 by the same countries in 1910. Broomhall gives gives world's total for 1911 as 3,451,992,000 bushels.

POINTERS IN BRIEF

Talk food values of your goods to customers.

Don't forget to boost the fish department. Now is the time to sell fish.

Syrups and molasses are good sellers at this season.

Point out that canned fish are always ready for use.

Suggest that customers save their "preserves" by using canned and dried fruits.

Push all kinds of cheese. This line has a high food value.

Don't forget the value of display in promoting sales of any line.

Eggs as a substitute for meat are in keen request during Lent.

Don't neglect cereals. Conditions are excellent for their sale.

Stuart & Foster, Ltd., manufacturers of ammonia, Toronto, have purchased the corner of King and Berkeley Streets of that city, on which is a four-storey building they will occupy shortly.

O. Lefebvre, of Ocean Mills, Montreal, was in Toronto this week, and appointed the Harry Horne Co. agents for Toronto.

USES CARE IN EASTER CONFECTIONERY STOCK

Purchases Liberally of Fancy Chcolate, But Not of Novelties Marked "1912"—Advance Preparations Made in St. John.

St. John, N.B., Mar. 14—(Special).—Althought it is still several weeks from Easter there are a few enterprising grocers who are opening an attractive display of novelties of various kinds in confectionery and other dainties to induce additional trade during that season. "It is just as well to be early," said one of them this week, "and when the customers are made aware that we have a nice line of these goods they will begin to think of making their purchases for the youngsters, or even for their adult personal friends, whereas if the opening or displaying of these particular lines were deferred for a few weeks they would not be so much in the customers' mind when coming into the store, and therefore there is less tendency to buy."

Articles such as fancy chocolate chickens, hens, eggs, and baskets, attractively gotten up, are finding a foremost place in the confectionery quarter of the stores.

Careful Buying of Easter Goods.

An experienced and shrewd grocer said this week he was careful to have for Easter a nice line of boxed chocolates and fancy candies, for he found the after-Lent demand always quite brisk, but there was one feature of the buying on which he was always cautious. When placing his order for his Easter chocolates in boxes, he only bought a limited supply of goods bearing the mark "Easter, 1912," or "An Easter Remembrance, 1912," while he stocked up quite liberally with fancy boxes without these accompaniments.

His reasons in doing this were that one year he had over-stocked in chocolates bearing these descriptive phrases, and while they sold quite readily, he was unable to get rid of all of them about Easter time. Consequently when he tried to sell them some time later, customers reading the lettering became suspicious and preferred the ordinary boxed chocolates as fresh goods. Since then he has found it practical only to have about a little more than a third of his Easter chocolates so marked.

IN THE CLERK'S REALM.

There are a lot of men who expect to have their wages raised just because they get around on time in the morning.

The best way for a man to make himself valuable to his employer is to keep busy instead of standing out in front watching people going by.

The man who is afraid or ashamed or unwilling to do any honest labor that comes his way need not wonder if other clerks get their wages raised before him.

Any man who is satisfied with a job half done will have to be satisfied with half a success.

The clerk whose mind is fixed on what he is going to do after closing hour rather than his day's work is not liable to succeed.

The first essential of a good clerk is that he be willing to do a good day's work.

The profit a dealer makes on a sale is of small importance compared with satisfying the customer. A dissatisfied customer will cost many profits in the long run.

Celery Still Continues Scarce and High

Contrary to Usual Course of Market at This Time—Limited Quantity and Good Demand—Florida Tomatoes Arrive on Canadian Markets—Spanish Onions Approaching End of Season—Canadian Onions Scarce—Cuban Grapefruit Arrives.

Celery prices are moving in direct opposition to movement at this time last year, when Florida was beginning to arrive in considerable volume and prices were seeking lower level. For some time now prices have been high and firming and this continues. Eastern Canada generally receives large quantity of California celery during first two months of year, but amount so far this year has been small.

Advent of Florida stock on market usually eases prices on this commodity but this year has been an exception. With only a limited quantity and a big demand, prices have been firm. Indeed, it doesn't look as if there were any chance of lower prices for some little time to come. Canadian celery has been an unknown quantity for some time now.

The first shipments of Florida tomatoes to Canadian markets were of good quality, although as to be expected, at fairly fancy figures. Strawberries continue to come along from the same state, although prices are holding quite steady.

Valencia or Spanish onions are approaching end of season. With Canadian onions scarce, there has been a big demand for Spanish even at advanced prices. Some further shipments are expected before season finally ends, while Egyptian onions will soon be arriving.

There has been no material change in potatoes. A fairly steady tone prevails. Considerable quantity of Irish potatoes have come to Canada. Potatoes have declined in St. John, New Brunswick. Importations of Irish potatoes have somewhat weakened ideas of farmers who were holding for higher prices, and deliveries have therefore been freer. Parsnips are done, while there is a marked scarcity of beets and carrots.

As weather becomes milder, business in fruit should show improvement. Oranges are moving quite well, as are also grapefruit, considering rather high prices asked. Cuban grapefruit, running to smaller sizes, is now on Canadian markets.

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUITS.—Market has been subject to little movement this week; demand and supplies continue to balance each other and with one exception prices stand at last week's position. Fruit imports have started with the mild weather and will liven the market. Tangerines offer only changeable feature in the market. As predicted last week, the price has advanced owing to local scarcity.

VEGETABLES.—The vegetable trade is waiting for developments; business, meanwhile, continues to be brisk with dealers anxiously awaiting the spring imports, now that the cold season has passed. Strawberries have put in their appearance, and dealers claim supplies will be good at seasonable quotations.

GREEN FRUITS.—A moderate and seasonable trade is being transacted in fruits. Milder weather adds impetus to sales.

As noted last week, Cuban grapefruit has made its appearance running to the more desirable sizes and quoted at $5.50 per case. Oranges are slightly easier and are moving fairly well.

Apple trade is good in spots. Gradually, however, stocks are being reduced. Some dealers are doing considerable business in box apples. No. 1 Russets and Baldwins are quoted at $1.50 per box and No. 2 Baldwins at $1.10. No. 1 Baldwins in barrels bring $4.

VEGETABLES.—A prominent feature in vegetables is marked scarcity of some lines. Beets and carrots are cleaned up. Canadian onions are nearing that stage and prices are extremely high. Cabbage is worth $3 to $3.50 per barrel. Some new stock is offered at $5.50 crate.

Stocks of Spanish onions are not large and season is drawing to close. Some further shipments are expected to this market, but prices will be firm. First shipment of Florida tomatoes was of good quality. They are selling at $5 per crate. These crates contain 6 baskets or about 35 to 36 pounds in all.

Florida celery is scarce and prices firm and likely to continue so for a time. Boston head lettuce are easier at $1.50 per dozen.

Potatoes are just slightly easier this week. "There is really no change in general situation," said one wholesaler, "but there is some price cutting being indulged in by some local dealers in quest of business." The imports from Ireland are quoted at same price as Ontarios, namely, $1.75.

Fruits and Vegetables Well Displayed

A Window Display Which Can Be Easily Made—Has Brought Good Results to Store Proprietor—Attention Given to Color Scheme—Good Use Made of Labels, and Red Vegetables.

Every Friday evening the window of a certain Montreal store begins to take on an attractive form. It is for the purpose of creating extra business on Saturday and it lives well up to its purpose.

Not that this window is unattractive during the rest of the week, for it is, but a special effort is made by the store to erect for the week-end a display that will catch the eye and create business. It does this too, for there are many people in that district who watch regularly for that special weekly window.

Lay Stress on Color.

The window for the week-end generally takes on the form of a combination of canned goods, vegetables and fruits. Now the same goods might be shown in another window and attract only passing attention. It is not simply the goods shown which appeal to the eye so much as the manner in which they are shown and the color combination.

The general scheme of the window is shown in the accompanying cut. It is a corner display. The chief feature which makes the display an attractive one is the systematic manner in which it is arranged. The same goods tossed in carelessly, as may be seen in many windows, would not look half so tempting.

A feature of the window as referred to above, is the color scheme worked out with the goods. It requires some study to learn just how different colored goods should be arranged together in order to appear best. It pays, however, to spend the time in studying this out. The window in question proves the truth of this assertion.

How It Was Arranged.

It is arranged in a series of systematic steps. In contact with the glass of the window, is a border of canned corn. Following this is a row of carrots in sloping position, each carefully placed in position. Above this a row of beets in the same manner. The next step upward shows corn on the cob in a slanting position. Those stores which have not new corn at this season could use celery here just as well. Between the row of corn on the cob and beets, is placed canned tomatoes with the red label turned out. Ripe tomatoes could be used also. Care should be taken that the colors combine properly. On the ledge at the top a couple of rows of pineapples are placed with a pyramid of apples in the background.

This particular window creates business. It has become popular with the people in that district. Its chief assets are the care with which it is arranged and the color scheme followed. Any grocer or his clerk can prepare a display equally as well. The idea is one that can be used to good purpose and is worth following.

MARCH MACLEAN'S.

In MacLean's Magazine for March there are no fewer than eight Canadian special articles, while four of the short stories are by Canadian authors. Such a list, so thoroughly Canadian in character, cannot but appeal strongly to readers throughout the Dominion. MacLean's Magazine carries more distinctly Canadian matter than any other magazine published. That it is the reason it has so completely captured the Canadian field. Grocers' Letter Box

The Canadian Grocer solicits enquiries for this Column on Trade Questions. If you desire the manufacturer of any line of goods, where an article can be secured, etc., etc., write us.

Editor Canadian Grocer.—Will you kindly inform me through your Grocer Letter Box if it is lawful to leave a gum box outside on Sunday?

Toronto, Ont. READER.

Editorial Note.—This question was taken up with the Property Commissioners and police departments of the City Hall, Toronto, who referred it to the Morality Department. The latter gave the opinion that as a gum box was a "vendor," and as it is illegal for a vendor to sell goods on Sunday, it would be unlawful, according to the Lord's Day Act to leave the gum machine out over Sunday. This applies to the Dominion of Canada. If any reader knows of a test case we would be pleased to hear of it.

Editorial Note.—There is a book called "Home Candy Making," compiled by Mrs. Rorer which should be procured through any large bookseller.

Weather a Big Aid to Fish Business

Has Assisted Materially in Promoting Sales — Record Season Expected—Temporary Lull at Some Centres—Last Week or so of Lent Generally Shows Big Demand—Prices on Whole Rule Steady to Firm.

We have now reached middle of Lenten season and sales so far have been gratifying to wholesalers. Extremely favorable weather has been an important factor in assisting sales and with fair luck in this direction for three weeks more, most dealers will be able to report record season's business.

Just at present moment, a slight lull in activities is reported from some centres. This, however, is not an unusual occurrence. Opening of Lent generally brings marked briskness. Retail dealers become pretty well supplied and purchases ease off. Then as latter part of Lent approaches, preparations are made for final sprint, the last week or so generally showing good sales. This is at least one wholesaler's idea of the trend of demand during Lent.

Frozen fish are selling well while smoked are in good demand. Here and there an item is being removed from the slate, as an odd line is cleaned up. Prices on the whole still continue steady to firm.

QUEBEC.

MONTREAL.—The Lenten trade is still at its height; business for all varieties is keeping up with no signs towards easing off. The retail demand has caused pickerel, dorce, extra smelts, green pollock and Labrador salmon to drop entirely from market. In fancy haddies a fresh shipment has been received, and as result prices have declined. New Labrador herrings are now quoted at $3, a decrease of 10 cents per half barrel. Weather has been favorable and a great support to sales.

ONTARIO.

TORONTO.—Good sales by retailers for this period of Lenten season are in evidence, although in the opinion of one dealer, trade is not as brisk as at the beginning, nor yet as brisk as expected at latter part of it.

While this is a period when a slight lull is naturally expected, nevertheless demand is appreciable. Frozen lines are in good demand under favorable selling conditions, while smoked and pickled fish are not being neglected.

Prices in general are steady to firm. Fresh fish are firm and higher. Fillets of haddie are scarce.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

ST. JOHN.—With fair and encouraging weather during past week, supply of fish on local market has been well able to meet demand except in case of smelt which are practically out of stock. Gaspereaux are becoming more plentiful, but are still selling at 7 cents each. The run is good on these as well as on cod, haddock, halibut, and herring, while requests for smelt indicate that sales of these could be large if there were any on hand. Smoked stocks are selling well and are in good supply.

NOVA SCOTIA.

HALIFAX.—Dealers report retail demand for fish this Lenten season heavier than usual. Sales of smoked fish are enormous. From Digby alone, this week, one thousand boxes of fish were shipped to Upper Canada and United States market. The fish consisted principally of finnan haddies, kippers and bloaters.

Lobster situation on local market is unchanged. No live lobsters are offered for sale here, which is something unusual for Lenten season in Halifax.

Local market is well supplied with fresh fish. Some fairly large catches of haddock and cod were landed here this week. With prospects of more favorable weather for fishing the catches will improve from now.

New smoked salmon is selling freely, also fillets, haddies, bloaters and canned clams. Oysters in the shell are only of medium quality, but the bulk stock is fine.

Figuring Profits on the Selling Price

Retailer Who During 1911 Made a Common Error—Expected to Finish With Larger Balance—Estimated Cost of Doing Business on Selling Price and Profit on Cost.

"Let well enough alone" has a very comfortable sound, but there is nothing in it which enables a man to get ahead.

Most retailers are satisfied with their methods. They think they are making money. But here is a letter which suggests a reason for the many failures among these same satisfied retailers. The story was told in a letter to the service department of a large manufacturer of store equipment.

The retailer, whose name we cannot give because it might affect his credit, is now in business. He thought until a short time ago that he was going to make a good profit last year in addition to his salary, but he has discovered that he has actually lost $1,125.

Made a Good Start.

"I started the year," he said, "with $1,100 in the bank and a stock inventory of $3,150. Doing a cash business, I had no outstanding accounts, and my accounts payable amounted to only $550. Assets $4,550, liabilities $550.

"My business for the year aggregated $40,600. My stock inventory at the end of the year was $3,250. My bank balance was $600. Accounts payable, against me, aggregated $975. I drew nothing from the business, except my salary of $100 a month. Assets $3,850, liabilities $975.

"I found that my cost of doing business was 22 per cent. including my salary. I figured that I should make a profit of 10 per cent., and marked all my goods for that profit.

"I made my purchases carefully so that my stock did not pile up. I handled only such goods as I was able to move and could make the 10 per cent. profit on.

Balance Smaller; Debts Bigger.

"But I find my inventory smaller, my bank balance smaller and my debts bigger at the end of the year.

"I expected a profit above expenses of $2,500. I thought I had that profit; but my year-end statement shows that I have lost $1,125.

"Can you tell me the answer to this puzzle?"

Figured on the Cost.

His mistake was this: He took his cost of doing business and his profit from the cost price. He should have taken both from the selling price.

He has less money in the bank. He owes more. He has less stock. He has not made 10 per cent.—that is plain. Instead, he has lost the amount of the decrease in stock and cash and the amount of the increase in debts.

Why? He thought he was adding 10 per cent. for profit, but in reality he did not add anything for profit.

Suppose an article cost him $2.25. Suppose his cost of doing business was 22 per cent., and it was desired to fix a price that would allow 10 per cent. profit. He added 32 per cent. to the cost price of $2.25, and thought he was adding 10 per cent. for profit.

He had estimated his cost of doing business, of course, as 22 per cent. on his gross business or on the selling price of the article. Instead of allowing 22 per cent. on the selling price for cost of doing business, he added 49.5 cents to the cost price. Instead of allowing 10 per cent. on the selling price for profit, he added 22.5 cents to the cost price. It really cost him almost 73 cents to sell the article, one cent more than both the amounts he added.

Here is the difference: The article was sold for 92.97, or probably $3, when it had to be sold at $3.31 to get 10 per cent. profit. He needed a gross business of over $50,000 on the same wholesale cost to make his 10 per cent. profit.

Prove the figures: 22 per cent. on $3.31 is nearly 73 cents. 10 per cent. on $3.31 is a little over 33 cents. Adding 73 and 33 gives $1.06. Adding this to $2.25 gives us $3.31.

The whole problem hinges here: Figure your percentages on the selling price.

FILLING ORDERS EXACTLY.

When Phoned in This Dealer Maintains Customer Should Receive Only Amount Ordered.

Wallaceburg, Ont., March 14.—(Special.)—"I make it a point in my business," remarked a grocer the other day, "to supply the customer with the exact amount ordered.

"Frequently a customer will telephone or send a messenger with an order, which will include, say, half a pound of cheese, or some other article of that nature. I have known grocers in other places with the very best intentions in the world to send more than the amount ordered, and to charge for what they send. Usually they cut on the generous side, find they have two or three ounces over, and reason that Mr. Customer won't kick at paying a few cents extra for the extra weight. The same thing has happened with meats and even butter; and, from all accounts, it is quite the thing with meat dealers, when telephoned for a roast of "about four pounds" to ring in anyhere from five to seven pounds and charge accordingly.

"Now, that sort of thing doesn't appeal to me as good business. I believe in giving the customer just what he orders and charging him on that very same basis. I dare say merchants who ring in a little extra weight do so with the very best intentions, but most people don't like it. They think the merchant takes advantage of telephone orders, or orders sent by children. The suspicion and bad feeling more than outweighs the few cents extra business.

"It takes more careful cutting to give exact weight, but I never ring in an extra cent on an order. My customers know that even if they can't come in person, they'll get exactly what they ask for, and neither less nor more."

LOST LIBEL SUIT.

Buyers' Exchange Sues Missouri Trade Paper for $20,000.

St. Louis, Mo.—A verdict of not guilty ended the libel suit for $20,000 damages brought against The Interstate Grocer, the Grocers' Journal Company and George J. Schulte, publisher of the paper, by the American Buyers' Exchange, of St. Louis. The latter organization formed to operate in St. Louis, in its suit for damages alleged that the articles and cartoons published in The Interstate Grocer injured its business in the city and damaged it to the extent of the sum asked for. Truth of the charges was the defense of the trade journal and its editor.

"The American Buyers' Exchange was a corporation started for the purpose of getting retail merchants in all lines to give 5 per cent. cash discounts to customers," said George J. Schulte, "in the article complained of, The Interstate Grocer gave the details of the plan, criticised and commented on it, and said that it could not possibly succeed because it would increase the cost of doing business for the retailer and boost the cost of living.

"The American Buyers' Exchange, in its petition for damages, said that the article prevented it from getting business from retail grocers who were to have formed the backbone of the scheme, and that therefore, it asked $10,000 actual damages and that $10,000 be assessed against the Grocers' Journal Company and George J. Schulte, its president, as a punishment.

"The defense of The Interstate Grocer was that the article and cartoon told the truth, that the scheme was a fake, because it could not do what was claimed for it, and the testimony given during the trial, and the verdict of the jury, upheld every charge made in the article and in the answer to the petition of the A. B. E. Company."

Produce & Provisions

Greater Interest in Hams and Bacon

In Anticipation of Easter Demand—Nothing to be Gained by Holding off, Says Wholesaler—Eggs Continue to Decline Under Increased Supplies—Lower Prices Will Probably Induce Larger Demand—Canadian Production of Butter Expected to Shortly Become More Important Factor in Supply.

Retailers are beginning to show greater interest in hams and bacon as the close of Lent gradually approaches. Wholesalers who met with little success in selling these lines for Easter trade a few weeks ago, now report that they are booking considerable business. Probably due to brisker demand which the close of Lent will bring, a slightly firmer feeling is noted in hams at Toronto. A Montreal dealer points out to his customers that nothing will be gained by withholding their orders for Easter supplies, as prices are more likely to strengthen than move in the opposite direction.

Eggs during the past week have continued on their downward course, as it was anticipated would be the case. Under the greatly increased supplies, big declines have taken place at all centres. Indeed, Canadian production seems to be fast overtaking demand.

"What of the future?" is now the question. With production steadily increasing it would be natural for prices to decline still further. There is, however, another side to the question.

"Let us consider the trend of the Chicago market," said one dealer. "Prices there went down as low as 18 cents. The result was that people thought they were low enough to eat, and consumption began to increase, for once they get the taste of the new spring egg, they crave for more. The result was prices again strengthened, advancing to 22 cents. In same way when prices get down to certain level here, we can expect the consumers to appease his appetite."

Therefore it seems as if we cannot expect prices to go down with a slam, although there may probably be further easing. Much depends on the increase in receipts.

Present prices on butter remain fairly steady but indications are that market may show tinge of easiness before long. This is explained by fact that prospects are bright for Canadian production to shortly become more important factor in supply, due to the usual spring increase. Already creameries are offering small lots. It will take some little time before there will be any marked effect on prices. Meanwhile demand is mostly for small lots.

BUTTER.—No change of importance has moved the market. Prices remain firm, but tend to easiness. BUTTER.—There has been no important change in butter situation during week. Outlook is however shaping in direction predicted as probable. Imports of stock from the United States had steadying effect, keeping values from mounting to greater heights. Now prospects are bright for Canadian production to shortly become a more important factor in supply. Flow of milk and consequently make of butter will now be showing increase. Already some dealers report slightly larger offerings from creameries, but it will take a little time to show any great volume. It is pointed out by one dealer that advance shipments of new milk butter are not exactly top-notch in quality.

Bacon Lower, Butter and Eggs Higher

Price Comparisons With Year Ago — Pork Products Below Those in March of 1911—Review of Butter and Egg Situation.

It is interesting to note how produce and provision prices compare with a year ago and the fluctuation in values during the past twelve months.

For reasons already well known to the trade value in butter and eggs at the present time are above the prices ruling one year ago, although eggs are fast being reduced to a lower level.

Pork Products Below Last Year.

In provisions and pork products the story is, however, a different one, for comparisons show that prices are generally lower than those being quoted a year ago. This is an argument that the retailer should not lose sight of in this period of high values in many lines. To customers who complain of high prices it can be pointed out that pork products are cheaper than at this time last year.

Butter in 1911.

Butter one year ago was quoted in Montreal at 27½ cents for creamery and 23 cents for dairy in tubs. Then the usual spring increase in production caused values in both varieties to ease off. Not for long, however, for even as early as June the weather began to take a hand in the game. Under dry, hot weather, the meadows were withered, the flow of milk lessened, and the make of butter also. Not only was this true in Canada but also in Europe. The result was that on Sept. 1, when prices should have been reaching a comparatively low figure, they were, on the contrary, on a level with values ruling in early March.

Thus, the autumn began with light stocks of butter in both Canada and Europe and it was evident prices were bound to increase as the season advanced and holdings were reduced. This has been the case, and now with Canadian stocks cleaned up, and imports being made, creamery in Montreal is worth 35½ cents, 8 cents higher than a year ago.

New laid eggs on Mar. 10 of last year were 27 cents on the Montreal market. The grocer is all too well acquainted with the fact that they have been ruling high during the winter. The cold weather experienced during the first six weeks of 1912 prevented the increase in new laids that would otherwise have taken place.

Production, is now, however, developing rapidly and values are shortly expected to ease off as low as those ruling a year ago. The high price of 30 cents on Sept. 1 last is explained by the fact that on account of the extremely warm weather, strictly new laids were at a premium.

Changes in Bacon.

As pointed out before, pork products are on a lower level than a year ago, although the fluctuation in the intervening period has been considerable in some lines. For instance, long clear bacon one year ago was 11½ cents at Montreal, easing off to 9½ cents by Sept. 1 and since reacting to present figure of 10½c.

Medium hams and boneless breakfast bacon are now both quoted at 14½ cents, Montreal. One year ago medium hams were 15½c. and breakfast bacon 16c. It will be seen that on Sept. 1 last, these lines were worth 18½ and 18 cents respectively due to the heavier demand which is always in evidence during the warmer weather. Hams, bacon and kindred lines with the close of Lent will once more start to move more briskly.

Not Much Change in Lard.

Pure lard is at about the same level as a year ago. The demand during the winter months has been brisk and still continues so, on account of the high price of butter, forcing many a housewife to substitute lard wherever possible. The following is a comparison of prices during the past year on Montreal market:—

	Mar. 12 1912	Sept. 1 1911	Mar 10 1911
Butter—Creamery	35½	27	27½
Butter—Dairy, tubs	30	23	23
Eggs—New laids	29	30	27
Long clear bacon, heavy	10½	9½	11½
Medium hams, 13 to 18 lb.	14½	18½	15½
Breakfast bacon, boneless	14½	18	16
Pure lard, tubs	12½	11½	12¼

PRESENT QUALITY OF BUTTER.

Since the article in last week's issue on the present quality of butter compared with the past went to press, an opinion has been expressed contrary to those published.

Flavelles, Limited, Lindsay, Ont., claim that speaking generally, they do not think the quality of Canadian creamery is quite as good as it was some years ago. Then the milk was gathered daily and separated in the factories. Now it is separated at the farmers' homes and the cream gathered every two or three days and brought to the creamery where it is manufactured into butter. Commercially this is the only way in which it can be handled now. The fault lies in the quality of the cream received which is not equal in quality to the cream separated from the milk in the factory. The creameries, themselves we believe are making it better, if anything, than it has ever been done, but then raw material is deficient.

Further opinions on this subject will be appreciated.

NOW is a good time to largely increase your sales of Gillett's Lye. A few cans of Lye placed on the show case or in the window will act as a timely reminder to your customers of the time and labor saved by the use of Gillett's Lye for house-cleaning purposes, and for numerous other purposes, such as making soap, disinfecting sinks, toilets, outdoor closets, drains, and for ridding buildings of rats, mice, roaches and other vermin. Gillett's Lye is the standard Lye of Canada. Beware of imitations that are claimed to be "just as good," as they are never satisfactory. These imitations cannot be put in larger tins and sold for less than Gillett's Lye except at a sacrifice of quality. QUALITY goods give the desired result, and QUANTITY goods create dissatisfaction in the minds of customers. Gillett's Lye conforms to the high standard of Gillett's Goods.

"Gillett's Lye Eats Dirt."

NOTE It can be recommended as a positive exterminator of rats and mice, and it has none of the objectionable features of a poison. The process for using it is simple. Just sprinkle a little of the Lye in and around the holes made by them. In addition to this, make a circle of Lye about one-quarter inch deep on a thin board about a foot square, and place some cheese or meat in the centre. In endeavoring to get at the bait their feet will be burned, and the whole colony, whether large or small, will immediately disappear.

QUAKER

We are again offering for the coming season the well-known Quaker Brand Canned Fruits and Vegetables. These goods have a distinctive quality by reason of the fact that the raw product is grown in the salubrious climate of Prince Edward County, which county is surrounded by the waters of Lake Ontario, and where the soil also is particularly suited to the growing of vegetables. This combination of climate and soil makes for the very best obtainable results, and in consequence, along with the exceedingly fine and large plant of the Bloomfield Packing Co., the quality of the goods put out under the Quaker label is of such high standard that the demand for this brand has been increasing steadily, and the factory is now taxed to its full capacity to supply the requirements of the patrons of the popular Quaker brand.

We are now booking for Fall delivery, and solicit business from all our old customers, and any new who are desirous of putting in a stock of Canned Goods which will increase the patronage of their store.

40c. RED ROSE TEA

There is going to be a very big increase in the sale of 40c Red Rose Tea this year.

We feel certain of this from the fact that many merchants are now selling much more than they did, and there is more enquiry than we have ever known before for better grade teas.

We believe the increases now being made are due in most cases to the merchants having tried 40c Red Rose Tea in their homes.

They have found on trying it that it was not only distinctly finer in quality, but that it was just as economical to use. It spends further. So they have recommended it to their customers, with the result that they are now making more profit and selling tea that gives their customers better satisfaction.

If the reader of this ad: will try the tea himself we believe he will feel like recommending it.

Don't Worry About Soap Profits!

There was never a turn for the worse that entirely eliminated all hope for profit on certain goods of grocery store calibre. The alternative for you, Mr. Grocer, who has been forced to sell soap at six bars for 25 cents, almost eliminating your profit, is to stock a bar soap that will hold your trade—yes, increase it.

N.P. BAR

is the line of soap that shows a respectable margin of profit for the retailer.

It is an honest price soap both as regards quality and quantity—the five-cent cake will be entirely unthought of when the N.P. Bar is established in the homes of your customers.

Talk it up, put it on the scales. Show your trade it's honest value, and you will build up a new soap business that will pay you two ways; not only soap profit, but a good steady buying trade in other lines.

This is a proposition it will pay you to investigate. Write for prices now.

The Brain Has a Limited Capacity

If one-half its load is removed it can handle the remainder twice as well.

This merchant is overworked. He is not making each year the profit he should. He is losing money daily by not giving his attention to important matters in the management of his business. He is handicapped.

More than half his brain is working on how to take care of the five greatest troubles in a retail store—cash sales, credit sales, money received on account, money paid out, and money changed.

If he only would let a National Cash Register take care of these important details he could then give his WHOLE BRAIN to the big things that would make his business successful. He would be just as prosperous and happy as the man opposite.

This merchant is successful. His brain is occupied with the big and important things that will increase his business. His five greatest troubles—the handling of cash sales, credit sales, money received on account, money paid out, and money changed by himself and his clerks—are taken care of by a National Cash Register.

His whole brain is planning how to increase his business. He is not worried with the routine matters that are handled far better by a cash register. He has time for study and for recreation, and he can take frequent vacations.

He is an up-to-date business man and his feet are firmly planted on the road to success.

SHREWD GROCERS ARE FEATURING THIS NEW 5-POUND CARTON OF

Redpath Extra Granulated Sugar

The Grocer who is keenly alive to business chances has welcomed the new REDPATH 5-pound Carton, for several reasons.

He knows his best customers prefer package goods, and are pleased with the cleanliness and convenience of the REDPATH Sugar Carton.

He sees the strong advertisements we are running, and feels their effect in enquiries and sales.

He appreciates the saving of the time which he formerly had to spend in weighing out the sugar into paper bags.

He knows that each 100 lbs. he buys can be sold as 100 lbs., whereas in weighing it out himself he invariably lost a little.

The REDPATH Carton prevents the annoyance and loss from the bursting of paper bags in delivery.

The Grocer finds the handsome REDPATH Carton brightens up his store, and makes most attractive window and counter displays. It shows, too, that he is up-to-the-minute in securing all the newest and best things for his customers.

He can keep his reserve of cartons out of the road, in the store-room, instead of having to keep barrels under the counter. Besides, the wooden cases, holding 24 5-pound cartons, are much easier to handle and better to store than are the heavy, bulky barrels.

If you have not yet stocked REDPATH Package Sugar, order right away from your jobber.

DO YOU KNOW ALL OF YOUR "CREDIT CUSTOMERS" PERSONALLY?
IF NOT, YOU NEED

Allison Coupon Books

Because they will enable you to handle a vastly greater number of credit accounts profitably and with SAFETY. You don't need a high salaried organization either, for they eliminate a great deal of work, simplify bookkeeping, prevent errors and disputes, and—best of all—afford an easy means of checking close on each customer, who might otherwise let his account run too long. If you have a few "slow" but perhaps "good" credit customers, just try ALLISON COUPON BOOKS and then keep your eye on the cash book. See what a difference it makes.

HERE'S HOW THEY WORK:—

When a man wants credit, give him an Allison Coupon Book, and have him sign form at the front which becomes then his promissory note to you. As he buys, you tear out coupons, and when his book is exhausted you can collect your note or extend his credit for another book, as you deem wise. No pass books, no charging, no time wasted, no errors, no disputes.

Auto Delivery Curtails Delivery Expenses

Service is one of the main features which determines a merchant's patronage, with delivery the most important part. Merchants are more and more beginning to realize the many points in favor of automobile delivery, because it brings them more business and because it is cheaper than any other method.

The Menard Commercial Car

has been designed to meet the demand, and is a quiet car of great reliability, reasonable speed, with a large reserve of power and a frame of strength and size capable of carrying a load of considerable bulk and up to 1500 lbs. weight.

The design of tires used on the Menard Commercial Cars reduces the cost of maintaining tires to a nominal sum. There are many other features of the Menard that will impress it upon merchants for its superiority above all others.

Send for prices and full particulars.

Results from U.S. Food and Drugs Act

In 1,400 Cases Before Courts Convictions Were Secured in Majority —Much Good has Resulted From Moral Effect of Pure Food Legislation—Benzoate of Soda Controversy—Trade Customs of Questionable Character—Fourth Article of the Series.

By W. S. Greening.

The Food and Drugs Act of the United States is a comprehensive and highly technical piece of legislation. It was passed to remedy a widespread evil of long standing, and great care had to be exercised by its sponsors to guard against any misunderstanding as to the scope of its operation.

There are two dangers of this kind which have to be avoided in legislation. If the terms are too general a chance is left for offenders to pick holes in the act and make a successful defence through the use, or rather abuse, of technicalities. On the other hand, if the machinery provided for enforcement is bound up in "red tape" it makes the legal side so complicated as to be unwieldy.

Results Instead of Details.

There is an old saying that the wit of man cannot devise a law that the wit of another man cannot evade, and this is specially true of food legislation. The Heyburn bill is probably as well drawn as any instrument could be. The definition of "adulteration" and "misbranding," which are the offences to be punished, are as wide and comprehensive as possible, whereas the clauses relating to the enforcement of the law are drawn to the minutest detail. As the scope of these articles is general rather than technical, we will endeavor to show the results of the law, rather than go into the details of the act itself.

The act deals chiefly with "misbranding." It does not prohibit the manufacture or sale of adulterated goods. It simply insists that every article must be clearly labelled in such a way as to inform the purchaser exactly what he is buying. In other words, it endeavors to make commercial honesty coincide with common honesty.

Questionable Trade Customs.

During the long period in which there was no law on the subject, a host of trade customs had grown up. These were understood by the manufacturers and dealers, but the puble knew nothing about them. As a general rule, it may be said that these customs were never to the advantage of the consumer. For instance, it was the custom in many cases to sell "gross" for "net." In other words, to include the weight of the package in the net weight of the goods. Thus arose bottles which were of "reputed pints," and other customs equally misleading.

Another trade custom was the abuse of the terms "Mocha and Java," "Pure Fruit Extracts," etc. Many examples will readily occur to every reader. Now the Food and Drugs Act changed all this. It simply refused to recognize any trade custom if it misled the purchaser in any way as to the true nature of the article he was purchasing. On the other hand, good and legitimate trade dscriptions, specially in the question of proper grading of commodities, such as nuts, currants and raisins, were retained and even admitted as evidence in given cases. One firm was fined for selling raisins as "extra selected," when it was discovered they were described simply as "good ordinary" in the trade.

Origin of Most Difficulties.

Although "compounds" and "mixtures" were not prohibited when properly labelled, the act gave wide power to the officials to seize and destroy any goods which were decayed or unfit for human food. In conjunction with this was the prohibition of any poisonous or deleterious substance. So the powers were pretty wide if a liberal construction was given of these two clauses. Most of the difficulties in enforcing the law have arisen from these sections of the act.

The machinery for enforcing the act was comparatively simple. The aim is to get at the actual manufacturer as the root of the evil. In most cases the actual shipment of adulterated or misbranded goods is seized and destroyed if actually adulterated. If misbranded, the owners are usually given a chance to brand them properly or export them beyond the jurisdiction of the United States. A bond, of course, has to be given in this event. Before any action is taken by the courts the owner is given a private hearing before the Secretary of Agriculture or his nominee. If he can make a satisfactory explanation on questions of fact the case goes no farther. If he fails to do this, the case is tried before the court in the district where the shipment was seized. If the court gives judgment against the defendant his goods are forfeited. A fine may be imposed, but this is optional.

Many Convictions Secured.

So far it has been fairly easy to get convictions. In something over 1,400 cases already tried, the Government have secured convictions in practically all. But it must be remembered, they do not proceed without having a very good case. No doubt, thousands of actions contemplated have never come to trial, as the shipper has been able to make a good defence in the private hearing.

The act was passed on June 30, 1906, but did not become law until January 1, 1907. This gave the trade time to make the necessary change in their labels, and generally, to "clean house." An immense quantity of goods which would not pass muster were hurriedly exported beyond the jurisdiction of the United States. Unfortunately, Canada being the nearest point, got more than her fair share. Then the state began to proceed against offenders. It was found necessary to add a good many "Rules and Regulations" to the text of the act to facilitate its harmonious working. There were forty at the beginning, but the number has been increased from time to time as decisions by the courts have given new rulings on stated cases.

The Use of Preservatives.

It is over these "Rules and Regulations," rather than the text of the act itself, that the chief controversies have arisen. The most important of these refers to the question of preservatives being used generally, and benzoate of soda in particular. The act does not deal with the question of preservatives of any kind; it simply prohibits the addition of any added poisonous or deleterious ingredients which may render the article injurious to health. Dr. Wiley, who has very strong views on the subject, held that this clause amounted to a prohibition of the use of benzoate of soda in jams, catsups and allied products. The Department proceeded to prepare cases against a great number of packers who were using it. The latter made a vigorous defence on the ground that it was open to question whether the use of the preservative was deleterious, and claimed they were within their rights if the presence of same was plainly stated on the label.

They managed to convince President Roosevelt that there were two sides to the question, and he appointed a Referee Board, with Dr. Ira Remsen (probably the best known chemist in the United States) as chairman, to inquire into the matter. This board upheld the contention of the manufacturers, the verdict amounting to the Scotch "not

Why Fly Destroyers Should be Sold Now

One Fly Killed Now Means Millions Less in Couple of Months' Time—Facts Which Dealers May Use in Persuading Customers to Make Early Purchases—If Sales are Delayed Fly Pest in Many Homes During Summer Months Becomes Unconquerable.

Toronto, March 21—(Special). — "For every female fly killed NOW there will be several million flies the fewer to be killed in August."

This is the statement made by Dr Hastings, medical health officer of this city.

The doctor bases his statement on scientific facts that cannot be disproved. They are wonderful facts—interesting in the extreme—and they should get every retailer working immediately to sell fly poisons, stickers and traps.

"Every winter seasoned female fly," Dr. Hastings said to The Grocer, "deposits in the neighborhood of 150 eggs in a favorable breeding spot. In only 10 days time these eggs are incubated and then we have a colony of 150 extra to contend with. These are all full grown in that short space of time.

"Now figure it out for yourself and you will see that in a few weeks there will be millions of the pest to fight against."

How the Millions Arrive.

Let us do a little figuring.

In 10 days from the time the fly deposited her eggs we have 150 extra. Suppose half of these are females. Chances are that the percentage will be greater. But 75 females each deposit 150 eggs making 11,250 eggs altogether. At the end of another 10 days or 20 days from the start we have 11,250 flies. Half of these or 5,625 are females. Each deposit 150 eggs making 843,750 in all. At end of another 10 days or 30 from the beginning, there will be 843,750 flies, not counting those already referred to. Half of this number or 421,875 at 150 eggs each will produce in 10 days more or 40 altogether the huge number of 63,281,250. Add to this the 843,750, the 11,250, the 150 and the one begun with and we find the grand total of 64,136,401—don't overlook the one—and all inside of 40 days.

It would be astounding to proceed further in these calculations for another month.

The Dealer's Part.

The result of these mathematics have a direct bearing on each grocer's trade in fly destroyers. The moral that every dealer should see is quite plain. If the public is thoroughly acquainted and impressed with the facts demonstrated above, fly destroyers are bound to sell early in the season.

Already an occasional fly may be seen about the house, having hibernated successfully.

"If those that first appear on the scene are annihilated," says Dr. Hastings, "imagine the fewer flies we will have two or three months hence. It is something in which every grocer should be directly interested and if united action is taken early every season for a few years there is no reason why the fly pest cannot practically be exterminated."

In referring to the breeding spots the medical health officer stated that the most favored places were stable refuse and garbage heaps or cans. Eggs are freely deposited in such places and very soon will be noticed almost lifeless forms stirring. Gradually these develop and at the end of about seven days large-sized maggots may be seen moving about in lively fashion. In three days more by some wonderful and unaccountable transition these "maggots" burst their shells and immediately start off as full grown flies.

"That's why we never see any young flies," he explained.

Keeping Them from the Store.

"To prevent flies around the store," the doctor stated, "all stable refuse should be thoroughly moved within ten days as well as garbage and other refuse. One of the best fly exterminators for a garbage can is chloride of lime; another is crude petroleum. No incubation will take place if all possible rendezvous are sprinkled regularly with either of these.

"The grocer should see that his neighbors' back yards are just as carefully attended to; if not flies are bound to congregate in the vicinity and since the rate of multiplication of their numbers is so enormous they are sure to become a nuisance to him."

Deadly Germ Conveyors.

Flies are the carriers of deadly bacteria and are the cause of much sickness and ill health. The crusade should be begun early. There is plenty to work on and early sales should be gratifying.

How About $2,000 to Start a Business

New Brunswick Clerk Raises Interesting Questions—Advice on Stopping the Something-for-nothing Game — Trading Stamps Should be Eliminated—Is Service Cause of High Cost of Living?

This man gives me a rather large order and one difficult to fill:

————, N.B., Feb. 7, 1912.

Henry Johnson, Jr.,
Canadian Grocer.

Dear Sir,—For the past few months I have been reading your interesting articles in The Grocer regarding proper management of a grocery business, etc., and I thought you might be able to give me some advice.

For a long time I have been looking forward to the time when I would start in business for myself and for the past ten years I have been working at the retail grocery business, and have acquired a good knowledge and experience in this line and, as well, during these years have been able to save a few dollars, so have been thinking of starting out on my own account, but before doing so I thought a little advice from one who has gone through it all would not be a bad idea.

What advice would you give a young man who has about $2,000 to invest in a grocery business in a city with a population of about 20,000 people, where there are already between 35 and 40 grocery stores, or rather, stores that handle groceries, along with other lines of goods? (The above being proportionately well scattered throughout the city).

What amount of stock would be advisable to put in, when starting? What amount of the $2,000 would you in this case set aside for store fixtures and delivery outfit?

What expenditure (monthly) would you consider sufficient to do a thousand dollars per month trade, where rent is, we will say, $30?

And lastly, would you advise a young fellow who is steady, willing to work hard, go slow, and with my experience, to go into a business of the size I have above mentioned, and with good prospects of enlarging this amount of trade, or would you advise him to remain in a position that pays $12 per week, with no prospects of a further advance in salary, unless it be with another firm?

Trusting that at your earliest convenience you may through the columns of The Grocer answer my inquiries. Thanking you in anticipation of an early reply

L. McR. A.

P.S.—Kindly omit my name and name of place; not that I care a great deal, but you will appreciate that it will be just as well that way.

Looks Like a Good Manager.

By all means this man should go into business for himself. First, because he has the experience and the money; the money saved by himself, moreover, showing he is a good manager. Second, because there is only the usual number of stores to population in the town. Third, because if he does not get into his own store soon, he will settle into the life-long clerk and never progress beyond that stage. He has plenty of capital to start with; and I am satisfied that the capital will not shrink so long as he handles it. I assume he has a bank account of $2,000, so banking connections are already made.

In laying out the suggestions I shall make, I want to preface that I am a great believer in the theory of "going slow," as this man suggests in his letter. Thus I shall harp on the safe, sure, conservative in all my computations and provisions. I shall do my best to start this man in right—just right—so that he will have the minimum to unlearn and undo. I shall lay out my plans in the light of lots that it took me years to learn; lots that many men never learn. Best of all, he is starting in 1912, and thus can do some things and enjoy some great advantages which could not be done or enjoyed twenty or thirty years ago.

But, as I have said, this is a large order. I shall have to let the details go over until next week.

Letter From United States Grocer.

Here is a letter which, somehow, I have overlooked:

————, Indiana, March 1, 1912.

Henry Johnson, Jr.,
Canadian Grocer.

Dear Sir,—Permit us to ask your advice regarding the discontinuation of trading stamps and cash register tickets, which we give at 2½ per cent. valuation. We did quit giving them at one time and were over-persuaded to put them in again, which we have always felt was wrong, and would like to put up a good and sufficient reason to the trade for taking the stand against them, but do not like to sacrifice trade in order to do so.

Could you briefly formulate a few reasons which we might set forth as stated above?

T. S. R.

You recall the fellow that could not accept certain accommodations for six reasons, and he proceeded to enumerate: "First, I have no money. Second—" "That will do," interrupted the seller. "You need not trouble to mention the other five."

So your first, best and amply sufficient reason is that you cannot afford to give away 2½ per cent.

How to go about it? In the words of Horace Greely: "The way to obtain resumption of specie payments is to resume." Likewise, the way to go about this is to stop it.

Back Bone, Not Wish Bone.

There is a vacillating tone to that letter. "We were over-persuaded . . . which we have always felt was wrong . . . but do not like the sacrifice trade." You cannot make your wish-bone do the work of your back-bone. Do not try it, nor depend on any such support. If you start one way and then swerve completely round again, you will not get anywhere. Your customers will run your business for you, as they evidently have eben doing, and there is only one end in sight for that kind of business.

I should like to have a statement of your business for 1911 and, if possible, for 1910 also. Then I could shape up

SWAT THE FLY.

If a fly deposits 150 eggs at a time; if it only takes 10 days to hatch under favorable circumstances full grown offspring, and if half of these are female flies and each begins the reproduction of a further 150, how long will it be before we have a million?

Here is a simple methematical problem. It is reasoned out on another page of this issue and the astonishing fact brought forward that in 40 days an army of 64,136,401 plunderers and germ carriers is in existence and all in direct lineal descendancy from the one ancestral stem.

This point is not emphasized just now from a curiosity motive. It has a straight business bearing on every retailer who sells poisons, stickers, traps, etc., for the annihilation of this household pest. As the article referred to points out, every female fly killed early in the season means millions less later on in the year.

By passing these facts on to customers in a logical, systematic manner, dealers have a strong lever with which to sell fly destroyers immediately. If you wait until flies are plentiful, until production is beyond computation, there will be little or no possibility of exterminating them in the houses of your customers. But by stocking, displaying and advertising fly destroyers now, and giving your customers the facts concerning the rapid multiplication characteristics of this nuisance much business can be done right away and customers will appreciate the warning.

Since flies breed best in refuse and garbage piles, it can be immediately seen that they are conveyers of disease germs and are therefore a grave detriment to the health of the country.

Now is the time to put your selling energy behind stickers, poisons and traps. Get them into every home at once; lend your knowledge to your customers to aid in the annihilation of the fly that has come through the winter unscathed and later on there will be fewer flies to contend with. In short, swat the fly.

WIDTH OF WAGON WHEELS.

A bill of interest to manufacturers, wholesalers and some retailers, to regulate the width of tires on wagons and other vehicles has been introduced into the Ontario Legislature. It provides that minimum width of four-wheeled vehicles shall be 3 inches for carrying capacity of 2,000 to 4,000 pounds, 4 inches for 4,000 to 6,000 pounds, 5 inches for 6,000 to 8,000 pounds and 6 inches for all having carrying capacity above 8,000 pounds.

The bill, if passed provides that after Jan. 1, 1914, no vehicle which does not comply with above regulations shall be sold in Ontario, nor after Jan. 1, 1918 shall any vehicle be driven which does not come within the regulations prescribed.

GET FULL VALUE FROM WINDOW.

The approach of Spring brings with it greater opportunities to the grocer who is ready to take advantage of them.

With the warmer weather people will frequent the streets more. This should be taken advantage of by the dealer. Attractive display will arrest the attention of the passing customers and if the display has sufficient merit it will turn the interest aroused into sales.

During the cold days of the winter even with a particularly good window, customers would not spend much time viewing it. The weather is now more conducive to sightseeing and a good window is sure to get a great deal more attention.

Every effort should therefore be put forward by the grocer to increase sales through the medium of his window. Good window displays will now mean more profit for the dealer.

ERRORS IN FILLING ORDERS.

To talk intelligently on the small leaks and errors in the grocery store, one must often go the consumer. A woman who is at all particular in her buying resents many in inconsistencies which never reach the ear of her dealer and he is therefore not in a position to correct matters.

A common grocery store error which has come to the writer's attention is making mistakes in taking down and filling orders. The dealer or clerk may write out the customer's order on the counter check-book and pass it on to the delivery man to fill. Mistakes such as 'jelly roll' for 'jelly powder,' 'a 10 cent tin' of pork and beans for 'two fives' etc. are actual instances of such errors. The order-taker simply wrote 'Jelly P,' the 'P,' being made much like an 'R,' and 'Pork and Beans,' 10 cents omitting the 'two.' The delivery man, of course, is not a mind-reader and could not be expected to fill all such orders correctly.

In such cases it would certainly be advisable to take more pains in writing down orders. If the order is delivered say late on a Saturday night, as was the case of the jelly roll, the customer is not in a position to change it, and her arrangements for Sunday dessert are blocked. This naturally is resented and if it occurs frequently a customer may be lost and the dealer know nothing as to the cause.

INSURANCE A DAILY CONSIDERATION.

Recently there was a fire in a grocery store, and when the flames had burned themselves out, and the owner of the store had time to figure his assets and liabilities, he discovered this distressing condition. He had bought the store a year or two before, and had then taken out an insurance policy covering the $6,000 worth of stock. Later he had added stock. He thought of adding to his insurance also, but put this off from day to day. So, when the fire came, this dealer had the $6,000 insurance and something like $14,000 stock. In other words he suffered an $8,000 loss.

Insurance is a peculiar thing. It is a safeguard—something which provides against future loss. This loss may or may not come, but it is practically as likely to come one minute as another. The dealer who lost this eight thousand, for instance, had intended to take proper precautions. He had simply delayed estimating what was his additional stock and taking out a policy.

This case simply shows the need which there is of keeping constant tab on stock. One up-to-date retailer keeps a tablet constantly before him. On this he has noted the stock on hand when a complete inventory was last made. Every day the sales and purchases are noted. By subtracting the sales from the stock, and adding the purchases, this dealer has constantly before him a statement of goods in his store that very day. If the value of this stock is greatly in excess of his insurance, a new policy is taken out immediately.

Such a system means a little expenditure of time and thought, but it also means true protection, and if insurance is worth buying, it is surely worth buying as wisely as a man would buy any other goods. Insurance in a grocery store is not something which may be secured in January for the whole year. The amount needed varies.

CHANGE IN BREAD ACT PROPOSED.

Grocers may thank their stars they are not bakers when it comes to the size of the loaf that shall or shall not be made.

Only last year in the Ontario Legislature the Nickel Bread Bill was passed intending to put a stop to the sale of 16 and 20-ounce loaves and more particularly the former which were called "fancy bread," "cream loaves," etc It was thought that by making the difference between "fancy" bread and the standard loaves a wide one the householder would have a better chance to see that he was getting full weight, and so the standard weights were fixed at 24 and 48 ounces, with "fancy" bread at 12 ounces.

J. A. Ellis, member for West Ottawa, now thinks the consumer is being "done." His claim is that the people now can get nothing but the 12-ounce "fancy" loaf for which they pay as much as was paid for the 16-ounce loaf. Mr. Ellis wants to see the Ontario Bread Sales Act amended to make the fancy loaf 16 ounces in weight instead of 12.

It must certainly take a lot of time for a baker to figure out where he is at these days, bread legislation being changed so often to suit the "dear public."

WHOLESALERS SELLING DIRECT.

From report of the regular meeting of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association on another page of this issue, it will be seen that retailers have some severe criticisms against those wholesalers who sell to their customers. Instances are given where retailers have lost business from boarding-houses in particular because these houses could get certain goods at wholesale price from the jobber or manufacturer.

Whatever there may be in the contention that hotels should be able to purchase wholesale, it doesn't appear to be a square deal to the retailer that small boarding-houses should be supplied in this way. One retailer reports a customer who kept a boarding-house telling him that now since she could purchase the bulkier goods at wholesale price, she would not be wanting as much from him. It meant that for the smaller goods she would use him as a convenience.

No retailer's temper could stand this. If the wholesale house sold her the goods that amounted to the large turnover, why not turn retail entirely and sell everything?

It is apparent that, with such conditions existing, something should be done to place things on a more satisfactory basis. No doubt there will be some misrepresentations made, and The Grocer would suggest business conferences between the two sections to determine exactly how far it is fair and just for wholesaler and retailer to go. If the position of each is known then each would know exactly how to act. If such a conference is held it should be a straight business affair so that the recognized rights of the trade would, at the conclusion, be clearly defined.

EFFECTS OF COAL STRIKE IN CANADA.

The Old Country coal miners' strike has had some effect on Canadian flour and cereal exports, due to cancellation of a few vessels in view of shortage of coal supplies. This means there is less space for freight, and millers are finding some difficulty in shipping.

While up to the present, the strike has had little effect on European goods coming via English ports, yet if it continues for any length of time, there will likely be shortages in some lines, such as rice, walnuts, figs, currants, etc.

Old Country manufacturers of foodstuffs have not as yet been hampered to any extent in the turning out of their products. The same necessity for large supplies of coal as are required by cotton, woolen and other manufacturers does not exist, and unless the strike is protracted for a long time—as is not likely to be the case—they will be easily able to take care of their export orders to this country.

The only difficulty, therefore, that might be at all a trade factor, is the possible shortage in freight accommodation. More trouble has been experienced by Canadian importers on account of dock-hand strikes than in the present coal miners' cessation of labor.

Dry weather last summer and bad roads now were and are responsible for many trade troubles. New-laid eggs don't seem to be able to stand the rural pitch-holes any more than they did Old Sol's fire.

If every retailer grocer in Canada were responsible for the death of one fly now, how many million less flies would there be in July? Echo answers 'how many?'

Wholesalers Arraigned for Selling Direct

Meeting of Retail Grocers Discuss Question Spiritedly and Decide to Take Action—Members Cite Instances Where They Have Lost Custom—Legislation Committee Has Matter in Charge—Attention to Hucksters—Many New Members.

Toronto, March 21.—(Special).—A crusade is to be instituted by the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association against wholesalers selling direct to consuming public. This grievance of the retail trade furnished one of the chief topics of conversation at the monthly meeting of the association on Monday night.

It was declared that this was an injustice to the retailer and was becoming even more prevalent in the city and numerous cases were cited by members where wholesale houses were going not only to the hotels and restaurants, but also to boarding houses and small householders. The storm of protest against what was considered as an outrage of trade principles gathered momentum as the discussion advanced and it was decided that it was time the retailers do something on their own behalf.

Selling Direct to Boarding Houses.

The ball was started arolling when one of the members cited a case in which a large Toronto house was going direct to boarding houses selling a staple grocery article. This house, he stated, have placed two men in the city to solicit trade from restaurants and at least the large boarding houses. His trade had been interfered with. One woman who had been purchasing 5 pounds of tea per week from him had stopped because this house was selling to her at wholesale prices. The house had admitted the fact to him, and in defense, said that wholesale grocers had been taking this trade and they felt they had just as much right to it.

"I'm not going to buy another pound of that firm's tea if I possibly can help it," this grocer declared. "I can sell my customers something else. Furthermore, I am telling every grocer I see just what this firm is doing."

"There are many wholesale houses," stated another member, "who make a special effort to get this business. The upright wholesalers who refrained from selling consumers found other houses were getting big trade while retailers were not standing behind those who acted square with them."

The Same for Twenty Years.

"They have been doing it for 20 years," said J. S. Bond, "but it is getting worse. It is not going to be improved either while we sit down and allow it to continue. One of my customers was able to purchase goods in small quantities from a wholesale house. She said she had a friend down there. The heads of firms must know this is going on. If they want us to buy from them they must stop selling to consumers."

"I have a customer—there are three in the family—who purchases about $50 worth per month," said D. Bell. "Last month she informed me that her bill wouldn't be so large after this as she was going to get the bulkier goods from a wholesaler."

Cheque for $800.

"I know of a traveler," stated another, "who had a check for $800 from one boarding house for a month's trade. This house is giving little attention to retail trade, devoting itself mostly to hotels, restaurants and boarding houses. Still they call themselves wholesalers."

Should Define Consumer.

"We must find out what the wholesalers consider the dividing line," said W. C. Miller. "There is no doubt many of these places use more than retailers but the small boarding house certainly should not come within their jurisdiction. I know of a case where six tins of peas and corn and 5 pounds of raisins and currants were delivered to a residence. That trade belongs to the retail grocer."

"We must get our forces in such a shape," declared D. W. Clark, "that we will be able to say what must be done. We must have our organization as strong as possible."

Stand By Friends.

"There are several houses in Toronto," said Neil Carmichael, "who stand by retailers, but they are forced almost to breaking this trade principle because retailers don't stick by them."

"Those are the houses that we want to stand by," declared a member, and the rest showed their approval of the statement.

Different in Hamilton.

"A traveler was telling me of a case showing that in some places at least wholesalers keep within their own realm. He was in a Hamilton wholesale house and seeing a small box of superior looking figs expressed a wish to take a box home with him. 'No, I couldn't sell them to you,' the clerk stated. 'We sell to no one but retailers. Not even an employe of the firm can buy anything from us,' said the sample room man."

This statement aroused a cheer from the meeting. "That's keeping within their own." "That's the kind of a house the retailers want to stand behind," were some of the remarks made.

Discussion finally brought the question to a head and the Legislative Committee of the Association was instructed to ascertain the best way of meeting with this trouble by acquainting the retail trade with those houses who were alleged violaters of this trade principle.

Hucksters Calling Out Their Wares.

The Legislative Committee is also to approach the city council to have a by-law passed preventing hucksters from calling out their wares on the street. Neil Carmichael was appointed chairman of the Legislative Committee.

The opinion was expressed that the law should be enforced regarding helpers on peddlers' wagons. It was charged that several men often worked from a wagon on only one license.

"A member of the city council told me that the peddler's license should be $50 instead of $10 as now," said one member.

Some Money Voted.

An appropriation of $25 was voted to the Provincial Organization Committee for preliminary work in promoting this organization. Some means and methods in regard to forwarding the movement of provincial organization were taken up.

New Members Proposed.

The following new members were proposed by Organizer Frank Johnston:—H. W. Brown, Carlton St.; G. L. Dean, Harbord St.; Philip Saccein, Montrose Ave.; W. Massin, Queen St.; J. Butcher, Queen St.; W. Carlton, Gerrard St.; R. H. Stewart, Sherbourne St.; J. Burns, Gerrard St.; O. Cowdy, Broadview Ave.; H. Gentle, College St.; and W. J. Dillon, J. Frazer, J. W. Ward, G. Gervin, E. H. Mitchell, J. Anderson, and W. A. Ford, of Queen St.

CATALOGUES AND BOOKLETS.

The Oscar Onken Co., Cincinnati, Ohio, U.S.A., have issued there 1912 catalogue. This contains a large number of illustrations showing the various designs of their window fixtures for assisting in making displays, and uses to which these can be put. A number of testimonials from Canadian and United States dealers are given, stating their reasons for appreciating these window fixtures which, as is pointed out, are made for all classes of retail trade.

A Spring House Cleaning Window Display

Now is the Time to Get Housewives Interested—Spring Cleaning Around the Home Has Begun—Suggestion for a Window Trim that Can be Arranged With Little Trouble.

In The Grocer of March 1 it was urged that all retailers be prepared for the Spring house-cleaning trade by getting in stocks early and advertising them through displays, personal talks, etc.

Herewith is given a window suggestion which can be easily arranged by dealer or clerk. To dress the window as shown here it will be necessary to have a temporary background at least, on which to suspend the brooms and brushes.

Suggestion for a House Cleaning Window Trim Which can be Arranged with little Difficulty.

Fan-Shaped Design.

Brooms and brushes arranged in fan-shaped style will always attract attention. These, it will be noted, are placed at the back of the window. If there is no background a bunch of brooms could be shown at either corner, the whitewash brushes could be tacked on to a temporary easel and two floor brushes crossed on it as well.

A dozen and one different arrangements can be made of cleansers such as sweeping powders, lyes, soap, etc. One is suggested here with the sweeping powders arranged in semi-circular shape from either side of the window, with a pyramid pile of lyes forming the junction in the centre. Piles of soap within the curves of the semi-circles not only relieve the bareness, but add an attractiveness the window didn't have before.

Use Show Cards.

With little extra trouble round, square or pyramid piles of other cleansers could be placed in the corners. A show card or two bearing such phrases as "For Cleaning the Home," "Conquerors of the Enemy, Dirt," "Enemies of Dirt," etc., will undoubtedly add to the selling power of such a window.

Dealers should be careful not to mix something else which has no bearing on house-cleaning in this window. The most effective trim is the one containing a certain article or articles associated with one another. Sugar, salt or canned goods should not be included in a house-cleaning display. Concentration is the effect to be produced and no person can concentrate on a trim showing several articles not associated with each other. The selling qualities of the display is impaired, if not lost altogether, and the time spent on it is, therefore, partially or totally wasted.

Present, Time to Act.

Now, while house-cleaning is in every housewife's mind, is the time to make a display. Spring is here in real earnest, and someone is going to get the business. Try a display like the above and see if results accrue. If they do, follow it up with a different display showing other goods. Soon it will be too late to attract new customers. Get them now while the fever is red hot. Delay only means so much less business.

CATALOGUES AND BOOKLETS.

John Hillock & Co., Toronto, have issued an attractive new catalogue on their various refrigerators. It contains 48 pages of informative and descriptive matter, the majority of which are illustrated by half-tone cuts of their different makes. The booklet has a green cover, and is different in construction from the ordinary, being one of those that opens out and folds up.

Canadian Grocery News Done In Brief

Packing Firm Buys Land in Winnipeg—Cairns Store in Saskatoon Sold—Jam Factory for Vernon, B.C.—Hampton, N.B., Merchants Attract Buyers—Fire in Rowat Store at London—Business Changes.

Western Canada.

Elizabeth McConnell, Pilot Mound, Man., grocer, has sold to Sellwood & Cleghorn.

Wm. Bush, grocer, Plum Coulee, Man., is succeeded by A. Bush.

H. J. Smith, Regina, Sask., grocer, has sold to Peacock Merton.

James Lambro, a grocer of Grand Forks, N. D., was arrested in Winnipeg on a charge of grand larceny amounting to over $50,000, laid by Nash Bros. Corporation, of Grand Forks, N. D.

Matthews, Lang & Co., Hull, Montreal, Toronto and Peterborough, have purchased a site on the corner of James and Louise Streets, Winnipeg, on which will likely be erected an eight-storey building. The amount involved in the purchase is around $50,000.

A jam and bottling factory and a fruit cannery is to be established in Vernon, B. C., by British capitalists. One or two canneries are in operation further down the Okanagan Valley, and a jam factory is established at Nelson, in the Kootenay Valley.

A $17,000 addition is to be made to the biscuit and confectionery plant in Vancouver, B. C., owned by Ramsay Bros.

J. F. Cairns' department store in Saskatoon, Sask., has been sold to an English syndicate for $236,000. The whole of the Cairns property, situated at the corner of Second Avenue and Twenty-first Street, except the fixtures of the store, was included in the sale, and operations have already commenced upon the building of a new establishment at the corner of Second Avenue and Twenty-third Street. The permit for this structure, valued at $180,000, was taken out last year. The English firm have not yet announced for what purpose their newly-acquired property will be used.

F. J. Rolston, president of the South Vancouver Retail Merchants' Association, and a grocer, is the leader in the action against the B. C. Telephone Company. A new exchange was established in South Vancouver, and now merchants in one part have to pay five cents to be able to telephone to others in another part. What is termed the discrimination is against a limited number. To give their protests effect, the merchants have united and sent in due notice to the company to have their telephones taken out. The company, however, has not as yet moved the instruments. As long as they are in, the patron pays rental.

Quebec and Maritime Provinces.

O. E. A. Beaudoin, grocer, Montreal, has sold to Alphonse Denault.

G. W. Rheault, Montreal, has purchased the grocery of Alfred Corbeil.

The enterprize of the Hampton, N. B., business firms and citizens was exemplified last week by the holding of winter sports in that town, which attracted large crowds. Horse racing, hockey and curling were the chief events, prizes being awarded to winners of the first. Patronage was drawn from a radius of 20 miles of the surrounding country, and business firms report a marked impetus to business for the afternoon, and are well satisfied. The Grocer congratulates this hustling New Brunswick town on its aggressiveness, and would say that some of our oldest subscriptions to The Grocer are from this little business centre.

Ontario.

A dissolution of partnership in firm of McIntosh & Cameron, Goderich, Ont., took place last week. Each partner will continue business separately. Mr. McIntosh will open in the centre store of the Murray block, next to the Bank of Hamilton, and Mr. Cameron will retain the present store in the Allin block.

The grocery business of MacCharles Bros., Goderich, Ont., has been sold to W. J. Spindler, who takes possession in the near future.

Chute & Smith, St. Thomas, Ont., have sold to J. N. Charlton.

Pearce & Marrette, Marmora, Ont., have dissolved partnership, F. W. Marrette & Co., continuing.

E. A. Layman, of Hamilton, has sold his grocery to F. L. Benson.

A. Finlayson has purchased the general store of Truesdale & Bond, Port Dover, Ont.

The South London branch store of T. A. Rowat & Co., London, Ont., was damaged by fire last Thursday night. The stock is nearly all destroyed by water. The family living over the store managed to escape in their night clothes. This firm will, however, be able to take care of customers at their other store.

RESULTS FROM U. S. FOOD AND DRUGS ACT.

proven." This was really a defeat for Dr. Wiley, and their success encouraged other assaults by powerful interests. For five years there have been unceasing attacks on Dr. Wiley, who has defended himself gallantly, but one man cannot hold out forever against a multitude, and Dr. Wiley has this week resigned his position and retired into private life. He says he will be of more use to the cause of "pure food" as a private citizen, so it is evident he means to keep up the fight. It can be truly said of him that the people love him for the enemies he has made.

Legislation must always be judged by its moral effect, rather than the actual working of the letter of the law. From this point of view the Food and Drug Act is undoubtedly a success. They say a spectator always sees most of the game. This is especially true of radical legislation. A foreigner observes the general effect in raising the business standards of a country, while the petty difficulties and squabbles are hidden from his view.

Five years ago the United States had a bad reputation for adulterated foods and drugs, but to-day, its name for honesty is second to none. Sharp practices, misbranding, dishonest trade customs have largely disappeared. A Canadian buyer in the United States market knows he will get exactly what he pays for. There has been a great moral awakening in the trade generally. In most cases manufacturers have shown themselves anxious not only to keep the letter of the law, but to go a long way towards keeping the spirit of it. The manufacturer has often been accused of spending a great deal of his energy and brains in trying to evade good laws and endeavoring to deceive the public.

This may have been true once, but is undoubtedly false to-day. Conditions have changed. The big successful firms believe in a "square deal," and others have had to follow their example. The food business, which used to be one of secrets and dark mystery, is now one of almost brutal frankness. Formerly it was almost impossible to get inside a food factory; everything was guarded with the utmost care, but now the public are welcomed. The change of attitude is really marvellous and has come in five years. Dr. Wiley has resigned, but his work is permanent; the United States people will never go back to the old conditions. The work must go on, despite differences of opinion over details which are insignificant when shown against the background of the whole movement.

In the next paper we will show what Canada has done.

Montreal, March 21.—Trade for the week has been brisk and satisfactory from every point of view. Dealers are now busy preparatory to their spring shipments and claim the season is starting with much more vigor than this time last year. The mild weather has made it possible for shipping to run freely and dealers do not hesitate to take advantage of this opportunity to hasten their delivery.

Rice, as the trade has been acquainted through these columns would be the case, has declined 20 cents per cwt. This is on Montreal milled Rangoon and is result of arrival of new crop on market.

Another change of week is ¼ cent advance in starches, both laundry and culinary. Approach of spring with brisker demand is probably at least partly accountable for the rise.

SUGAR.—Sugar for the week is without feature, prices remaining firm with demand of a limited order. No tendencies towards easing off in price are yet in sight and it may be some time before the market offers any activity.

CANNED GOODS.

TORONTO.—Tardy movement of canned goods is still reported. Here and there bright spots appear. Opening of navigation about a month hence will probably bring a brisker demand as some dealers are undoubtedly holding off for cheaper freight rates.

Canned milk manufacturers are still behind with orders. One firm has notified their Toronto agent to discontinue pushing sale of their line until they get caught up. Factories report a marked scarcity of milk. High price of butter and cheese is without doubt inducing farmers to send their milk to butter and cheese factories. Consumption of canned milk is also steadily increasing.

Blueberries is one line of fruit which is quite scarce. It will be remembered that canners of blueberries in Eastern provinces delivered only 25 to 40 per cent. of orders. From $6 to $6.50 is now being asked for gallon blueberries.

Gallon apples which have been moving out rather freely are firmer, one firm quoting as high as $3.20.

Canned lobsters continue firm under small supplies.

Toronto, March 21.—Although marked with quiet periods at times, a fairly good routine trade is reported by most wholesale grocers. The future is looked forward to with confidence, and trade is shortly expected to show greater activity.

In the first place, opening of spring generally instils more life into trade, although it is argued that bad roads may prove somewhat of an interference to business in the country for a time. Easter, with greater opportunities for the grocer, is near at hand and retail dealers are now planning for more trade when the ban has been lifted from public appetites. Spring house-cleaning will bring a bigger demand for soaps, lyes, cleansers, brooms, brushes and kindred lines, while seeds will also shortly begin to move. Retailers are already commencing to show these lines.

Shipping of perishable goods, such as pickles, catsups, relishes and vinegar, has not become safe as yet as temperature frequently takes downward dips. There was some shipments of these goods sent out during warmer days at first of week, but at buyer's risk and mostly for short distances.

Opening of navigation which generally does not take place until well on in April will give added impetus to trade. Retailers in certain districts are holding off in their purchases so as to get benefit of lower freight rates.

Refined sugar is unchanged, although raws are easier. Cuba has been sending forth more favorable reports of late. Refined sugar is quoted at $5.65 in bags on Toronto basis as compared with $4.60 one year ago.

Starch prices have been advanced during week by reason of higher raw material and anticipated brisker demand with opening of spring. All lines are quoted ¼ cent per pound higher with exception of lower grade culinary which is ½ cent higher.

If English coal strike continues it is feared that shipment of goods manufactured in England as well as those shipped through England will be somewhat interfered with.

SUGAR—There has been no change in Canadian refined, although raws during week developed an easier tone, and New York refined declined in price. There has been more sugar arriving in New York than refiners could reasonably care for at moment, and thus the easier feeling. The English coal strike has also had some effect in depressing market.

The future of sugar is uncertain. During past week Cuba has been showing up more favorably, but there is still danger of adverse turn in situation, so that no definite opinion of future can be formed at moment.

SYRUP AND MOLASSES — Corn syrups still continue to move freely, and although manufacturers are catching up somewhat with orders, they are still behind.

No new maple syrup has arrived, but meanwhile this being syrup season, dealers would do well to give these lines prominence.

DRIED FRUITS—Briskness has not yet developed in dried fruits, and many wholesalers report that most lines are still moving tardily.

For some reason dried fruits have not moved out this season with the briskness of other years. Wholesalers are still carrying fair stocks in most lines. One broker says that while he generally has two or three assorted cars sold by this time in the new year, this year he has sold none, as wholesalers' stocks are still complete enough.

While so far trade has been somewhat disappointing, wholesale dealers are by no means despairing. There are still several months to go before arrival of new fruit, while it is felt that the season of brisk demand is just now opening.

Meanwhile steadiness prevails in prices. Evaps are unchanged, but there are few left throughout the country, suggesting continued steadiness.

TEA—No more than a routine trade can be reported in tea. Values locally hold steady, while the same is true on primary markets. Slight easiness has ruled at English auctions by reason of depression on account of labor troubles in that country.

COFFEE—Strong position which coffee has held is maintained. Market is decidedly firm, and continues to strengthen steadily. Business is routine, but quite up to previous years for this time of year.

Chicory is firmer in price, being quoted from 12 to 14 cents locally. High prices for coffee naturally brings a larger demand for chicory and under limited supplies, market is firm.

NUTS—Shelled walnuts are quoted at a lower price. General figure rules around 30 cents per pound. One wholesaler quotes 27 cents in case lots, and 28 to 30 in small lots. Shelled almonds are, if anything, a little firmer and rule at 35 to 38 cents.

Easter being a kind of festive season, many retailers take advantage of it to push sale of nuts. Spring generally brings a better demand for peanuts. Trade at present continues mostly for small lots.

RICE AND TAPIOCA.—The announcement was made in these columns some time ago that Rangoon rice for March 12 delivery was quoted at 20c per cwt. below prices ruling then. This went into effect this week, when prices were markd down 20c, making standard B, $3.55 pr cwt. here. The lower prices are made possible by coming forward of new crop.

A month ago Rangoon for May 1 delivery was quoted at 30c below price ruling then. Considerable booking was done at this figure, but primary market having firmed somewhat, it is understood that this offer has been withdrawn.

Other varieties of rice, however, remain steady and firm.

Rice with the lower prices and opening of spring should move more briskly.

OLIVE OIL—A dispatch from France on olive oil says:

"The crop of olives of this year is necessarily fairly good in the different producing countries, that will allow of prices becoming normal to some extent, and the consumption of olive oil in the world will certainly increase.

"So far only current and average qualities have been made—the unfavorable weather having kept back the gathering of the olives—and the extra qualities will not be made until after March. Prices are fairly steady on account of the large requirements which exist everywhere, both in the shipping and consuming districts.

"It will hardly be before next month when supplies will have been got and when olive oil is more plentiful, that we shall see quotations well established. Broadly speaking, we shall have very good olive oils this year."

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Syrup—Advanced.

Beans—Going up; scarce.

Winnipeg, March 21.—There are several changes in prices this week. The spring rush seems to be under fair way. Firms report business exceptionally good, and the different construction camps opening up now will make things move quite briskly.

The market is full of strength, and some lines show quite an advance. Syrup had another advance of 10c, and is firm, while corn starch is up a ½c lb. and laundry starch ¼c lb. Beans also are up 5c per bushel.

SUGAR—Sugar remains practically the same. The market is still firm, and indications point to higher prices.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

St. John, March 21.—The chief item of interest in local grocery circles during past week, aside from general briskness in business was a drop of ten cents in price of sugar and general nervous condition reported concerning market. Paris lumps remain unchanged, however, and are high in price, being from $6.75 to $7. Another rise in beans is looked for, and they are quoted as being firm and scarce, both h.p. and y.e. stocks being none too plentiful.

Country market has been liberally supplied with eggs last few days and indications are that they will be cheaper even than they now are in price. From 22 to 26 cents was asked for eggs this week but it was thought that if they continued to be brought to market in such plentiful supply as was the case during past week, it would not be many days before a further drop was noted. Butter also is a little easier and is becoming more plentiful with approach of milder weather. It is still quite high.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, March 21.—An advance in price of butter and drop in price of eggs are principal features in the local market. Early last week eggs were scarce, but towards the latter part they came in good supply. They are selling at wholesale to-day at 28 cents. Eggs are higher here to-day than they are in Montreal, which is not usually the case. All the stock offering is good and fresh.

Butter is on scarce side and it has taken a decided jump. All dealers report a general scarcity of first-class stock. One week ago several lots of fresh dairy butter came on market, and it was thought receipts would continue right along. There was a marked change during past week, however, All the good stock offering was bought up, creamery advancing to 32 and 33 cents, and dairy (choice) stock to 28 and 29 cents.

HOW ABOUT $2,000 TO START A BUSINESS?

plenty of solid stuff in the way of reasoning to show why you cannot do this thing. Believe me, there is nothing so good, so convincing, so effective, as facts plainly and simply set forth. If you will send me that information I shall work this up for you; but meantime, here is a suggestion:

Service and Cost of Living.

Everybody is agitated about the "cost of living." Consumers are about ripe for the information that the real trouble is the cost of service. Thirty years ago a man could make a net margin out of a total average of, say, 15 per cent. Ten years ago he would have nothing left unless he got an average of 20 per cent. To-day it requires a good manager to get by on less than 25 per cent. This is because:

Clerks cost more, and we need more clerks.
Horses cost more, and we need more horses.
Deliveries cost more, and we make more deliveries.

All of which is the result of the demand for more service.

To-day practically nobody carries home any goods; everybody has a telephone; orders mostly come by phone.

To-day the variety carried is twice as great as a few years ago. Perishable goods abound everywhere, where formerly most groceries could be sold next week as well as to-day.

But there is one rule that has not changed. That is, two plus two continue to make four. Hence, if we are to give away 2½ per cent., we must first charge an extra 2½ per cent. There is no way to get around that fact.

The Bonus Must be Dropped.

We may "jolly" about this as we like. The facts still stare us in the face. They will not be side-stepped. So there is just one way to handle it. Drop the 2½ per cent. bonus. Do that definitely, but quietly. Then tell inquirers plainly, seriously, but without any attempt to dodge the issue, that you cannot do it any longer and do justice to your customers.

If it cost you 16 per cent. to do business, you are probably getting a net margin of 4 per cent. on sales for yourself. Put that up to inquiring customers, in plain English, as reason enough for cutting out the bonus.

Then stick to it. You will temporarily drop a few customers; but then you must simply redouble your efforts to do better in other ways. Being diligent in the essentials of rendering good service and selling satisfactory goods. Customers of real value will return and plenty of desirable ones will come to you to take the place of those who stay away, because not really desirable.

Stick to it. Do not let the "overpersuader" get you a second time.

Coal Strike Affecting Export Flour Trade

Ocean Space at Premium - Dealers Should Not Relinquish Efforts on Flour and Cereals With Advent of Spring — Temperature of Next Few Months Should be Excellent for Consumption—Rolled Oats Hold Steady Position — Flour Inclined to Quietness at Some Centres.

Spring is in the air, and warmer weather is gradually embracing the Dominion. Somehow some dealers regard the advent of spring season as a token to relinquish the pushing of flour and cereals. Such should not be the case.

The statement that cereals do not sell as well during warm weather may be true, but the temperature of spring months is ideal for large consumption of cereals by consuming public. The dealer should, therefore, not neglect to give prominence to cereal stocks. It is a suicidal policy to suggest to customers that the use of an article is out of line by failing to give it prominence deserved. Flour should also meet with a steady demand during spring months.

As regards the market, rolled oats hold steady position outlined last week, with raw material not only holding up strong, but also tardy in arriving at mills. Millers report that as yet warmer weather has had little or no effect on retail demand for cereals. Export values on oatmeal have been advanced 6d, showing tendency of market.

Flour trade, while it might be better, is conceded as fair. The heavy buying previous to late advance no doubt is responsible for present quietness reported by some mills. Instances are not lacking of mills being handicapped by want of wheat on account of freight congestion. Little relief in freight problem can hardly be looked for until opening of navigation. Millers say navigation generally opens up around April 20.

Effects of English coal strike are being felt by exporters of flour and cereals. Ocean space has already been at a premium for a time, and probability of some sailings being cancelled makes matters worse. If this continues it also looks like higher ocean freight rates.

FLOUR—No new features have developed in flour during week In car lots, first patents are quoted at $5.60 per barrel. Domestic demand is fair, but considerable business was booked previous to advance, detracting somewhat from present trade.

Winter wheat flour shows quite marked steadiness. Offerings are not large, while millers realizing that country roads may shortly interfere with delivery of raw material are somewhat firmer in their ideas.

NORTHWEST WHEAT CROP.

The surprising manner in which the receipts of wheat keep pouring into Winnipeg and Fort William is proof that the crop was much larger than the most sanguine experts dared to predict. One large exporter states that judging from unprecedentedly heavy receipts, that if the wheat crop of the Canadian West had been properly matured and harvested in an average good condition, it would have reached 250,000,000 bushels.

TRADE WITH WEST INDIES.

Montreal, Que., March 21—(Special)—A conference will take place in Ottawa about the end of the month between 18 delegates from the British West Indian League and the Canadian Government regarding trade between the two countries.

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy is president of the Canadian West Indian League and the delegates from the B. W. I. are to be his guests. He has placed a special car at their service while in Canada. Delegates will be given a banquet by the Board of Trade and C. W. I. League, and also a luncheon by the C. W. I. League and the Mount Royal Club.

Head of the Lakes View of Grain Blockade

Western Farmer and Elevator Man Disagree—Former Wants Cars Distributed as Ordered, Latter to Suit Conditions—Political Parties' Delay in Deciding Terminal Elevator Question, Partly Cause of Lack of Storage.

Port Arthur, Ont., March 21.—(Special.)—Everywhere through the West the question of grain congestion is the leading topic of interest among all classes. Here at the head of the Great Lakes it is no less so than elsewhere, the only difference being that it is discussed from another standpoint. On the prairies the grain growers' side of the subject is the one of absorbing interest. Here it is the elevator people's views that are the most in evidence —both looking at the question from the standpoint of their own interest.

Among the farmers, the recent action of Parliament in changing the law regulating the distribution of cars is almost universally condemned, while here it is strongly upheld. The men of the plains are most emphatic in their condemnation of the proposal to allow the mixing of wheat in the elevators, but in the Twin Cities this action is considered quite justifiable, and is argued to be in the best interests of the farmers.

Want Cars in the Order Ordered.

In regard to the first of these changes, it is proposed to do away with the rule compelling the transportation companies to distribute cars to farmers and elevators in strict rotation as their names appear on the car order books, which names the railway agent is compelled to keep in the order the applications are made.

This law the farmers claim has worked out very well, but the elevator owners think otherwise, and the new act proposes to allow the grain commissioners the power to distribute cars out of the regular order to parties who can show that they have grain that is in bad condition and requires immediate shipment. The proposal upon the face of it, the grain growers say, looks quite innocent, but it is the practical working out of it they fear. It is claimed by the promoters of the change that it is in the best interests of the grain growers, whose real benefit they have at heart, but the latter do not so regard it. They have had experience with the elevator men's philanthropic proposals before.

For them the voice is the voice of Jacob, but the hands are the hands of Esau; and however plausable the reasons given, it is in their estimation bound to work to their disadvantage and in the interests of the elevator operators.

In reference to the proposal to allow the mixing of grain in the elevators, it is claimed by those operating them here that it is in the interests of all concerned, that it will facilitate the handling of grain by the railways and elevators and will not adversely affect the price of wheat, nor work any injury to the farmer, nor prejudice the reputation of Western wheat in the opinion of the foreign buyer.

All those contentions are combated by the farmers of the plains. It is claimed by them that any tampering with the grades of wheat in the elevators must injure its reputation in the eyes of the British or Eastern Canadian buyer, and it is further claimed that the allowing of mixing in the elevators after the grain has passed out of the hands of the farmer cannot be of any benefit to him.

The grain blockade is another phase of the subject that is as keenly discussed here as on the prairie. On all sides one hears the railways condemned for their alleged inability to transport the products of the Western farmers. It is charged that the latter have not kept pace with the development of the country, but that they have been inclined to rest upon their oars, and to use the expression of an Eastern journal, 'take profits,'

Should Not Bear All Blame.

In view of all the facts, however, the allegations, although so freely made and so widely believed, are scarcely justifiable. The railways may not have done all that they might have done, but it is scarcely fair to lay the whole blame upon their shoulders. The statement made by Mr. Bury, of the C.P.R., recently, that his company had appropriated more money annually for extensions than could be used, is questioned in many quarters.

A usually well-informed contributor to Farmer's Magazine in a recent article, makes a jest of the assertion. Those who have traveled extensively through the West are aware of the fact that all three of the great transcontinental lines have been pushing building as fast as they could get men and material to do it with, and in many parts of the West there are miles of grading done for which there is no steel available to lay the tracks, the rail mills of Canada being utterly unable to turn out sufficient material to meet the demand.

Storage Capacity Inadequate.

As we tried to point out in a recent article in The Grocer, the trouble is not so much in transportation facilities as storage capacity. There are at present hundreds of freight cars and many locomotives that might be employed in transportating grain if there were any place to store it. Here, at the head of the lakes, all the elevators and store houses are full to their utmost capacity. The immense seven million bushel elevator of the C.N.R., the largest in the world, can hold no more. The same is true of the G.T.P.R., with a capacity of three and a half million, while all the C.P.R. elevators are in the same condition.

It may be said, and is said in view of the great development: Why did not the railway companies build more storage? This is a reasonable question but the responsibility for the failure to provide necessary accommodation for the rapidly increasing products of the West can scarcely be all laid at the door of the transportation companies. There are others. The statesmen at Ottawa, engaged as they have been in the all-absorbing game of party politics, are largely responsible for the trouble. For some time past there has been a strong agitation in favor of the taking over of the terminal elevators by the Government, and instead of settling the question definitely one way or another, a year ago, as they should have done, both political parties juggled with it, hoping to gain party advantage, while in the end nothing was done.

In view of this unsettled condition of affairs it was scarcely to be expected that the railway companies, or any one else, would invest large sums of money in the building of store houses with the prospect of their being taken out of their hands before they were finished. It is sincerely hoped, now that the matter is apparently settled, that the building of increased elevator and storage capacity will be vigorously prosecuted, not only here at the head of the lakes, but at points westward, as suggested in The Grocer recently. The neglect to do this has involved the loss of probably millions of dollars worth of grain and caused much bad feeling that might have been avoided.—David Williams.

The Canadian Credit Men's Association, Ontario division, heard an address on Thursday evening, March 21, at Toronto, given by Alfred H. Burt, president of the National Candy Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Milder Weather Improving Fruit Trade

Vegetable Trade Also Picking up—People Frequenting Streets More—Florida Tomatoes and Celery Coming Along in Larger Quantities—Potato Situation Varies at Different Centres.

The milder weather prevailing in many sections of Dominion has brightened trade in fruits and vegetables materially. As spring advances and milder temperature and brighter days become more regular and unbroken by dips back into winter conditions, trade in these lines can be expected to take on greater activity. It is pointed out by wholesale dealers that not only does the warmer weather bring forth a larger number of prospective purchasers, but it makes the display of these lines an easier problem.

Florida tomatoes have been coming along to Canadian market in larger quantities and being of good quality have met with ready sales. Florida has also been sending forth larger supplies of celery, and this line has also been taken up well by the trade. Western Canada is taking California stock, but the eastern provinces are buying a comparatively small amount of this.

Canadian onions are well to an end. Any that are still to be had are held at fancy prices. Spanish have been in good demand, but they, too, are high and nearing the end of their season. Egyptian onions will, however, shortly be added to Canadian list and will be badly needed.

Potato situation varies somewhat in different sections of country. Approach of spring and opening of pits will increase supplies in some districts. Dealers express fear that on account of extremely cold weather many potatoes may have been frosted during winter and will come out of pits in poor condition. There has been quite a quantity of English and Irish potatoes imported and this has slightly eased situation at some centres.

Oranges, lemons and grapefruit are all moving fairly well. Pineapples will shortly be given more attention under larger shipments and better prices. Strawberry prices also point downward.

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUITS—Green fruits continue in good request with no important changes for the week. Snow storms last week caused a delay in shipments. Supplies in most lines are up to the mark and may show a decline in price with the spring imports. Florida oranges and pineapples show a decrease as a result of increased supplies. New strawberries are coming in freely and are meeting with a favorable demand. They are now quoted at 50c to 65c.

Florida celery advanced this week, owing to scarcity. As predicted in the last issue, cauliflower advanced again and may go higher as a result of small stocks. New cabbages have arrived on the market and are selling from $7.50 to $8.

GREEN FRUITS—Arrival of milder weather and brighter days is proving material help to fruit trade. Dealers are hoping for a continuance of it. Pineapples are shortly expected to come in for more attention. Lemons, oranges and grapefruit show a fairly steady demand.

Good Time to Sell Fruits and Vegetables

New and Appetizing Goods Coming on Market of Splendid Quality—With Warmer Weather Window Displays Will be Given More Attention—A Window Trim Suggestion.

This is a time of year when it will well pay the grocer to give special attention to his fruit and vegetable department. With the arrival of warmer weather, a good many more people frequent the streets, as well as visit the stores. The past couple of months have been rather cold, and people have found it more to their liking to keep within their homes. The higher temperature and brighter days will once more, however, induce them to come forth, and displays of fruits and fresh vegetables at this time will bring more business than for some time in the past.

Easter Helps Fruit Trade.

There is also another reason why retail dealers should bolster up fruit and vegetable departments now. Easter, a festive season somewhat akin to Christmas, is close at hand, and there should accordingly be a special demand for these lines.

New Vegetables on Market.

It is true that dry root vegetables are scarce, but let the grocer not despair. There are many lines of fresh vegetables to be had which will delight both the eye and the appetite. Florida tomatoes of excellent quality are now on the market. It is needless to say they are appetizing. There is also new celery, and although the price is high, the quality is good. Then there are new cucumbers, head lettuce, radish and green onions. New cabbage is also arriving, while California is sending along cauliflower.

Imported Fruits of Good Quality.

There are also plenty of fruits to induce business. Good quality oranges are now coming from Florida and California. Florida, Cuban and Jamaica grapefruit is to be had. Keg grapes are still available, while to the large purse dealers may offer English hot house grapes. Add to this list delicious Florida strawberries and pineapples and you surely have an array of fruit that should bring business.

What Good Display Is.

All merchants agree that display is a most important factor in selling fruits and vegetables. Tossing the goods in stock on counter or into window is display in a certain fashion, but not in the best fashion. Care must be taken. Cleanliness should prevail. The display should be symmetrical whenever possible. Put the goods before your customers in the most attractive form. It will assist materially in selling them.

Window display, especially at the present time, will create business. With warmer weather people are more likely to stop to look at a window display—that is if it has sufficient merit to induce them to do so.

The window shown here may be of some assistance to the trimmer in arranging a display. The window proper had sufficient merit to arrest the attention of many a passer-by. Two rows of apples were followed by a wide layer of Malaga grapes. Pineapples and dates combined with box confectionery form the centrepiece. The window is evenly balanced by a symmetrical pyramid of oranges on both sides. It will be noticed that a window shelf hung by wires from the ceiling holds some other lines.

Neatly arranged fruit display which sold some goods.

MAPLE SUGAR QUESTION AGAIN.

St. John Dealers Interested—Adulterated Article Claimed is Being Sold.

St. John, N.B., March 21.—(Special).—Keen interest is being evinced by local grocers in a matter which concerns the trade in general, but particularly those who make a specialty of catering to the wants of their customers from the confectionery department, the placing on the market of an article which is displayed as "pure maple sugar," but which, it is claimed, has no just cause for bearing this description. A protest has been made to the Inland Revenue Department of the Customs and the matter is to be taken up vigorously, so that the outcome is being awaited with interest by local dealers and the public as well.

H. S. Godard, of Elgin, Albert County, was in St. John this week and brought a large stock of maple candy, sugar and honey or syrup, and he complained most bitterly that it had been allowed some others to place on the market an article which they told the unsuspecting purchaser, was "pure maple sugar." He said that about this time of year, just when people were beginning to think that it was time for the first arrivals of maple stock, there was placed on the market a bogus article, composed largely of molasses, sugar, and "left-overs" in maple goods for flavoring. These ingredients were molded into lengths and sold as the genuine maple sugar, and this made it hard when the real sap stock was brought to the city, for the first-comers to get the prices they deserved through being the early arrivals with the goods.

He was strongly in favor of having the law compel a dealer when placing maple sugar on the market to label his goods with a guarantee that they were absolutely pure and thus both the grocers, confectioners and general public would be protected, for unless the sugar maker were not afraid of an analysis of his stock he would not take the risk of a fine of $200 and falsely label his wares.

Fish Trade Hampered by Milder Weather

In Many Sections—Makes Handling of Fish More Difficult—Next Two Weeks Expected to be Busy Ones—Dealers Put Forth Extra Efforts for End of Rush Season—Good Friday Always Stellar Fish Day.

There is no material change in fish situation this week to refer to. The milder weather in many sections has had an adverse effect on fish trade, making the handling of this line more difficult, but under the conditions and for season retail demand is considered good.

Wholesalers and retailers alike are making preparations for the last round of the Lenten season. Past years have proven that the last two weeks are busy ones, dealers putting forth every effort for a bright finish for the season.

Good Friday is especially a stellar day in fish business, the result of a natural demand combined with selling efforts of dealers. With the kind assistance of the weather man it is expected to be fully up to standard this year.

Certain lines are getting into smaller compass at different centres while others are completely done. These lines vary at different centres but are mostly in prepared, smoked and pickled varieties. Prices continue to hold steady position.

Oyster trade is at a lower ebb at most centres, showing revival each time the temperature lowers. There is, however, a considerable trade yet to be transacted for stocks are arriving on Canadian markets in good condition. The season's trade in oysters has been good.

QUEBEC.

MONTREAL.—The mild weather has affected the fish market, it is no longer displaying the rush and excitement of two weeks ago. Demand is once more of a hand-to-mouth order with prices for the week unchanged.

ONTARIO.

TORONTO.—Fish sales are moving along at a good clip under fairly favorable conditions. Mild weather has no doubt had some adverse effects on trade, making handling of fish more difficult. Next two weeks are expected to bring forth a good volume of business. Last two weeks of Lenten season are generally set upon by dealers to boom wind-up of Lenten trade.

Prices continue steady. Many lines are getting to end of their tether and being marked off list. Labrador herrings in halves came to an end some time ago. Now full barrels are done. Lake herrings are also cleaned up while skinless cod, Imperial cod and Quail-on-toast are an unknown quantity with several firms. In fact, stocks on the whole are in rather small compass even for time of year.

NOVA SCOTIA.

HALIFAX.—Fresh fish, particularly cod and haddock, is now in good supply, and some large catches have been landed at Nova Scotia ports during past week. Captains of incoming vessels report fish plentiful on inshore banks, one vessel with four men, catching 60,000 pounds of fish in one day. As a result of heavy arrivals everything in the fish line is booming at Digby.

There is also an abundant supply of fresh fish on local market. Lobsters, however, are scarce, and outlook is not favorable for any improvement. Unusual scarcity of fresh lobsters has increased demand for canned stock, and dealers report sales much heavier this Lenten season than last.

Canned clams are also selling freely, as well as salmon, but demand for latter is not up to expectations. It is thought that increased price for some of the best brands has caused falling off in sales.

According to advices received here, European markets for dried fish are weak.

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, chief of the Bureau of Chemistry of the Department of Agriculture of the United States has resigned. He will devote the remainder of his life in urging the formation of a National Department of Health.

Two Weeks More for Fish before Easter

Some Suggestions on Getting Best Results During Waning Days of Lent—Lines That Should be Fairly Well Cleaned up Before Easter—A Window Display.

Dealers are now about to enter upon the last round of the rush season for fish, and should, therefore, reap the full remaining benefits of the trade to be had in this line while the big Lenten demand still remains.

The last two weeks of Lent should be marked with good business in the fish department, especially to those merchants who give to this department the attention it deserves. It is even suggested that more than usual attention be given to the grand finale of the Lenten season, thus putting a bright finishing touch on a record series of sales.

Talk Food Value of Fish.

People can be induced to buy fish, not alone because the season calls for some restriction from meats, but also because fish is a good food as well as being comparatively cheap. These are all points which should be given emphasis to in all selling endeavors.

Conditions should warrant a little advertising for the fish department during the next two weeks. The local paper may be used to good advantage in this particular. Get a good, strong headline for the ad. Talk to customers just as if they were standing before the counter. Point out that fish is an excellent food. Mention that it is cheap compared with many other lines of food. Give special attention to a number of lines carried in stock. Such efforts should result in a good volume of business.

Show Customers Your Stock.

The value of display on counter and in the window as a means of interesting customers in fish has been pointed out before. The statement that goods must be shown to be sold is more true of fish than of many other lines carried by the grocer. Rigid cleanliness must be observed if customers are to be induced to buy.

A Display Suggested.

Some good window displays that will catch the eye of the passer-by may be arranged with fish. A suggestion that might be well used is to have a picture of a fishing scene for a background. If nothing but a medium sized picture is available, it should be raised above the window floor. Add a couple of fishing poles in criss-cross manner above the picture. Let the fishing lines hang down, and, if desired, put some species of the finny tribe on the hook. To complete such a window, it is only necessary to arrange the different varieties of fish in systematic manner, preferably on white porcelain platters. Price and show cards should not be neglected in such a display. A big show card might point out the food value and cheapness of fish.

The After Easter Trade.

It is now time also that the dealer should commence to get his stocks in shape for the more steady and even demand which will come with the passing of Lent. After Easter there will still be appreciable sales, especially for those dealers who still give proper attention to this line, but it will not be marked with the same activity as has been present during past weeks.

Frozen and fresh fish present little difficulty, as they are purchased on a hand-to-mouth basis, so that a dealer has his stock well in hand at all times. Smoked, prepared and pickled lines must be given more attention, however, so that the dealer will not find himself at the end of the rush season with a quantity of slow-selling lines on hand.

Therefore, during the next two weeks, the dealer would do well to devote attention to getting these lines cleared up to the safety mark. Any lines which are sticking should be moved. Put them in a prominent place and use your salesmanship in clearing them out.

Clean Out the Kegs.

If you have a small quantity of some pickled line in the bottom of a keg, do not allow them to lie there covered with brine and unseen. Get them out where customers may see them. Replace them in the brine each night, if necessary, to maintain the quality.

See that all lines of pickled fish are kept well covered with brine. In making brine for fish, it should be remembered that it is not wise to throw some salt in the keg followed by some water. Mix the brine to the proper thickness in a separate receptacle and then pour it over the fish.

London Grocers Decide on Summer Half Holiday

Annual Meeting Held—New Officers Elected With John Diprose as President—Delegates to Toronto Grocers' Banquet Report—Will Picnic in Detroit This Year.

London, Ont., March 21.—(Special).—The annual meeting of the Retail Grocers' Association was held in their hall on Tuesday evening, March 12th. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Jno. Diprose; First Vice-President, J. A. McFarlane; Second Vice-President, H. Fountaine; Treasurer, Thos. Shaw, re-elected; Secretary, James McKenzie, re-elected; Executive, Messrs. Ryan, Ranahan, Mullins, Fedy, Drake and Young.

Thos. Shaw and E. J. Ryan, the delegates to the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association Banquet, reported the work they had done in connection with Toronto and Brantford associations regarding the formation of a Provincial Association. The members were pleased with the progress made in so short a time.

Presentations Made.

The retiring President, Norman McLeod, was presented with a handsome oak rocker with leather seat. E. J. Ryan made the presentation. He told of the good work the President had done during the past year and hoped Mr. McLeod would enjoy many happy evenings seated in the arm chair, and that his thoughts might revert back sometimes to the pleasant year he spent as President of the London Association.

Thos. Shaw, treasurer, was the recipient of a handsome club bag from the members. Harry Ranahan made the presentation. He praised the treasurer for the hard work he had done for the past two years. Everybody voted Messrs. McLeod and Shaw jolly good fellows. Mr. McLeod and Mr. Shaw replied thanking the members.

Decide on Summer Closing.

It was decided to close all grocery stores every Wednesday afternoon during the months of June, July and August regardless of public holidays. Last year the stores did not close when there was a public holiday in the week.

There was a great deal of discussion on the above subject, some of the members wanted to close the last Wednesday in May till the first Wednesday in September. The motion to do so was defeated by the casting vote of the President.

It was decided to hold the annual excursion to Detroit on Wednesday, June 19. The Detroit and Cleveland base ball clubs play there on the 19th and 20th—so that is the reason why.

Produce & Provisions

Big Increase in Consumption of Eggs

Steadied Market Last Week—Production on Good Scale, But Bad Roads Hold up Receipts—Butter Unchanged, But Slightly Easier Tinge—Canadian Make Increasing—More New Zealand Stock Coming from England—Interest in Hams and Bacon for Easter.

After their spectacular toboggan slide, egg prices came to a sudden halt last week and have since remained steady. This is in keeping with probable action of market as has been outlined in these columns. Production a few weeks ago began to show an increase of considerable proportions which brought about a gradual easing in market. Then supplies which had been held up for a time by bad roads showed a marked increase and prices shot downward. It was pointed out that lower prices would bring a larger demand and that this call for the new laid would probably steady market. This reasoning has proved correct.

Without question the Canadian hen is steadily increasing her production. This would mean lower prices if production were accurately reflected in receipts. This is not the case as the bad roads in the country are holding up receipts at many centres. However, notwithstanding the temporary hold up of receipts values should, if there is no change in conditions, gradually seek lower level.

What can be said of butter? Prices have not shown any change, but here and there a tinge of easiness is noticeable. Stocks on hand at all centres are light but new milk goods are coming along. However, there may still be a pinch at certain centres before prices turn downward. When easing sets in, it can be expected to be gradual. The market in England has been depressed by the coal strike owing to falling off in consumption and some more New Zealand stock is coming along from there. Demand for butter is mostly in small lots.

With Easter only two weeks away, hams, bacon and other pork products are attracting more interest. The general market is steady. Lard is still moving out freely and is holding slightly steadier tone.

Live hogs have continued to develop a stronger tone and it seems that season of small supplies which many dealers expected some time ago may have now set in. There is also a keener demand as trade in pork products will be good from now on.

MONTREAL.

BUTTER.—The butter market is again unchanged, high prices still prevail with a steady supply from Canadian producers and New Zealand imports. The coal strike in England has caused the consumptive demand for butter to decrease, and as result Canadian imports of New Zealand creamery is running more freely. This may cause a decline in price before long.

TORONTO.

PROVISIONS.—Firmer feeling noted last week in hams has developed into a half cent advance. This is due to greater interest in this line in anticipation of Easter demand. Wholesalers are now meeting with greater success in sale of pork products for Easter trade.

Lard is also firmer and higher by, ¼ cent under the active movement which has been referred to before.

Live hogs are stronger again under stinted receipts and rather keen demand. They have advanced 30 to 40 cents during week and are still steady.

BUTTER. — Butter quotations are much the same as a week ago but there is a slight tinge of easiness by reason of increasing make of new butter. The easiness as yet is not marked and its effect on quotations can be expected to be gradual. There are still some stocks of United States and New Zealand on market which with increasing production in this country will gradually cause market to shape in direction outlined.

EGGS.—Eggs have followed direction we outlined as probable. After their marked downward dash, prices during last week came to sudden halt. This is explainable by the fact that lower prices have induced a much larger demand and steadier market.

The hen continues industrious, and yield is increasing. Conditions of country roads will play an important factor in market. It is probable that receipts will be held up somewhat in many sections by bad roads. Dealers believe that increasing yield even with larger demand would work for slightly easier prices if supplies came along regularly.

Getting Provisions Ready for Easter

Appetites That Have Been Restricted During Lent Will Appreciate Ham and Bacon Again—Suggestions for Selling Them —A Provision Window Display—Attention Should be Given Early to Stocks.

Easter is fast approaching and the ban which has been on at least a portion of the public's appetite for the past few weeks so far as pork products are concerned, will before long be lifted. For some time now healthy ham and bacon appetites have been restricted, and the appeasing of them when the fast period has passed is going to mean a larger and more varied demand for foods. The grocer and general merchant is the man who is going to profit and just about in proportion to the amount of effort which he puts forward to take advantage of the pent up appetites of customers.

Provisions and pork products have especially been in the background for the past few weeks and this is one of the lines which is going to show a marked improvement in sales with the passing of the Lenten season. Dealers should now begin to plan in order to have their provision department in first-class shape for the Easter trade.

Selling Hams and Bacon.

Hams and bacon will find a good sale and should be brought into prominence during the last week of Lent. Tasty displays in the window and on the counter will serve to arrest the attention of the passing "fastee" and turn his interest into sales.

Dealers should not leave the placing of their orders for Easter meats until too late a period. They are needed early so as to move the palates of customers beforehand.

Remember Easter Egg Display.

Eggs always find a good sale at Easter time. Dealers should make arrangements to have a sufficient supply to fully care for customers' wants. Not to have eggs at Easter time is as bad as a Christmas without candies, nuts and oranges.

Display forms a very important part in selling provisions, such as hams, bacon and eggs. A ham, no matter how appetizing it may be, is not likely to make a customer's mouth water while it hangs in the refrigerator or the warehouse. Nor yet are eggs likely to be suggested to customers when they remain under the counter in the packing case. These goods have to be shown to be sold—at least, in order to make the volume of sales as large as possible.

Arrange Special Provision Counter.

Have the provision counter in first-class shape, clean, tempting and appetizing. If a dealer does not regularly devote a counter to these lines, he would do well to do so around Easter. The volume of sales, if the counter is used to the best advantage, should warrant the use of a counter for the purpose.

The value of the window in this connection should not be forgotten. Here you are able to appeal not only to the appetites of regular customers, but also to the passing prospect. Hams, bacon, eggs, as well as lard and butter, may be shown in the one display.

Window Display Suggested.

Here is a window display suggested by one grocer who makes provisions an important department. The background is made of breakfast bacon hung down from a rod at back of window. Down either side a wall is built of butter and lard in prints. In centre of window a tub of lard is turned on its side, the open mouth facing the front. On both sides a ham or two is placed. Along the front and next the glass, a layer of fine sawdust is spread and displays of eggs made on this. He suggested that the word "Easter" might be spelled out on the layer of sawdust with eggs.

Shows Ham Partly Sliced.

"If I were making the display, I would not simply place the whole ham in the window. I never do. Ham does not look appetizing until it is cut, and for that reason when I place one in the window I cut it in two first, so that the tempting face of the ham will be presented to customers."

The advertisement can also be turned to good advantage in promoting sales of these lines at Easter. Do not simply enumerate the lines carried in your ad., but describe their goodness in such a manner as to create a desire in the reader for them.

SEEDS IN POUND BAGS.

James Carter & Co., Raynes Park, London, Eng., who through Patterson, Wylde & Co., Toronto, are introducing their farm seeds in this country, have something different from the ordinary pasteboard package and bulk method of selling them. Farm seeds are placed in the retail store in small cotton bags each weighing a pound and sealed. Attached to each bag is a card showing a reproduction of the vegetable grown from the seed. The lettering on the bag is in green ink and a narrow green ribbon keeps the display card in place. The method is new in Canada.

The Charles B. Knox Co., Johnstown, N.Y., have completed the erection of their new building there. In dimensions it is 127½ by 60 feet and stands near the site of the old building.

Facts Concerning Bovril

The fame of our immense manufactory has been built around just this one product. There are numerous imitations, but there is nothing that enjoys the reputation of BOVRIL, or that possesses its vitalizing power, or that can give the same appetizing flavor and toothsomeness when added to other foods.

The BOVRIL estates cover: in the Argentine, 438,082 acres; in Australia, 9,261,400 acres.

False Statements

were made about our Cabinet Brand Maple Compound Syrup by a concern in Toronto. We found it necessary to take action and they apologized for slanders and withdrew them in their entirety, as appears by their letter of which the following is a copy.

Toronto,
Feb. 21, 1912

Ramsays Limited,
Montreal, Que.

Dear Sirs,

Referring to our recent letter to the members of the Ontario Wholesale Grocers' Guild, in which we stated that "Ramsays Cabinet Brand" Maple Syrup was composed of glucose, brown sugar and artificial flavoring, we beg to state that we were mistaken in the analysis thereof and such statement is incorrect, and we beg therefore to withdraw the letter in its entirety, and to express our regret that this occurred.

Yours truly,

Every knock is a boost. Mr. Grocer, think it over, syrup season is now on. Feature the syrup that is proved to be the best by our opposition. Made from pure Maple and the best of granulated sugar. Thistle Brand Finnan Haddies Haddies caught, cleaned, cured and packed at the water's edge, under the "Thistle" trade mark, are as true, staunch and loyal to the highest standard of quality as the old Scotch Thistle itself.

Their cleanliness is always proverbial—their flavor is fine—they are genuine haddies always.

Codou's Macaroni

Other brands of Macaroni can be substituted for Codou's, but when you do it you are not "fair to yourself"—you cheat yourself out of a woman's confidence.

There is no Macaroni quite as good as Codou's—quite as white, tender and delicate. Codou's Macaroni, Vermicelli, Spaghetti, fancy letters and pastes, always represent the top-notch of quality.

Cox's Gelatine

The absolute purity of Cox's Gelatine makes it a standard product of world-wide fame. Whether in powdered or shredded form, it is still as free from foreign substances as the clearest rock crystal from mother earth. It never disappoints—folks get what they expect and want when they buy the peer of all—Cox's.

Griffin & Skelley's Canned Fruits

Picked by skillful hands, chosen by ever-watchful eyes, packed in the Factory of Precision—the best that dollars and cents and brains and sense can offer particular folks.

Canned Asparagus, Apricots, Peaches, Pears, Cherries, Plums and other wanted table fruits. Quality goods!

"Le Calice" Castile Soap

is as pure as pure oil and skill and experience can make it. The most sensitive complexion or most delicate lingerie is safe with "Le Calice" Soap. Antiseptic, sanitary, clean. Not a "tallow soap"—no corrupt animal fat in it.

Weston's Fancy Biscuits

To have the Weston Fancy Biscuits stand pre-eminent as the very choicest quality of biscuits that are marketed, has become a hobby with us, amounting almost to a fad.

To achieve this distinction we exercise the greatest care, employ the best skilled labor and use only pure and highest quality ingredients.

Weston's Cocoanut Macaroons

Fancy Macaroons, King's Mixed and Lady Fingers—these four varieties put up in small glass front tins, as shown in the illustration; also in plain tins and bulk. These are regular trade winners and are unsurpassable in flavor and excellence.

HOLBROOK'S SAUCE Window Trim

FREE

THIS window trim is lithographed in seven colors and makes a very unique and handsome display. The entire trim is in seven pieces and can be fixed to a window in two minutes and taken down in a few seconds. Everything is ready, no pasting is required, no preparation of any kind The objectionable features of other window displays have been entirely eliminated by the use of patent adhesive fasteners. A tiny adhesive fastener is placed at the corner of each sheet, merely remove the cotton protector and press it to the window and it is on, and it will remain on. When finished with, simply tear down, and not a single mark or sticky impression will be found on the window.

We are running an extensive advertising campaign in the leading newspapers throughout the Dominion. These window displays will draw the benefit of our publicity into your store.

We mail you the complete outfit free of all charges, distance doesn't matter. Yours for the asking. Send us a post card to-day.

DO YOU KNOW ALL OF YOUR "CREDIT CUSTOMERS" PERSONALLY? IF NOT, YOU NEED

Allison Coupon Books

Because they will enable you to handle a vastly greater number of credit accounts profitably and with SAFETY. You don't need a high salaried organization either, for they eliminate a great deal of work, simplify bookkeeping, prevent errors and disputes, and—best of all—afford an easy means of checking close on each customer, who might otherwise let his account run too long. If you have a few "slow" but perhaps "good" credit customers, just try ALLISON COUPON BOOKS and then keep your eye on the cash book. See what a difference it makes.

HERE'S HOW THEY WORK:—

When a man wants credit, give him an Allison Coupon Book, and have him sign form at the front which becomes then his promissory note to you. As he buys, you tear out coupons, and when his book is exhausted you can collect your note or extend his credit for another book, as you deem wise. No pass books, no charging, no time wasted, no errors, no disputes.

The Dry, Clean, Hygienic Refrigerator

"HABITANT" Brand

Pure Maple and Cane Syrup, 20c per case less than SMALL'S Standard Mixture. The above name and Brands have been coupled with Maple Syrup for past 70 years in Canada. Marks, registered in 1891, doing business at same point and under same firm's name from the first. If we do anything wrong you or Food Inspector can find us. (Your firm's name has been recommended to us by Lord Strathcona, H. P. Okies & Co., Ltd., Glasgow, Scot.). Syrup accounts have STEADILY grown with all that have stayed with SMALL'S Maple Leaf Brand, has larger sales than hundreds of other Brands combined, cost little if any more than imitations. At all Jobbers.

To save correspondence to frequent queries: Why can I not pack quarts PURE at $6.00 per case, as is done by a concern in Toronto? Take the advantage of the medium in behalf of the CANADA MAPLE EXCHANGE, LIMITED, to explain. Raw Maple Sugar is worth .09c, and for past seven years has averaged 8⅞c at point of production, forty pounds is required to make a case of Syrup.

40 lbs. Maple Sugar at 8⅞c	$3.55
24 quart tins at $30 M.	.72
24 labels at $2 M.	.07

Fuel, labor (low estimate)	.09
Jobber's commission, 15 per cent.	90
Freight, average estimate	.38
Selling expenses, 3 per cent. ...	.18
	$6.11

I cannot pack Maple Syrup Quarts at $6.00, neither Standard Mixture at $4.50, without loss, but could that MARKET PURE, at a profit by dodging Food Inspector, i.e., by launching new brands under a new Company every year or so. Now, can only repeat, dealers can scarcely mistake by giving wide berth to Mushroom Brands and such glowing attractions, for certain, as law of gravitation, such brands must soon be no more, or quality changed, either result in unsatisfaction or disturbed trade.

MR. SMALL speaks, and along with a few other things, states that he cannot put up a case of Standard Maple Syrup Quarts at $6.00.

Up to date of this going to press, March 27th, there has been no new Syrup made in Quebec.

Three Prizes: $20, $15, $5

W. H. Thompson, M.D., D.S., aided by other dietetic experts at Trinity College, Dublin, made a series of elaborate experiments to ascertain the value of "Bovril." The results proved that "Bovril" is a highly nutritious food, that it stimulates the appetite and also gives valuable help to the system in the work of digestion and the absorption of ordinary food. The "British Medical Journal" of September 16, 1911, devoted six pages to a report of the experiments.

The results may, however, be summarized by the following well-known quotation:

"Now, good digestion wait on appetite, and health on both!"

From what source is this taken?

Going Into Business With $2,000

The Plan of Great Importance—Must Have Logical Development Along Preconceived Lines—Make Things Safe—Be Conservative—Work With Might of Brain and of Brawn.

By Henry Johnson, jr.

The first thing to do is to rent a safety deposit box—small size—cost about $3 per year. Next, set about buying $500 worth of good bonds. These should be in denominations of $100 and should bear interest at 5 per cent. to 6 per cent. If you do not know where or how to get them, I can tell you. Put these bonds and your life insurance policy in the deposit box. Your fire insurance policy will go there, too, as soon as you get it. By the way, note on your calendar the dates when the coupons are to be clipped from the bonds, so that you can clip them and deposit in your bank for collection a few days in advance of due.

Secure Good Location.

You now have $1,500 ready money on deposit. You have the location of your store picked out. I understand it is to cost $30 per month rental. I assume it is a good location. Have it as good as possible, having in mind conservative management. The right location largely takes the place of advertising. I could fill this article with the pros and cons of this one subject; but shall content myself with saying that if you must enter a location less than the best, be strategic enough to go where you can move on to better things without disturbing too greatly the trade you may have built up.

The Problem of Fixtures.

Go slow on fixtures. Be a very snail in this regard. Fine, up-to-date fixtures make an excellent investment for the established business; but they can be bought any time—are the easiest thing in the world to acquire when you actually need them. So go very slow. Remember that the plainest shelving, old counters, etc., with a dollar's worth of paint applied in odd hours will look attractively clean and inviting.

You need a platform floor scale; an even balance counter scale of about 24-pound capacity. You need one counter, preferably with bins in it, and a line of common shelving. The only thing that must be new in this outfit is the counter scale. You could use a showcase, but do not absolutely need it to begin with. You could use a refrigerator, but should get along the first year or so with any sort of "ice box" you can pick up cheaply. Altogether, this outfit should be limited to not more than $100. By having cash to pay for it and putting up the shelves and painting them, etc., yourself in odd hours, you can get the store very neatly fitted up for that sum, I believe. If you cannot, do it anyway. Play that is all you have for that purpose. Then you will make it do.

Get a horse and second-hand wagon for not to exceed another $100. A fine delivery turnout is good advertising, but you must build up your business before you can think of expansion through advertising. Go slow. Be sure. Put a bit of paint on the wagon, if you have time; but keep it clean at all times and, if it goes regularly on time to your customers they will overlook its want of appearance until you get so well started that you can afford one better.

The Initial Stock.

Select your opening stock with great care. If you have a local jobber, by all means buy of him. Give him every chance to treat you right. You know the goods and can trust your own judgment, but put it up to him to help you to success. Get variety in your stock, not quantity: Get what you know will be wanted at the beginning; just as little of any one thing as you can procure. Make the jobber break packages for you; buy only just what you need and must have—not a penny's worth more; $500 should cover this opening purchase, but we shall allow $700. Pay spot cash and get your discounts. Discounts should equal 1 per cent. on this purchase. But remember that discounts do not come off your costs. Put the goods into cost at full invoice prices. Then credit Discount account with what you derive from that source.

You now have invested in stock, fixtures and delivery equipment $900. You have $500 in good bonds in your deposit box. You have $607 in the bank, the $7 being derived from Discount. Do not forget that $7. You will see where it comes in just below. That is the way you stand when ready to open your store.

The Question of Clerks.

I take it that, with your personal acquaintance, you can safely plan to do $1,000 a month from the beginning. Three people can very readily handle that business, and three must be enough to begin with, and it must also do until you do more business. One trouble you may have at the beginning—in fact, are all but sure to have. People rush to a new store. It often happens, therefore, that the new merchant is unable to handle his business smoothly and promptly during the first few days—say the first week or ten days. Much depends, therefore, on having the stock well arranged into departments and carefully marked so as to save time in learning prices and locations. Also, it is well to have an extra wagon where it can be hired for a few days and possibly an extra boy, too. Much depends on your first promptness and accuracy. So provide for these things. Do not incur the expense unless you need it, but try to have it where you can get it, temporarily, if you do need it. Then you may do more than $1,000. Let us assume, however, that you do just $1,000 the first month. Here is about the way it will figure out:

Goods sold		$1,000 00
Purchases for month		800 00
Gross margin		$200 00
Added to Discount account		8 00
		$208 00
Rent	$30 00
Your wages	40 00
One boy, or young man	25 00
One girl	15 00
Interest on $1,500	7 50
Light and heat	4 00
Telephone	2 00
Barn expense	20 00
Depreciation	3 00
Advertising, opening circular	5 00
Insurance	2 00
Sundry expenses	8 50
		$162 00
Net margin		$46 00
Add former Discount		7 00
Total gain		$53 00

Remember Bank Account.

Take $25.00 and put it into a savings bank account. Do that same thing every month. Let it draw interest at 3 per cent., or whatever your bank pays. When you have $100 to $150, use it to buy another $100 bond and proceed as before.

You may do some credit business, or you may not. My advice would be that you handle this question very carefully.

The Time to Interest Farmers in Seeds

Extra Attention Will Mean Extra Business At Least Later On —Window Displays Will Create Sales—Farmers Should Be Shown Why They Should Sow Just As Much, Even If Grains Are Dear.

Farm papers are now exhorting farmers to look to their spring supply of seeds. Grocers and general merchants would do well to follow the same advice. Annual sowing is not now far off and it is time the dealer gave some extra attention to interesting the purchasing public in seeds.

It is advisable that the dealer begin his spring seed campaign early. Much is gained by showing these lines even before the snow is off the ground. The prospective buyer knows that some time he must buy and is willing to be interested. It is the dealer's duty to interest him to the extent of selling him his requirements or at least of laying the foundation for future sales.

High Quality Desirable.

Buying is an important part of the seed business. The dealer who wishes to secure a continuance of the trade must handle only quality seeds. Not only does selling of poor seed lose a customer's future seed purchases, but also shatters his confidence in him and his goods.

Window display is one of the good methods a dealer has at hand to arouse interest in seeds. Some attractive and catchy window trims that are bound to bring business may be arranged with seeds. Some dealers have found it a good plan to show in a window display samples of the growing grains or garden vegetables. This is an argument which drives home the proof of germination of the seeds with force and is often more convincing to the prospective purchaser than a great deal of talk.

A certain amount of advertising is also advisable to bring out the best results in selling seeds. Country dealers can use the local paper to good advantage. Quality should be the key note of advertising talks but must necessarily be backed up by quality goods.

Salesmanship Necessary.

There is no use denying the fact that it is going to require real salesmanship to sell seeds this year because they are high in price. However, the dealer has strong arguments on his side. He can demonstrate plainly to the farmer that it is in his own interest to buy and sow just as much seed as usual this year. The following grom a farm journal should be of use to the seed man:—

"Clover seed is too dear to waste this spring. Sow plenty of it on every acre you seed down, thus doing your utmost to economize in the truest sense, by reducing the chances of failure to a minimum. Of course, first-class soil preparation should accompany the reasonably liberal use of seed. Red clover being so extremely dear, it is worth considering the advisability of substituting some alsike, which, containing so many more seeds to the pound, goes further. A little alfalfa seed may also with advantage be scattered over the high ridges before drilling the grain."

Pointers for Dealers.

Personal talks to customers are of great use in promoting sales.

Teach customers the folly of sowing poor seed.

Glass jars may be used for showing bulk garden seeds. A label on the side should announce the name of the seed.

Point out that it is not economy to be skimpy in sowing. The harvest will warrant the expenditure.

It might be well to have a magnifying glass for customers to examine seeds. Your guarantee should, however, be the best proof of their quality.

Facts for advertising may be secured from seed catalogues.

The accompanying window display of seeds was one that attracted attention and sold goods, and the plan of it might be followed by other dealers to good advantage.

Suggestion for a window display which should be tried by every dealer selling farm and garden seeds.

A Provincial Retail Grocers' Association

Reply To Recent Letter of M. Moyer Who Criticised The Agitation To Form Such A Body — Change In Conditions In Grocery Trade—Separate Organization Considered Best To Look After Retail Grocers' Needs.

Editor Canadian Grocer.—In your issue of the 15th inst., M. Moyer, chairman of the Grocers' Section, Retail Merchants' Association, criticizes the agitation to form an Ontario Retail Grocers' Association. He seems to think such an organization is unnecessary." —that there is nothing for it to do.

What does Mr. Moyer know about the conditions of the retail grocery trade? It is many years since he was in it and conditions have changed a lot since then. In those days he was buying tapicoa for 4 1-2c per lb. and retailing it at three pounds for 25c, where to-day it costs 7c and is retailed at three for 25c. Besides, the grocer is paying $20 per ton for hay to feed his horses, paying more rent and higher wages, and still the wholesaler thinks 20 per cent. is enough profit for the retailer when he demands 25 per cent. from the manufacturer where he used to get from 12 1-2 to 15 per cent.

Says Confidence Has Been Lost.

But why should I discuss these matters with Mr. Moyer who is sacrificing so much time in the interests of the retailer without any recompense? However, I just mention this as one case. There are dozens of them. Are the retail grocers of Ontario to be guided by Mr. Moyer? Has he got all the wisdom? Let me tell him what I told him personally, that the large majority of the retail grocers of this province have long ago lost confidence in the Retail Merchants' Association. I could tell them an interesting story about one of the officers and his work in London some years ago, and it is no wonder that the grocers have lost confidence in the Retail Merchants' Association. I will admit we were asleep then, as Mr. Moyer states, we were the "Rip Van Winkles," but we have been awake ever since and we know of everything that Association have done and with the R. M. A. authority to appear bemore. Who gave anyone connected with the R.M.A. authority to appear before the Guild and speak for the retail grocers of this province? Surely not the grocers. Did you ever hear of one of their officers asking the Guild to discontinue selling to consumers? No, because they would tell him to get out, and that would put him in an awkward position. He could not then serve two masters. Such things may "pull the wool" over some grocers' eyes, but they are very few, I am glad to say.

A Distinctive Work To Do.

What has the retail grocer in common with the barber or tailor any more than a Union painter with the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen? Then why should grocers belong to Retail Merchants' Associations with barbers and tailors for presidents? I am told that a milk dealer is president of one branch.

Mr. Moyer wants to know if the retail grocers of Hamilton, London, Brantford and Guelph are really in earnest to improve the conditions of the retail trade. Does he think we are wasting our time or energy for fun, or that we like to hear ourselves talk? Doesn't it sound reasonable that the man discussing the conditions existing in his own business is the proper person to fight for his rights? He comes face to face with them every day, therefore, he knows the facts, and it ill becomes any one as a looker-on to try to dictate to any body of men who are carrying on successfully an organization for their own benefit.

The No Discount Problem.

Mr. Moyer also says in his letter: "What better can the grocer expect than what we have secured for them from the wholesale men?" Such generosity as the above should not go unrewarded. How unselfish of these men to labor so consistently for a cause that they have no interest in whatsoever! What have they secured that is such a boon? Our wholesale grocers in London have not yet given us notice of anything, excepting that in future we would get no discounts for cash.

As far as being invited to discuss trade matters with the Wholesale Grocers' Guild, the London association have never yet had an official notification to attend such a meeting, and I was told by the President of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association that they never had such an invitation, although they were within a few minutes' walk of the scene.

In his last sentence Mr. Moyer says: "If the retail grocers of Ontario desire to improve their conditions they must be united and work in harmony." That is just what we are trying to do and we will take good care to look after our side of the case and not leave it to anyone to work into the hands of the enemy.

I had no intention of entering this controversy, otherwise than putting Mr. Moyer in his right place. When a man not connected with the trade tells hundreds of intelligent grocers of this province that they are "Rip Van Winkles" and they do not know how to act or legislate for themselves, then it is time for every independent man to put him right.

The organizing of an Ontario Retail Grocers' Association belongs entirely to the men in the business, and they do not have to ask anyone for a patent.

I remain,

E. J. RYAN
Retail Grocer.

FOX TERRIER GOT THE HAM.

An Effect of Carelessness in Delivery—The Moral.

Vancouver, B. C., March 28 (special): —"Satisfactory delivery is one of the fundamentals of a merchant's success," remarked a dealer to The Grocer. "Once in a while one runs against something that helps out. I was going home to lunch the other day and my attention was drawn to a sportive fox terrier which had a parcel that it was shaking with great gusto, much as if it had been a rat. As we got nearer I saw a store label on it, and on investigating found that it was some cooked ham, which had evidently been ordered for lunch It must have been left on the door step by some rushed delivery man, and was nosed out by the dog. There is no doubt that store came in for much criticism, and even if the absence of the order could have been explained, the ham was missing and the lunch was delayed.

"I found on inquiry at my own store that sometime when drivers are hurried they leave the goods at the door after rapping to bring the person of the house. It might easily be that no one is in at the time. It is not every time, either, that delicatessen is among the order, but to make absolutely sure I gave instructions to either have the goods left on the kitchen table inside the house or delivered to the housekeeper herself. I don't think I have ever heard of a dog running off with part of an order before, but the fact that I saw it shows what is liable to happen at any time."

POTATOES WERE FROST BITTEN

Potatoes have been arriving rather freely from the Old Country of late, causing slight easiness in the market. A number of cars came along frosted, however, making it difficult for dealers to come out even. This has had a tendency to frighten buyers, and a number of orders which were to come forward have been cancelled. Some dealers fear this may have probable effect of strengthening the situation somewhat in course of few weeks.

SOAP BACK TO FORMER PRICES.

Since last week's issue there has been another movement in those laundry soaps which declined a few weeks ago. Prices have risen again to the figures that existed prior to the recent change which included the free case offer.

The present prices of these soaps therefore are generally $4,15 for a single case and less than five; $4.15 for five cases with freight prepared and $4.05 for ten cases and upwards, freight prepaid. This means that again we will have the five-cent straight retail price in vogue, in the soaps in question, if dealers desire to make any profit. It means that the grocer who pays $4.15 per case for his soap and sells, as he ought to, at five cents straight, will make a profit of 17 per cent. on the selling price. If he pays $4.05 by purchasing in the larger quantities his profit will be 19 per cent. on sales.

This readjustment in prices, when one is acquainted with the existing conditions, is natural as prices of raw materials did not warrant the recent reduction. At the prices prevailing since the decline, the margin of the manufacturer was considerably cut into and this was no doubt the chief reason for the adjustment.

This is no doubt the end to soap fluctuations. The new prices can be counted on as permanent for some time to come. If profits are to be secured on these soaps they must be sold at five cents straight.

The chief difficulty in the soap matter has been experienced in the larger cities where the big stores have cut prices for advertising purposes, and thereby prevented the retail grocers from obtaining their proper share of the trade. Throughout Ontario, conditions are different, retailers being generally able to get five cents straight without fear of loss of trade. In fact, few dealers outside of the larger cities had reduced prices to six-for-a-quarter after the decline, the majority of them having soap on hand purchased at the higher prices. Their trade therefore, will scarcely be affected—except those who were fortunate enough in buying soap at the lower price, and these will be able to make an extra good profit on the amount purchased.

DECLINE IN SUGAR.

In our market report in last week's issue it was pointed out that sugar was easier. This feeling worked into a decline of 10 cents per cwt. on Monday in Canadian refined. Refined on Montreal basis is now $5.45 which is almost $1 per cwt. above the price prevailing a year ago.

Several causes are assigned for the change. Raws have been arriving freely at New York and as was stated last week, refined declined there. Cuban raws are fairly active under varying reports. The Old Country strike has also contributed to easier conditions. Besides a decrease in demand, speculators have not been given the financial backing required.

United States refiners are also fearing a coal strike and are calling attention to a particular clause in their contracts about "all contracts and agreements contingent upon strikes, accidents, fire or other delays beyond sellers' control."

Compared to a year ago, the statistical situation is strong, visible supplies of raws now being 2,910,671 tons as against 3,571,502 a year ago.

ESTABLISHING A GROCERY BUSINESS.

The article in this week's issue written by Henry Johnson, Jr., will bear considerable study not only on the part of those thinking of entering the grocery business, but also of many who are now in it.

Mr. Johnson answers a correspondent on how a grocery business ought to be established, the dealer to be having $2,000 to begin with. His advice is the advice of a man who has been through the mill and who has met with more than the ordinary success during his thirty years or so in the retail trade.

Any clerk who is contemplating such a move should certainly study the article. If necessary, cut it from the paper and preserve it for further use. Some, at least, of the pointers will undoubtedly come in useful.

DEFEAT THE PARCELS POST.

"What are the merchants going to do about this Parcel Post legislation?" was a question asked The Grocer during the week.

What ARE they going to do? There is a possibility that this question may be brought up at any time in the House of Commons and if nothing has been done to offset it, the probalities are it will go through.

That Parcels Post is going to benefit the large mail order houses at the expense of the merchants of the country seems to be a fact beyond a doubt. Not only will the country merchants lose but country communities will not prosper to the extent they otherwise would, and some of them are bound to recede in standing, importance, wealth and population.

Parcels Post will drain money from country districts and bring it into the big cities to help enrich a few large mail order houses. This means money that should be spent at home will leave the rural and country town districts where it is most needed.

This is not in the general interests of the country. No wonder the last census shows decrease in the population of many rural districts. They are not being looked after well enough. The big cities are getting wealthy at the expense of the country and it ought to be the aim of our legislators to have the wealth produced by labor spread as much as possible where that labor is expended. As a matter of fact we hear little of Parcels Post from anybody but a few members of Parliament. They deem it a popular move to attract votes, forgetting to reason out the consequences.

It is up to every retail merchant in Canada to oppose, and oppose strongly, this measure. See that the member for your constituency is acquainted with the reasons why this legislation should be defeated. Write him, or wire him if necessary, and at the same time put it up to the Postmaster-General.

Do it now.

RUST ON CANNED GOODS.

At this season of the year special attention should be given by retailers to canned goods in cellars. Canned goods are liable to rust if they are not properly looked after, and it is, therefore, in every dealer's interests to give them proper attention.

In the spring season cellars are usually damp and foods in cans should be removed and placed where the tins will dry out rapidly. Some cellars, too, are likely to be flooded this year and if all goods are not removed beforehand much loss will result in such cases.

The ideal storage for canned goods is a dry, even temperature, between 40 degs. and 50 degs., F., with a free circulation of air. Cases should be piled clear of the walls, and as much as possible off the floors, to permit of the circulation of air over, through and around them. Cases should also be piled on their sides, so that in the event of a tin bursting the contents will drain off. rather than into and through the cases underneath. Canned goods cases should also be examined at intervals, and where there is apparent trouble inside of the cases, the cause of the trouble should be at once removed.

Tin plate, it should be remembered, is almost universally used. In fact, there is hardly a kitchen utensil that is not made of tin, and every one knows that all tins are susceptible to rust, especially when exposed to damp, and the greatest trouble experienced with canned goods is their tendency to rust.

Rust on the outside of cans does not affect the contents, but if there is any noticeable the cans should be scoured and fresh labels asked for from the manufacturers. Rust in a short time may eat through the tins. Manufacturers generally do not accept responsibility for rusty cans as the tins are free from rust, at least in the great majority of cases, when leaving the factories.

If special attention is given to this matter the dealer may save himself considerable loss.

TAKE ADVANTAGE OF EASTER.

There is only one more week left before Easter. Every dealer should make use of this coming festive season to sell as much Easter goods as possible. It marks the finish of Lent so that next week will be a splendid fish week. As much impetus as possible should therefore be put behind the fish department particularly if there are some stickers left.

Easter novelties will also have a big week. Special attention should be given them now as after the passing of the holiday season there will be little sale for them.

Confectionery is another good line to specialize on. If any has been marked "Easter, 1912," it can be readily seen why this should be gotten rid of.

In the provision line, ham will be a good line to feature. After the usual Lenten restrictions it will be particularly acceptable and will sell well. It is not necessary to make more than a passing reference to eggs. Display them, fresh and clean, and little trouble will be experienced in disposing of quantities.

This Easter season is an important one and every consideration possible should be given to the extra opportunities to make an extra profit.

PLAN TO ESTABLISH TIPLESS HOTELS.

The death blow to the "tipping evil," which the Commercial Travelers' National League of the United States has been directing its energies to abolish, may be struck if the latest plan formulated by that body is carried into effect. At a recent meeting of the officers of the organization, W. E. Adams, of Philadelphia, vice-president, offered a resolution calling for the formation of a stock company which will operate a chain of "tipless" hotels in more than one hundred leading cities of the country.

To accomplish this he suggested that each traveling man invest $10 and all houses employing commercial travelers $100 each, thereby providing a capital stock in excess of $10,000,000, which would be sufficient to operate a number of hotels to which traveling men could resort and escape the "tipping" nuisance.

With the passing of Robert Barron, there is removed from the Canadian grocery trade one of its most prominent figures.

Seed time is almost here. If retail dealers want to reap a good harvest in seeds they should begin to sell them at once.

In starting a grocery business on $2,000 at the present time one could not well afford to lay in a very large stock of butter and cheese.

The interview with J. F. Holloway in this issue on clerks being placed on a profit-sharing basis ought to elicit some remarks from the salesmen behind the counter. Let us hear your views, Mr. Clerk.

Children have a habit of carrying parcels by the string. The result is they are likely to reach home with the string untied and the parcel half unwrapped. The clerk, in the first place, would do well to tie the string as tightly as possible. In addition to that, he might show the child how to carry the parcel. Both the child and parents will appreciate this.

A number of manufacturers claim that railways are not handling their goods satisfactorily. One firm states that for two days last week it was not able to get a freight wagon from one of the railways to call for freight which, according to promise, was to have been sent at the time. Other firms complain of delays so that if retailers are not getting goods promptly it may be the fault of the transportation companies.

Our Messages to the Trade

THE GROCER would like to impress upon its readers that our Letter Box is open for their use at all times. Every week we are receiving requests from manufacturers and jobbers of certain goods, and in view of our national connection with the wholesale and manufacturing trades we are in a position to obtain information on almost any question of this character. Every reader of the paper is entitled to ask as many questions as he desires on trade matters, and he may be sure that we will give our best efforts in collecting authoritative information.

The spirit of co-operation existing between THE GROCER and its readers is exemplified in a recent letter from a South Hill, British Columbia, grocer. In response to our request for photographs of good window displays he has forwarded one with a description which will be of service to other Canadian dealers. "I might say in writing," he says, "that we greatly appreciate your views of interiors of stores published from time to time in THE GROCER, as it gives one the ideas of the best merchants in the trade, and I think if we all try to help our trade paper, the contents would be better and give us more interest in it ourselves."

This grocer has the right idea. We are anxious at all times to hear from retailers and the more information they can give us regarding their methods of operation, of interior and window displays, etc., the more valuable will the paper be to our thousands of readers.

THE CANADIAN GROCER of April 19th will be our big Annual Spring number. The central feature will be "Creative Salesmanship." A large number of the articles of this number will be devoted to methods of Canadian retail dealers for introducing new goods to their customers, increasing the sales of staple goods and raising the standard of quality of goods sold. The editors have made it a point to get in touch with retailers in all parts of Canada to get from them actual instances, showing how they accomplished one or more of the above mentioned results.

In addition to that, this number will contain views of some of Canada's best stores, showing interior arrangement of goods, arrangement of fixtures and store equipment installed. For our window dressing department we have secured illustrations of some high grade grocery windows, which will be described in detail, and which will be good examples for any retailer to follow.

As well as the above, special attention will be given to articles on retail, advertising, showing good and bad copy, delivery systems, bookkeeping, handling of provision, fish, fruit, cereal and confectionery departments, store architecture, retailers' views on trade questions, etc.

Illustrations will be profusely used, to bring out the strong points of the different articles, and on the whole this spring number will undoubtedly be one of the best we have ever placed in the hands of the Canadian retail grocery trade.

The editorial and news sections of the big Spring Number by no means monopolizes the interest of this number. Indeed every year the advertising sections are gaining in interest and effectiveness as the advertisement writers are growing to see more clearly the meaning and purpose of trade paper advertising.

The card announcement and dry-as-dust advertiser have been almost completely displayed by the advertiser who has something worth while to tell and who tells it like a man.

The retailer and the clerk want to know.

When the advertiser makes his claims boldly and openly, in the face of his competitors, through the columns of The Grocer, the reader is inclined to be impressed as he is by any example of straight forward and open frankness.

Each advertiser and prospective advertiser has been advised of the keynote of this number "Creative Salesmanship," and will frame his advertisement in view of this.

The reader will find the advertising sections bristling with valuable news and information, as the editorial section will be with seasonable hints and suggestions.

JORDAN MERCHANTS TO ADOPT CASH SYSTEM

Claim That Wholesalers and Manufacturers Cutting Out Discounts and Limiting Terms of Credit are the Reasons — The Circular Sent Out.

Jordan, Ont., March 28.—Six of the retail merchants of this place have decided that after July 1, they shall do business on a strictly cash basis. The following circular announcing their decision and the reasons for it has been sent out to the public:—

"This is to certify that we, the undersigned, have duly considered the action on the part of all the manufacturers and wholesale dealers in limitation of terms and conditions of sales to the retailers, and that we find it necessary to take action to protect ourselves against losses that will accrue therefrom in our various lines of business.

"We have therefore decided that in view of the above we shall deem it necessary to conclude all book accounts within a reasonably short time, and that we have set a date which shall not be later than July 1st, 1912, when we shall expect a favorable adjustment of all accounts, and thereafter all of our business dealings will be conducted on a cash basis.

"All accounts must be settled on a 30-day basis.

"We respectfully invite your attention to this arrangement and ask you to provide accordingly.

"Consult your dealer regarding the cash plan proposed.

"We respectfully submit the above.

"Signed by local dealers as follows:— E. C. Snure, J. C. Fluhrer, Moyer Bros., M. P. Werner, C. H. Bolton, C. B. Reece."

HANGING BANANA BUNCHES.

London, Ont., March 28—(Special). — There are more awkward ways in vogue in regard to hanging up a bunch of bananas, than anything else in the grocery business, with the possible exception of displaying codfish, but Harry Coates, corner of Stanley street and Thorncliffe road, South London, has a first-class plan. On a large pillar in the centre of his store he has placed four curved hooks of the kind hardware dealers sell for extra heavy hanging flower pots. Each hook accommodates a bunch of bananas of any size without interfering with any other goods. The fruit is as conspicuous as it could be anywhere but in the window, and during cold weather is in a better place. One feature is the convenience with which the clerk can get at the bunches. The room take up is of little use for any purpose.

Arthur Thornton, grocer, Victoria, B. C., has sold to Ball & Young.

Profit Sharing Proposition With Clerks

Retailer Believes this is the Only Solution for Getting and Keeping Bright Young Men in Grocery Trade—Profits in the Business do Not Warrant Salary Increases He Claims—An Interesting Question.

Many retail dealers are wondering how far up expenses of operating their businesses are going. Horse feed is high, deliverymen want better wages and good clerks are not attracted because of better wages and better hours obtainable elsewhere.

"What are we going to do in the matter?" asked J. F. Holloway, King Street West, Toronto, when referring to the situation, which he claims is real serious.

"Why," he said, "we cannot expect a clerk to do his best work or take much interest in the business on $11 or $12 a week. Clerks, or many of them, have a house and family to maintain and $12 is not enough for them to live on. How can they think about selling profitable goods or selling goods not actually asked for, if they are thinking of how they will be able to get the next ton of coal or meet the rent bill?

"But we cannot increase their salaries. Our profits are certainly not getting any larger and our operating expenses are advancing and I don't see how we can afford to pay anything more. What are we going to do to get efficient help and to give efficient service to our customers?"

Profit Sharing Plan.

Mr. Holloway has given this matter much consideration and claims that the only solution is to place clerks on a profit-sharing basis.

"If our clerks knew that at the end of the year they would receive a percentage of the net profits, they certainly should be willing to increase their sales, and not only that but would endeavor to sell the most profitable goods.

"A share in the profits would tend to do away with all indolence on the part of clerks. They would be anxious to gain as many new customers as possible and if the proprietor is not around, they would endeavor to show the same interest in increasing sales as if he were on the spot watching their movements.

Percentage on the Net Profits.

"As it is now," declared Mr. Holloway, "we cannot always get clerks who will do their best to increase sales of profitable goods. It would not be wise to allow them a percentage of turnover or increase in the business over the previous year. That would not prove them to be good business men. If sugar sales were doubled that would mean a big increase in turnover but not much profit.

"But if the profit-sharing were based on the net profits, there would be an incentive to sell the most profitable goods. For instance, I purchase three or four brands of a certain article. One costs me 40 cents a pound, another 38 and another 32; they are all standard brands with little if any difference in quality. Now all a dealer should have to do would be to point out these facts and a clerk should know what line to display and push if all sell at 25 cents the half-pound tin.

Mean More to the Dealer.

"It seems to me that if this system were adopted clerks would become much more efficient, our profits at the end of the year would be greater, we could afford to pay our clerks a percentage of the profits and still be in pocket. If a clerk came to me with such a proposition, I certainly would be pleased to go into it with him."

The Grocer would be pleased to hear expressions of opinion from clerks as well as dealers on this question. It seems to be worth consideration.

GOING INTO BUSINESS WITH $2,000.

You know the town well. Use your knowledge to guide you here. Take on good accounts, very carefully, slowly, handling the question of prompt payment without gloves, though, of course, always diplomatically. Make no bones about the absolute necessity that you get your money every 30 days. Carry nothing like a "balance" on any account. Do your part and make the buyer do hers.

If you have a slight loss occasionally, as you will, take it and close the account. Make the rule for yourself more than for your customer. Note that carefully; the rule is for yourself primarily. Never depart from it. In this way you can sleep nights and will gradually get the accounts only of the most substantial, conscientious and reliable people.

Hint on Life Insurance.

Note a few things by way of analysis. Your own pay is 4 per cent. expense. This is too high, but you cannot live on less just now. Later on your business will run to $3,000 monthly. Then $60 per month will only be 2 per cent., which is better. Your total wages expense to begin with is 8 per cent., and that is not bad. You will not be apt to get it any lower at any time, though 7 per cent. would be nearer right. If you have life insurance now, O.K., if not, take out $1,000, simple protection; add to that as you get on, say $1,000 annually until you have $5,000. You do not need endowment insurance as you have shown that you are capable of saving your own money. But always pay your insurance bills out of your own wages. Pay your own wages on account of Expense, same as you pay anybody else. If you can save out of that, add the savings to your bank account.

Depreciation is 10 per cent. on fixtures and 20 per cent. on delivery equipment. It is only $2.50 per month, but I have called it $3 to allow for a little more fixtures as you get them. But always remember that depreciation goes on and must be reckoned with. Add coupon returns to savings account. Always keep up the savings and the bond buying. You can hypothecate the bonds on emergencies, if pressed; and that fact will enable you to borrow if you must, from time to time; though I urge you to grow only as your accumulations will allow you to do. Keep piling up the money. Keep buying bonds. Then use them to buy real esate when a bargain is to be had.

Write Him Again.

Go slowly, cautiously along these lines, with your eye peeled for solid enterprises, but no "flyers," and you will prosper so that in a few years you will be a "substantial citizen" to whom men will look for guidance and advice. You will grow steadily with your town. You will attain that without which life is only a mockery and a failure.

Write me freely at any time. You are the kind I want to know about.

UNITED STATES MAPLE SYRUP.

Anything branded maple sugar or maple sprup is the genuine article if it is sold outside of the State in which it is made, according to statements made recently before the Congressional Committee on Agriculture by Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, until recently chief food expert of the United States Government.

"If an article marked 'maple sugar' or ' maple syrup' has crossed a State line it is certain to be pure," said Dr. Wiley. "We cannot go into the State where it is made and insure its purity, but we can when it is found outside the State of its origin."

The U. S. Government is keeping a close watch on interstate shipments of maple products and making frequent analyses of samples taken by inspectors. As a result of a searching study into the methods of making maple syrup and sugar the experts can now detect any adulteration amounting to 5 per cent.

OUR NEWFOUNDLAND LETTER.

Items of Interest About the Trade in Our Sister Country.

St. John's, N.B., March 25—(Special).—Trade has been exceptionally dull this winter, owing to tie-up of the railroads, leaving us practically without any trade outside the city. Things are beginning to brighten and with the clearing of the railway difficulty, considerable business is looked for. Some places along the line haven't been able to order goods for over a month. The railway and all the branches are expected to be cleared by the first of April, and from then will begin a trade that will continue briskly at least till the middle of June.

Interest has recently been centred in the sealing voyage. Twenty-three steamers have sailed for the frozen pans, and it is believed the voyage will be a good one. A wireless message just received gives promise that the ships are on the track and some definite news is expected in a few days. It is unfortunate that one steamer, the Erna, a new purchase, by one of our mercantile firms, has not yet arrived from the other side. As she takes a crew of 270 men, it means a big loss for both owners and men.

The Lenten season has brightened up the trade in fish, salmon and herring, and most of our grocers display large quantities in their stores. Fresh halibut is scarce this winter, the fishery on the west coast being away below last year. Fish still keeps up in price, and the coming season good prices for our salt fish are looked for.

Below are the general quotations for our produce:—

THE PEDDLER QUESTION.

Toronto, March 28.—The Legislative Committee of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association, at a session on Thursday last, at which Wm. C. Miller was elected chairman, dealt with the peddler question. Following instructions from the association, it was decided to take up the matter of hucksters calling out their wares on the street, with the city council to attempt to have a by-law passed stopping this nuisance.

It was also resolved that a letter be sent to the Medical Health Officer asking him to see that the by-law relating to exposure of goods by hucksters be now put in force, as this is only justice to retail grocers, who are compelled to live up to law.

This committee learned from the city council on Monday that according to the present law, every man on a peddler's wagon, no matter whether he is a helper or not, must possess a license.

The desired amendments to the peddlers' law will be presented to city council in the near future.

The last Canada Gazette announces the incorporation in Canada of four condensed milk companies. They are the Truro Condensed Milk Co., Limited; Reindeer Limited; Borden Milk Company, Limited, and the St. Charles Condensing Co., Limited.

QUEBEC MARKETS.

POINTERS—

Sugar—Down 10c.

Grenoble Walnuts—Decreased 1c.

Prunes—Slightly easier.

Montreal, March 28.—Business for week has been brisk, with dealers preparing for spring trade. Milder weather has permitted shipments to run easy and as a result all lines have reached the average mark.

Sugar dropped 10c, accounted for by heavy exports of raws from Cuba to New York market.

An easier tedency is noted in peas, at least by some firms. Certain houses are quoting prices somewhat more favorable to purchasers.

SUGAR—Sugar is again exciting, and prices this week are quoted 10c lower. Decline is in sympathy with New York market, which declined considerably of late.

Cuban crop still continues uncertain, reports from day to day varying considerable. While a long season may allow original estimates to be reached, there is still the danger that end of season may turn out unfavorably.

CANNED GOODS.

Toronto.—Spring demand for canned goods is taking its time about getting under way. Routine orders for small lots comprise bulk of present business.

Raspberries, strawberries and blueberries appear to be the canned fruits in scantiest supply. Cherries and plums are apparently the more plentiful lines.

Some dealers say that gallon apples have not taken on any marked activity as green apples are still fairly plentiful. There are still quotations on gallon apples at $3.05 and on 3's at $1.07½, although some jobbers are asking above that figure.

Manufacturers are still behind in orders for canned milk, demand for which still continues brisk.

Canned lobsters are in small compass, ¼s being about unobtainable.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

POINTERS—

Sugar—Down 10c.

Laundry Soaps—Another change.

Maple Syrup—New make on market

Coffee—Firm.

Brazil Nuts—15 to 16c this month.

Toronto, March 28.—Following easier feeling in raws and in United States refined announced last week, Canadian refined declined 10 cents per cwt. this week. This brings refined on Toronto basis to $5.55 as compared with $4.60 one year ago. Reports regarding outturn of Cuban crop continue to vary from day to day. Barbados sugar is about three weeks later than usual in coming forward but is now on the way. With other sugar high, handlers of this line are anticipating a larger demand than usual.

Business is still inclined to quietness. Breaking up of country roads is perhaps partly accountable. "I think you will find this is the explanation of present quietness," said one wholesaler. "Retailers purchased heavily last fall on many lines under advancing tendency. November and December were good months, and even January and February showed marked briskness. The result is that the retailer is now getting the goods out of his own cellar instead of from wholesalers."

Naturally quiet periods can be expected. Opening of spring with accompanying activity as well as approach of Easter should help business.

Another re-adjustment of prices on those laundry soaps which were changed about a month ago has taken place. Prices have been returned to former level. This will make it necessary for the retailer who wishes to make a profit to sell these soaps at five cents straight.

SUGAR.—Refined sugar declined 10c per cwt. this week, bringing local quotations in bags down to $5.55. It will be remembered that in last week's report we noted an easier feeling in raws and a decline in New York refined. The Canadian market followed this trend. Conditions in Europe have depressed market there, while heavier arrivals of Cuban raws in New York than could be reasonably cared for eased market on this side of water. Outlook of market is as yet doubtful. Much depends on Cuba which sends out varying reports from day to day. Business conditions are also a factor, for with sugar considerably above normal, much depends on backing speculators receive.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES. — New make maple syrup made its debut on Toronto market this week, the first arrival coming from Eastern Townships, Quebec. Eight-pound tins containing around 2¼ quarts brought $1. The new article has also been offered in limited quantities at several provincial points. As supply increases, prices will accordingly ease. This is syrup time and retailers should give prominence to their stocks.

Corn syrups continue to move quite freely. For same reason as starch advanced last week, corn syrups are regarded as holding a fairly strong position. Manufacturers are making some little headway now in catching up with orders which have been behind for some time.

There are no new features to molasses.

DRIED FRUITS.—Dried fruit quotations show no alteration during week. Dealers are still waiting for briskness to develop in dried fruits. "None too frisky," was the way one jobber described the movement. "Quiet," was the terse reply of another.

New York papers this week announced a slight break in coast prices on prunes. Holders there have had slightly bearish ideas for some time now. Local dealers are apparently well supplied with prunes, especially large sizes which looked like a scarcity last fall and which local jobbers bought heavily. It is generally believed that large sizes sell best when prunes are high as customers do not like to pay high prices for small prunes. It seems otherwise this year, however.

"Unless business begins to improve pretty soon," said one wholesaler, "I expect to see a scramble among dealers to unload as both jobbers and brokers are carrying big stocks." Here's hoping, however, that trade will become more active.

"The future course of the market," says a report from Greece, on currants, "will depend upon demand from abroad and later on in summer months, also on prospects for new crop. An improvement in demand, such as can be reasonably looked for sooner or later, no doubt should lead to a firmer market again." A late cable notes a slightly firmer feeling with strong statistical position. Local stocks are said to be on a fair scale.

TEA.—No material change in local situation. London tea market reports that competition for Ceylon growths during last month was fairly good. High grown teas were in request at full rates, particularly in case of invoices where quality showed improvement. For common and medium kinds, bidding was somewhat irregular; these grades were in full supply, hence in sympathy with other growths, prices tended downward. Market for Indian teas during month sagged for all teas without character. There was an over-supply of ordinary unattractive grades, but choice teas were quite scarce and firm prices were realized.

COFFEE.—Tone of coffee market continues strong. Values to local grinders and wholesalers are firmer, naturally reflecting a similar tendency in prices to retailers. Trade is of a routine character.

Chickory maintains a continued steady position.

RICE AND TAPIOCA. — Considerable business has been done in rice at lower prices for Rangoon which came into force last week. Advices from dealers would denote a steady position in this commodity at the decline.

Fancy varieties all hold a firm position. This applies to both eastern and United States rices. "This is likely to continue until on in August," said one jobber, "when advent of new Texas may exert some influence."

NUTS.—There has been only a normal movement for season in face of fact that nuts should be in better demand around Easter holidays. Sale of peanuts should shortly improve.

New Brazil nuts are quoted at 15 to 17 cents. It will be remembered that market was well cleaned up on this line for a time.

"We are quoting Brazils at 15 cents for this month's delivery," said one wholesaler. "May delivery will be worth 12 cents and after that ½ cent higher per month."

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

St. John, March 28.—There has been no feature of especial interest on local markets during past weeks other than that general steadiness in business is reported from all sections by retailers, and wholesalers claim there is an increased activity in spring buying throughout both city and province.

The market in May wheat according to local dealers is steady, and has no indication of a change in price, but it has been easing off a little of late, so that Ontario millers have not followed the advance made some days ago.

Beans are scarcer and decidedly firm but without change in quotation. New stocks of Fancy Barbados Molasses are selling well, and it is believed that this commodity will not be greatly lowered from its present rating. The quality with local dealers, they say, is exceptionally good. One reason advanced for the belief that there will be practically no change in Barbados stock is that sugar is fairly steady, although a weak foreign market declined the price of refined sugar 10 cents a week ago. In fact dealers are looking for firmer markets due to conditions in growing regions.

In country market eggs have come in in quantities which have surprised many and receipts have greatly broken the high prices prevailing for some time past, with prospects bright for a further decline. Eggs are now selling cheaply and will be quoted lower, very likely, for Easter market. Butter remains steady and there seems little hope that it will be greatly reduced in price if at all for some little time. The supply of roll butter is fair and brings from 27 to 30 cents per pound, while creamery stock is more plentiful.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, Mar. 28.—With improvement in weather conditions during past week, business brightened up to some extent. It will be some weeks yet, however, before outports are all open, and then it is expected that business will boom.

Good butter is remarkably scarce, and prices continue to soar. Choice creamery sold here this week at 34 cents per pound wholesale, and some fair stock was offered at 32 and 33 cents. There was practically no fresh dairy butter offering. Some held-over butter of poor quality was offered at 30 cents. Dealers state that consumers complained strenuously when they were asked 39 to 40 cents by the retailer for choice butter. Eggs are coming on market in good supply, and price is dropping. Fresh laid stock sold this week at 25 cents per dozen.

There is better demand for hams and bacon, and price holds very firm. No important change has been made, but dealers say that there will probably be an advance at an early date. Lard is in good demand and prices firm.

There is a better demand for canned goods and jams in glass; this season than last.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Editor Canadian Grocer.—In talking to a customer of mine the other day in reference to some articles on petty thefts appearing on The Canadian Grocer, he told me that he had his suspicions aroused by his bread delivery man, about whom he had suspected something was wrong for some time. He decided to watch and one morning he caught him robbing him of four loaves of bread. He owned up at once but the grocer had no idea of how long he had been carrying on these thefts.

In talking to another customer in reference to the same thing, he said, "Why it is not petty thefts alone that are committed but wholesale thefts."

"Of what use are some of our inspectors?" said he.

"Why I heard the other day of a certain commission house who got in a number of barrels of sweet potatoes of which a few were bad. The bad were sprinkled among the good ones and when the inspector came around he was asked to give a dumping paper. He did so and when he went away the bad were separated from the good and the good ones sold, the shipper losing the lot."

A certain grocer not being able to make out how it was his bills for certain commodities were so large, decided to keep tab. He did so and wound up by making the delivery man hand over one hundred and thirty dollars or go to jail. He got the money in several instalments.

TRAVELER.

Editor Canadian Grocer,—A few weeks ago I pointed out that certain things the "Grocers' Association" contemplated doing had already been attended to by the grocers' section of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, and now since they are making an effort to prevent the wholesaler from selling direct to the consumer, it may be interesting to them to know what had been done by our association in reference to this matter.

The question of wholesalers selling direct to the consumer came up for discussion at the Provincial Guild convention last summer, when it was decided that it should come before the Dominion Guild convention. When that took place last February, the representation which was expected from Quebec could not attend and the matter was not taken up. A few retailers being present, they took it up among themselves, and came to the conclusion that the merchants of each city or town must draw the lines themselves and through the legal right we have make the wholesale houses live up to them. If they are sincere in this effort we can be of great assistance to them.

Freight Congestion Hampers Business

Unable to Get Supplies of Raw Material to Eastern Mills—Flour Shipments From Western Points Delayed—Opening of Navigation Will Bring Relief—Consumptive Demand for Flour and Cereals Reported Good.

Those retailers who are pushing flour and cereals report that trade at present time is on good scale for season. Weather has been favorable and even arrival of spring should not affect trade to any great extent, especially if retailers continue to give deserved attention to these lines.

Flour continues with rather firm undertone. Retail trade are pretty well stocked at present time as there was considerable purchasing previous to last advance. Besides dealers who needed feed have been purchasing flour in order to get it, as most mills for sometime now have required that a certain percentage of flour be taken with feed.

Congestion on railways has certainly caused a great deal of trouble for flour men this year. At present time eastern millers are short on both wheat and oats and freight situation seems no better. Fort William is the point of congestion for while there are three railroads to carry grain to that point there is only one line to bring it on eastward. Stocks of grain in elevators on eastern side of lakes are practically cleaned up. Of course opening of navigation will relieve this situation, but that will at least be well on in April this year. Difficulty is also met with in getting shipments of flour eastward from western points. Exporters of flour have contracts made for goods that they are unable to get to seaboard.

Confectionery for Easter trade has been moving freely. Of course, most dealers order their requirements some little time ahead, but there are always certain dealers who hold off in purchases until the last moment. For this reason wholesalers are receiving a considerable amount of belated business this week.

MONTREAL.

FLOUR.—The week has been quiet for flour, offering no change in either price or demand. Supplies are up to the mark.

TORONTO.

FLOUR.—Flour continues with quite a firm undertone. Business is only normal. Retailers are stocked fairly heavy, having purchased rather heavily previous to advance in price while country dealers have been taking their full capacity in order to get supplies of feed.

On account of tardiness in arrival of raw material, many mills have to be a little wary for fear they should get more business booked than the arrival of wheat would allow them to care for.

Millers of winter wheat flour are not pressing for sales at present. Prices on this line remain steady.

Those dealers who are pushing flour are finding a good consumptive demand.

CEREALS.—Rolled oats hold fairly firm position outlined last week, raw material holding up well. Mills are still experiencing considerable difficulty in getting sufficient supply of raw material to mills.

New business is not extra brisk but there is a good movement of goods which have already been contracted for. Consumptive demand is reported on a fair scale by retail trade.

FEED.—Offerings of shorts and bran are somewhat freer. While for some time mills would only sell feed on condition that certain amount of flour be taken, now a limited number of cars of straight feed are being offered. Bran in car lots is quoted at $25 to $26 per ton and shorts at $27 to $28.

IRISH POTATOES SOLD WELL.

Toronto, March 28.—Since the arrival of Irish potatoes on the market, a good many grocers have sold large quantities of the "spuds from the Emerald Isle."

Grocers who before sold little or no potatoes have been able to work up a big trade for this line in a short time.

E. C. Matthews, grocer of Parliament St., was among the first to show the Irish potato. He placed a display in his store, combined with a show card appropriately bearing the shamrock. Mr. Matthews reports they have sold readily, people coming from other districts of the city to purchase.

"It is not so much the quality of the potato that has brought about the big demand," declares Mr. Matthew, "but the novelty of it. Anything new attracts public attention."

This statement is indeed true and gives the dealer a cue which if followed whenever possible will mean dollars and cents to him. The fact that anything new or novel arouses attention may be turned to good advantage by the dealer by taking hold of and pushing any good lines which may appear from time to time on the market.

EARLY CLOSING AT NEW HAMBURG.

New Hamburg, Ont., March 28.—The merchants of this place have united in an early closing agreement, which goes into effect at the end of March. Under this agreement all stores will close at 6 p.m., with the exception of Saturdays and evenings before holidays. A further exception is made in regard to July and August, in which months the stores will be kept open on Wednesday evenings to accommodate the farmers.

How To Arrive at the Selling Price

A Simple Problem Which Caused Many Retailers to Arrive at an Erroneous Conclusion—An Interesting Question Introduced by F. C. Lariviere at the Guelph Hardware Convention.

At the recent Guelph convention of hardwaremen, an interesting paper was read by Fred. C. Larviere, of Montreal, on the results of an investigation into the methods of retailers in figuring profits. It provoked a lengthy discussion, involving as it did a number of vital points. The paper is reproduced in part.

A manufacturer of store equipment recently caused a question to be printed in a few of the national magazines, business, trade and newspaper publications, designed to find out what percentage of retailers figure their profit right.

The question had to be printed, of course, as an advertisement, even though it was not advertising in itself. Under the question was an offer to send a "48 page book for retailers" to any retailer, who told how he figured the profit problem. Each retailer who answered the problem was also given another little book on the "Right Way to Figure Profits."

The publications used had a very wide circulation and of course went to a large number of retailers in every part of the United States and Canada.

The answers aggregated about 1,000, of which 750 were wrong.

It is hardly believable that 75 per cent. of all retailers do not know how to figure profits. Some of the readers of this publication will doubt the possibility of such a condition.

Here is the question: A certain article costs $1 wholesale. What will it have to be sold for to allow a profit of 10 per cent., after allowing 22 per cent. for cost of doing business?

It is a very simple question—one that every retailer has to answer in his own business every day. But 750 out of 1,000 retailers answered it wrong.

The answers ranged all the way from $1.10 to $1.60. The majority gave the selling price as $1.32 or $1.34, allowing a profit of one cent or less, notwithstanding an explanation at the bottom of the question that the answer was not $1.32.

A retailer in Dallas, Texas, answered like this:

"In answering your question in the Saturday Evening Post, will say that if you had not stated that $1.32 was not correct, I would have put that price on the article, for I do not charge any profit on overhead expenses. But if you do, I cannot see any other way of figuring but to charge $1.34 on selling price. Will you please send me your book and please tell me what your selling price is, and oblige."

Is there any wonder that this man was not making money? He was on the straight road to bankruptcy and going fast. But he has slowed up now, and will soon be going in the right direction.

Perhaps some of the readers of this publication will think that there would be a profit in the article at $1.34, and to make sure that they will understand this Texas merchant's state of progress, it is well to explain why and how he was losing money instead of making ten per cent. profit as he thought.

If the wholesale price is $1.00 and the cost of doing business 22 per cent., $1.34 does not allow 10 per cent., but only 1.4 per cent. profit. On a gross annual business of $15,000, he will clear $150 a year, or a little better than $12 a month.

He said that if the ad. had not stated that $1.32 was not correct, he would have put that price on the article.

Selling the article at $1.32 he would lose almost 1 per cent. instead of making 10 per cent.

His trouble was that he figured his profit and the amount which he wanted to take out for the cost of doing business, or his percentages, on the cost price instead of on the selling price.

Instead of adding 32 per cent. of the wholesale cost to the wholesale cost he should have added 32 per cent. of the selling price to the wholesale cost.

The wholesale cost is not something to be added to, but a portion of the selling price in this instance, 68 per cent. of the selling price.

If the wholesale cost is 68 per cent. of the selling price, then the selling price is evidently $1.47, instead of $1.34, or $1.32.

If the cost of doing business is figured on the selling price, that is, 22 per cent. on the gross amount of business done during the year, the cost of selling the article is not 22 cents but 32 1-3 cents.

If 10 per cent. profit is desired on the selling price, it is not sufficient to add 10 cents to the cost price. Instead, 14.7 cents, nearly 15 cents must be added.

To prove this, take 22 per cent. of $1.47, which is 32.34 cents, and 10 per cent. of $1.47, which is 14.7 cents. Add these to $1.00 and you have $1.47.

A dealer in Alabama said:

"If my cost of doing business is 22 per cent. and I wish to make a sale to bear 10 per cent. profit, I should figure it this way:

Cost and cash	$ 1.22
Profit at 10 p.c...	12.02
Selling price	$ 1.34

"I would, therefore, sell for $1.34 all articles invoiced at $1.00 for 10 per cent. profit. Am I correct?"

He is incorrect. As stated before, instead of making 10 per cent. profit he would make a fraction over 1 per cent.

A Canton, Ohio, dealer in clothing and furnishing goods figured the problem in exactly the same way with the same result. So did a boot and shoe house at Goshen, Indiana.

A lumber, hardware and furniture dealer in a little town in Illinois gave a little different solution, getting very near to the correct method. He deducted 22 from 100, leaving 78. This 78 he construed as being 78 per cent. of the selling price, less his profit.

If $1.00 is 78 per cent. of the selling price, the latter, of course, would be $1.28, which he labelled as the selling price to cover the cost of doing business.

Then he deducted 10 from 100, leaving 90, and labelled $1.28 as 90 per cent of the selling price to cover profit. $1.28, of course, is 90 per cent. of $1.42, which he gave as the answer.

He made the mistake of taking his percentage for the cost of doing business out of one sum and his profit out of another. He should have taken both percentages at the same time.

He went on to prove his figures, and undoubtedly did prove them, so far as his way of figuring is concerned. But proving that a wrong answer is correct by using a wrong method is like trying to prove that a horse is a horse by pointing out a pig.

This man's letterhead showed that he has a capital stock of $10,000, and that he is treasurer of the company.

But he has the wrong job, for he was figuring himself out of 5 cents on every dollar's worth of goods he bought. He isn't doing it now.

A druggist out in Iowa figured his $1.00 wholesale cost to give him a selling price of $1.43. He went about it in the right way but figured wrong. First, he subtracted 32 (both percentages) from 100, giving 68; then he multiplied $1.00 by 100 and divided by 68, giving him "$1.43."

His method is very much better than his arithmetic. While he goes about it in the right way, he gets the wrong answer by 4 cents. Multiplying $1.00 by 100 and dividing by 68 should give $1.47—does if the calculation is performed correctly.

Fruit Trade Awaits Favorable Weather

Needed to Start Spring Business Off in Earnest—Frosted Oranges Cut Dry—Florida Celery Eases Off—Tomatoes Also Cheaper—New Cabbage From California—Egyptian Onions to Arrive Shortly.

Fruit men were just beginning to wear a satisfied smile last week by reason of brighter prospects on account of warm weather, when the temperature took a downward slide and put a rather bad crimp in their elated feelings. Trade has been worrying along at a fair level under the less favorable conditions but warmer and brighter weather is needed to start the spring trade off in earnest.

Next week should, however, see a good volume of business. The touch of the festive season which surrounds Easter and the holiday which is connected with it should work for an improvement during the coming week, which will be much more marked if the weather man lends his assistance.

Feature of orange trade is the fact that considerable frosted fruit which cuts dry is arriving at many centres. It seems impossible to guard against the packing of some fruit which has been frosted. This undoubtedly affects the orange trade to some extent as the customer who gets some of this fruit will not be so inclined to purchase so much Somewhat more interest has been taken in pineapples, but last week's lower prices were followed this week by an upward reaction. Florida strawberries, however, tend downward, although rather tardy is moving to lower levels.

Florida celery is also pointing downward. Under increased offerings values since last week have eased off about $1 per crate at primary points. Lower prices will be welcomed by both dealer and consumer and will mean an increased consumption. California article has not eased to same extent as Florida.

Canadian cabbage is about cleaned up and California new cabbage is now coming along to many points. Onions are also getting to end of their tether, season of Spanish being about over. First shipment of Egyptian onions will be arriving shortly. First shipment will rule fairly high but the crop is said to be quite large, and prices are expected to be reasonable.

Large arrival of English and Irish potatoes has eased prices slightly at some centres. There would appear to be steadiness ahead, however, as the quantity to come forward from Old Country is decidedly limited. Some stock which came forward in rather bad condition caused cancellation of orders which were to be sent forward.

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUITS.—Green fruits are still steady. Demand shows signs of enlargement with nearing of spring trade and dealers are confident of an active season. The shipments are now free, bringing supplies up to the mark. Florida pineapples are a repeated feature. Last week they offered a decrease but have advanced suddenly. They are now quoted at $5.

TORONTO.

GREEN FRUITS.— Conditions were promising for fruits during the early part of last week but a dip back into winter weather put a kink in trade. Warmer weather is now needed to improve business.

Orange trade is on a fair scale but a considerable amount of frosted fruit which cuts dry has a tendency to turn the public against this line. Grapefruit sells fairly well considering high prices.

There is somewhat more activity in apples. Real good fruit such as Northern Spys is not plentiful but there are fair supplies of lower quality goods. No. 1 Spys are quoted at $5 per barrel, and No. 2, at $4.25. Box apples are moving out quite well.

Almeria grapes are nearing a clean up. There is more interest in pineapples. Florida strawberries are slightly easier.

VEGETABLES.—A new line on market this week is new cabbage from California which is worth $5.50 per crate. Canadian stock is about a thing of the past. Florida tomatoes are easier at $4 to $4.50, and are selling well.

Prospects are for easier prices on Florida celery by reason of increased offerings. One dealer stated that offers were about $1 per case below those of a week ago. Spanish onions are getting well to an end. First shipment of Egyptians expected in about a week. One firm quotes $3.50 for 112-lb. bags. Later shipments will be at a lower figure as crop is said to be a good one.

There has been a lot of Irish potatoes come to this market resulting in slightly easier prices during past couple of weeks. Opinion seems to be that steadiness will set in again shortly as shipments from Old Country, have about stopped.

Fruit and Vegetable Displays Sell Goods

Example of What Successful Window Trims Will do to Make Money—The Present is Good Time to Show These Goods—A Display Idea That Can be Easily Arranged.

To be sold readily fruit and vegetables must be seen. Now that pineapples, grapefruit as well as oranges and new vegetables are coming freely on to the Canadian market, good opportunities are offered for displaying lines that will readily sell. If it is not possible to have a fruit window all the time, at least there should be one good display every week.

Recently in one of Canada's largest cities a high class fruit dealer went out of business—not forced but retired. He made his money in selling fruit and frequently expressed himself to the writer that his window was his best selling asset. It was dressed a couple of times every week in an exceedingly attractive manner and the goods that were displayed were sold.

An easily arranged display.

Every retail dealer can make his own window a good fruit seller. Herewith is a suggestion for a display of fruits and vegetables which will require but a short time to arrange.

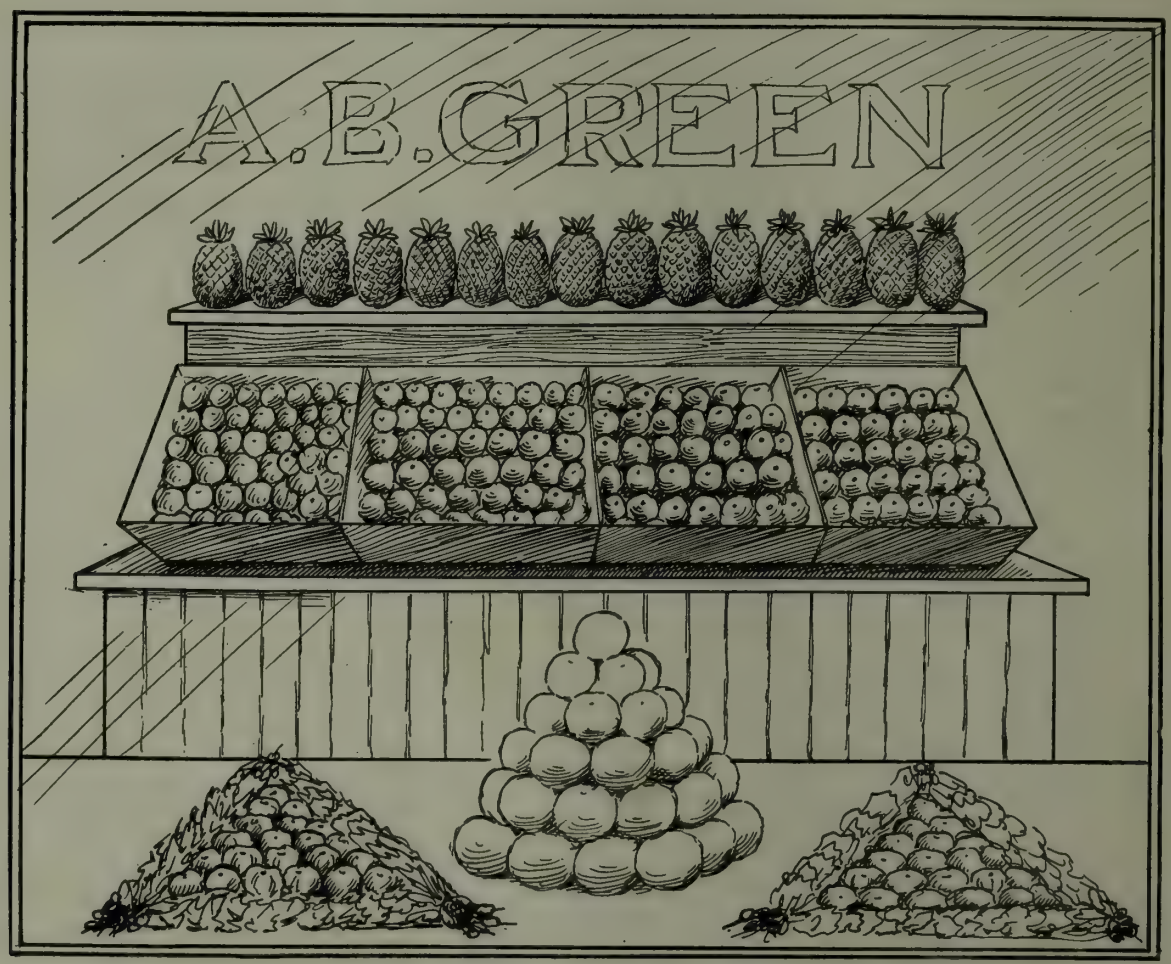
On a raised platform at the rear is placed a row of pineapples. Beneath this are boxes of oranges tilted so that they can be seen. In the centre of the floor is a pile of grape fruit built up carefully in pyramid style and on either side is a triangle of vegetables lying flat on the floor. The interior of the triangle is made of tomatoes. Surrounding these is a row of lettuce, tipped on each corner by a bunch of radish.

Consider Color Scheme.

In designing this window the artist had in mind the color arrangement which cannot be shown here. The red tomatoes fringed by green lettuce and tipped by red radish makes a pleasing effect on the eye. There is also contrast among the grapefruit, oranges and pineapples.

Tne floor of the window might be covered with a green cloth or fine shreds of green paper to imitate grass. It would give the idea of the approach of spring and add a little to the effectiveness of the display.

That fruit and vegetable displays bring extra business should be realized at once by every dealer. It should also be realized that the better the display the better the business.



Suggestion for a Fruit and Vegetable Window Display.

Fish Preparation for Last Week of Lent

Is Expected to be Busy One—Good Friday Always Big Day in Fish—Weather Has Been Kind to Fish Trade—Stocks Well Cleaned up and Prices Rule Steady.

The last week of big Lenten demand for fish is at hand and dealers are preparing to make the last round of the rush season a record one in point of sales. Last week of Lent in past years has always seen a big volume of business, and there is no reason to believe that history will not repeat itself this year. Good Friday is of course the bright spot in the week, and special efforts should be given to trade on this day.

Weather man has indeed been kind to the trade of late, considering the season, conditions being fairly favorable for sale of this line.

Close of Lent is expected to find stocks at most centres well cleaned up, much better in fact than at this time last year. Certain lines are getting into smaller compass and others completely cleaned up. Prices continue to hold a steady position.

Markets on eastern coast note fresh fish in fair supply. Halibut is rather scarce. As season advances, trade will turn more to fresh caught.

Herrings have already put in an appearance on Nova Scotia coast. Smelts are about done, this year's catch having been an average one.

QUEBEC.

MONTREAL.—Fish situation for the week has been rather quiet. The demand has greatly decreased but will broaden out next week to fill the "Good Friday" week trade. Supplies still hold out, but on a much modified scale resulting in a considerable number of advanced prices.

ONTARIO.

TORONTO.—Demand for fish has been on fair scale during week and is now developing signs of greater activity as dealers are preparing for an expected good trade during last week of big rush period. Weather of late considering the season has been really kind to fish trade and with fairly favorable conditions during next week, a good volume of business should be done. Good Friday is the day on which dealers make their last big bid for business, and sales generally run into a good figure.

"How are stocks going to be at end of Lent?" one fish man was asked.

"Clean as a whistle," was his reply.

Apparently stocks are cleaning up well, and the end of Lent should find them smaller than is generally the case at this time. Prices continue to hold steady.

NOVA SCOTIA.

HALIFAX.—Demand for dried and pickled fish shows decided falling off during past week. Business, however, has been good this Lent. Most dealers stocked up pretty heavily earlier in season, and it is presumed they have sufficient stock on hand to carry them over into April. There is no change in the lobster situation, and smelts are about done. Catch was about an average one, and prices were good.

Fresh fish is in fair supply on the local market, with exception of halibut which is becoming scarcer. The price quoted is 17 cents per pound. Receipts of fish at Digby continue heavy. One vessel that arrived there this week landed 116,000 pounds, nearly all of which were haddock. This heavy run of fish has kept the smoke houses in full operation.

There is a much better demand for oysters, both in bulk and in the shell. Dealers say that this is due to falling off in the lobster catch. Clams in cans and in bulk are also selling quite freely.

George McCormick, president of the McCormick Manufacturing Co., London, Ont., underwent an operation for appendicitis last week. He is doing nicely, and expects to be about in a few weeks.

Frank Moore, of the Moore Fruit Co., London, Ont., and Mrs. Moore, have left on a trip to Florida. They expect to be gone six weeks.

Some Good Sellers During Month of April

Attention Should be Devoted to Fish Sales and Easter Goods During First Week—A Month When House Cleaning Articles Will Move Readily—Preserved Fruits and Canned Fruits and Vegetables Require Special Notice.

The month of April is rich in opportunities for the live retail grocer. Unfortunately in past years there have been some merchants who have not regarded April as presenting any great possibilities in the way of trade. They argued that the housewife was busy at spring housecleaning, that the farmer was busy with his spring work and that condition of country roads and town streets was not conducive to trade.

In short they came to the conclusion before carefully weighing both sides of the problem that April was a quiet month. They accordingly failed to grasp the opportunities that were presented and trade with them was probably really quiet. Here and there, however, are merchants who are not ready to give up the fight before it had started.

The Last Lap of Lent.

The first week of April marks the closing week of the Lenten season. Before this season has once more passed into history, it behooves the grocer to put forth every effort to corral all the trade possible that the season may induce. Fish of all kinds will sell well, Good Friday especially being a stellar day in this regard. Dealers should endeavor to clean frozen and pickled stocks up to a safe point that week, as after Easter trade will return to a more even and regular level. Canned fish, such as salmon, lobsters, sardines and smelts should be given all due prominence.

The Time for Easter Goods.

This first week will be particularly marked, however, by the pushing of Easter goods. Shackles are about to be removed from healthy appetites, which for six weeks have been restricted to certain diets. It behooves the dealer to arise to the opportunities presented by pushing those goods which will appeal to the public palate. Hams and bacon, fruits and green vegetables, confectionery and all other kindred appetizing lines displayed in proper manner are sure to arrest the attention of the passing fastee.

Easter is somewhat of a festive season and delicacies are in demand. Fruits and confectionery will sell freely while retailers should not forget to push nuts at this season. Those dealers who handle Easter novelties should do their best to clean stocks up closely during that week. Herein lies the profit, for if unsold at this time, it means a dealer will have them left on his hands.

Sell Housecleaning Articles.

Spring is now appearing in real earnest and in homes throughout the land housecleaning is the order of the day. April is the housecleaning month and accordingly during this month all those lines which the housewife needs to call into action in this work should be brought to the front.

Soaps, lyes, cleansers, ammonias, brushes and brooms are among the lines which need to be kept prominently before the housewife. Wherever possible a window display should be devoted to these combined lines, while a counter should be given over to them during the entire season. It is well to get started early.

Get Behind Seeds.

This is also the month for the sale of seeds. Garden and flower seeds will about complete the list shown by city dealers but in the smaller towns and villages, field seeds are also sold by the grocer. Taken for granted that the dealer has made sure he has purchased the best quality of seed obtainable, the next thing of importance is to get the public interested in them. Here again the window may be used to good advantage. Inside the store they should be shown prominently and no opportunity should be lost to talk about them to customers. Quality should be the keynote of the talks.

The Depleted Shelf of Preserves.

If one were afforded the privilege of a peep at most any housewife's shelf of preserves these days it would require no more than a peep to convince him that the family supply is getting into mighty small compass. Fruit is a necessity of the daily diet, and with the housewift attempting to be easy on what little "home-made" is left, it is natural that she turn to the grocer for a solution of the problem. Here the grocer has his opportunity to promote sales of canned, preserved and dried fruits, which from now on will be in good demand. The dealer should not, however, wait for customers to inquire regarding these lines, but should suggest them himself by personal talks, advertising as well as counter and window display.

Canned Vegetables Will Sell.

The grocer has good reason indeed to push canned vegetables at this time. It is a well known fact that dried vegetables this spring are conspicuous by their absence, while green vegetables are at a fancy figure. The latter line should not however be forgotten for there are a certain class of customers whose purse can well stand the strain of these high-priced delicacies.

Advertising during month of April should prove profitable, because there are so many lines which may be advertised to good advantage during this month. Besides the closing of Lent and arrival of Easter, the advent of housecleaning and seed season all provide good material for special advertising.

Truly indeed when the dealer reviews the situation it becomes quite evident that April is not lacking in opportunities for promoting business.

WOULD THIS BE LUCK?

Traveler Tells Story of Grocer and His Wife who Made Some Money.

"You ask me," remarked a Montreal traveller recently, "for a story of grocers I have met. Well, you may have seen a notice in the daily press a few weeks ago about a grocer who was offered $85,000 for some property on Sherbrooke street. I knew that man when he had but a very ordinary business quite a few years ago. He was so uneducated that he could scarcely sign his name to bills, but to-day his money and land is said to total into six figures.

"Just how he did it is more than I can tell. There are exceptions to the general rule, you know, and this man handicapped as he was by the lack of education put his money, what little he made, into real estate with the result that it was not long until he began to have something to show for his first years in the business.

"Great opportunities were presented here in land deals in those days and that is really how he made his money, but he remained in the grocery business 33 years. It serves him well. It gave him the necessary start and helped him considerably afterwards.

"I do not know whether you would account him much of a grocer or not, but there are very few of them who can show a more substantial grounding than he, to-day. It just shows how a man handicapped in one direction seems to have other faculties keener than those of the ordinary man. It is necessary that he should be equipped in this way. Some may call it luck and say he "got in right," but call it what you will this man began thirty-three years ago as a grocer with no prospects and to-day he is worth something around two hundred thousand dollars."

Produce & Provisions

Firmer Feeling Noted in Pork Products

Live Hogs Higher Under Stinted Supplies and Keen Demand—Provisions Selling Briskly for Easter Trade—Lard Holds Firmly—Eggs Have Held Steady at Last Week's Level—Pinch in Butter at Some Points—Brighter Prospects Ahead.

The approach of Easter has worked for a brisker demand for pork products at most centres. Smoked hams and bacon have been moving quite freely, while the next week will bring a good volume of business, as there are always dealers who hold off in purchases until last moment.

It was pointed out in these columns some time ago that nothing was to be gained by holding off with orders. The firmer prices on smoked meats at many centres proves correctness of this statement. Lard continues in good demand under the high butter prices and with stocks closely cleaned up at most centres, prices rule steady to firm.

Trend of live hog prices for past two weeks has been upward. Not only has English bacon market ruled firm but deliveries have been stinted and on account of approach of Easter and larger consumption of provisions, demand for porkers has been keen. Higher prices for hogs naturally gives a firmer tendency to provisions.

Egg prices at the larger centres have remained at about the same level as noted last week, although there has been some easing at certain country points. Lower prices for new laid eggs have made them a popular food and consumption has been large. Bad roads in country districts have hampered deliveries and there is little hope of them improving in the near future. Next week in anticipation of big Easter consumption there will be a large demand for eggs but on other hand farmers will be making every effort to get their supplies to market before the passing of Easter, so that receipts will be on a large scale also.

It was pointed out last week that there might still be a pinch in butter at certain points before prices turned downward. Such has proved the case at Montreal, where values have moved upward during the week. At other centres however there is a tinge of easiness on account of increase in new milk goods. It is not marked however and even when easiness sets in, it can be expected to be gradual. Demand for this commodity in face of high prices is mostly for small lots. Dealers should watch market closely for turning point.

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS.—Provisions have offered no feature this week, prices remaining at previous levels. Consumptive demand is still limited at high quotations, but Easter trade should improve business during next week.

BUTTER.—Butter is again beyond the usual level. Prices have advanced considerably this week and tend to go higher. Stocks are barely large enough to last two weeks and unless the production increases there is likely to be a slight famine. Old Country and United States markets are inclined in the same direction and will not be able to render any assistance for about three weeks and the season is pretty much advanced. Old Country butter is laid down at 32 cents; but would take considerable time to reach Canada. Butter should be followed with care.

PROVISIONS.—In anticipation of Easter trade, pork products have been moving quite freely. Hams and bacon have been favorite lines in demand. The next week will see considerable business as there are always those dealers who hold off in their purchases to the last moment.

Stronger feeling noted last week has made itself felt in increased prices for smoked hams, bacon and backs. Long clear is also higher, while lard prices have been marked up another ¼ cent. Live hogs during the week have continued to come forward slowly and under keen dmand have advanced 35 cents per cwt. during week.

BUTTER.—Butter situation has shown no particular change during past week, and quotations remain unaltered. As pointed out last week there is a slight tendency to easiness by reason of increase in offerings of new make, but this is not marked. With roads apt to break up at any time there are those dealers who fear that there may yet be a pinch before values turn downward, but even if such should prove the case, it is expected to be only temporary. It looks like easiness ahead, however, whenever new make begins to show a substantial enough increase.

EGGS.—Egg prices have remained at just about last week's prices, demand for the new laid having measured up well with receipts. The lower prices as well as comparatively high figure for meats has made eggs a very popular food and consumption in past few weeks has shown a wonderful increase. Bad roads have held up receipts somewhat but warm weather may make the situation even worse. Prices in country districts under increased yield are easing. Next week the Easter consumption will mean a big demand.

CHEESE.—With stocks in small compass market remains steady and firm. Some new fodder cheese is finding its way to market but quantity is decidedly limited. High price for butter will influence values somewhat. Review of the Past Year's Cheese Market

How Values Gradually Began to Creep Up Following Hot Spell of Last July—Record Season in High Prices—Falling Off in Exports—Prospects for Coming Season Depend Greatly on Weather.

One might say that the past year has seen extremely high prices for cheese and feel quite safe in his statement. He might even go so far as to state it has been the highest in many years without fear of contradiction, for such has been the case. It has been a record year in this regard.

If you go to a wholesale dealer in Montreal to-day to buy cheese, you will be asked 17½ cents per pound or thereabouts—that is for large Quebec make. One year ago this self same article might have been purchased for 14 cents. The phenomenal advance during the year is no greater in Montreal than elsewhere either for Toronto values are now 17 cents for large cheese compared with 13¾ cents one year ago.

Considered High a Year Ago.

Even the prices quoted one year ago were considered rather high, or at least they were by no means considered low, because stocks were small and values in the Old Country were firm. In April, factories began turning out the new product in limited quantities, but new cheese is not especially appealing to most cheese-eating people, so that seasoned cheese held high. If we examine cheese values on June 30 we find that 12¼ cents were being asked in Toronto.

The weather that then began to prevail in Canada is still fresh in the minds of readers. Those hot dry July days are not soon to be forgotten. They dried and withered up the meadows, the flow of milk was shortened and cheese values in consequence began to ascend.

Nor did those conditions fall off in a short time but prevailed steady during the entire season. Couple with this the drought was also cutting down the production of cheese in England and elsewhere, and all combined to make a continued steady market. On September 29, we find values in Montreal at 14½ and in Toronto at 15½. The end of October found 16 cents the prevailing price in Montreal.

England Short of Supplies.

Thus had the winter commenced with values on a good start to record level. Not alone were stocks small in Canada, but England was short on her winter's supply and was purchasing the Canadian article rather freely. Conditions thus gave the expectancy of a strong and advancing market as stocks got into smaller compass, and prices to-day show just how true the market has followed predictions. To-day Toronto prices are at 17 cents and Montreal at 17½ cents. Here is the trend of values since June 30 last:—

	Toronto.	Montreal.
June 30	12¼	13
July 28	13	12½
Sept. 1	14	13
Sept. 29	15½	14½
Oct. 27	15½	16
Dec. 1	16	16½
Feb. 2	16½	17½
Mar 23	17	17½

How Exports Fell Off.

The short production in Canada last year is shown by the fact that up to Mar. 16 from May 1 last, exports from Montreal, Quebec, St. John and Portland amounted to 1,963,146 boxes compared with 2,081,248 boxes for corresponding period the previous year.

Cheese production for this year is commencing, but the volume will be limited for some time. Some new fodder cheese that arrived in Montreal last week sold for 14 to 14¾ as against 11½ to 11¾ one year ago. The scarcity of feed is somewhat against a good flow of milk, but notwithstanding the adverse conditions, cows in general have wintered fairly well. While butter continues high it will also have the tendency to keep cheese strong as high butter means less milk available for cheese production.

Future Market Prospects.

Cheese stocks are, however, on a small scale both here and abroad, and for that reason old cheese may be expected to hold firm. To predict how new cheese will range during the year is however, mostly a gamble. There are so many conditions, such as weather and conditions of pastures during the summer, as well as conditions abroad, that any opinion would be little more than a guess.

BOUTILIER'S Smoked Fillets

Here, Mr. Grocer, is a line you can do a good trade in ALL THE TIME, and we would advise you to consider it. You can easily start a good fish department and work it successfully. Make a selection from our lines. Instruct the driver or delivery clerk to tell your customers that you are open to handle their fish orders; or get out a neat circular (a few dollars will cover the expense) and send it round. The results will be good, because the housewife likes to give her order for everything to one store and dislikes having to go here for her groceries and there for her fish.

CREAM TARTAR

Grocers: Every dealer that has any regard for the quality of the goods that he offers to his customers should study the Government Analyst's report on Cream of Tartar. There are many brands of Cream of Tartar on the market that are claimed to be pure, but which are shown by Chemical Analysis to be of low grade and adulterated.

The Every-Day Demand

Nothing is plainer than this proposition: The nearer an article approaches the point of every-day demand the greater becomes its importance as a business asset of the producer or seller.

Housewives, housekeepers, cooks—all who keep house—are learning that can be used in a hundred different ways for desserts and for table jellies.

It is all so free from trouble and work that it is becoming an every-day habit. Here is a subject that vitally interests every grocer.

There are seven Jell-O flavors.

THE GENESEE PURE FOOD CO.,
BRIDGEBURG, CAN.

The name Jell-O is on every package in big red letters. If it isn't there, it isn't Jell-O.

AGAIN

we draw your attention to the fact that Mooney's Perfection Cream Sodas have proven phenomenal sellers with good profit. They are distinguished by their superior degree of lightness and crispness, making them a most delectable table delicacy.

Perfection and Popularity

go hand in hand. The wise grocer knows this to be a sound commercial fact. He accordingly stocks

Royal Shield Jelly Powders

For purity they will stand the most rigid tests—there are no adulterants or preservatives used in their manufacture—points which make Royal Shield Jellies exceedingly popular with housewives.

If you but suggest, you will find a steady and satisfied trade to be worked up for Royal Shield goods, and it is a profitable line, too.

Purity-Cleanliness-Freshness

AFTER years of experiment in the proper making of jams, Chivers & Sons are now the recognized leaders of the preserved fruit industry in the Old Country. Exhaustive investigation by the world's best critics has pronounced them "excellent."

PURITY—Cleanliness—Freshness—these three, are the hall-mark of this world-famed make of food products. Starting in a very small way with a mere handful of employees, Chivers & Sons have developed into a thoroughly organized concern employing thousands of people.

Chivers & Sons' Fruit Preserves

have a flavour that is unequalled, being composed of the choicest fresh fruit skillfully prepared. This delicious flavour may be attributed to their method of preserving and packing, almost immediately after the fruit is gathered. This is an advantage obtained by Chivers' factory standing in the midst of thousands of acres of orchards in the finest fruit-growing district of Cambridgeshire.

A feature that you will find as a selling point is the careful packing in tins or bottles. By a special process all the tins are prepared so as to prevent the possibility of any detrimental effect on the fruit.

You safeguard your reputation, Mr. Grocer, by stocking foodstuffs of perfect purity and quality—tried and tested. You will find it the means of bringing many repeat orders—at good profit.

Auto Delivery Curtails Delivery Expenses

Service is one of the main features which determines a merchant's patronage, with delivery the most important part. Merchants are more and more beginning to realize the many points in favor of automobile delivery, because it brings them more business and because it is cheaper than any other method.

The Menard Commercial Car

HOLBROOK'S SAUCE Window Trim

FREE

THIS window trim is lithographed in seven colors and makes a very unique and handsome display. The entire trim is in seven pieces and can be fixed to a window in two minutes and taken down in a few seconds. Everything is ready, no pasting is required, no preparation of any kind. The objectionable features of other window displays have been entirely eliminated by the use of patent adhesive fasteners. A tiny adhesive fastener is placed at the corner of each sheet, merely remove the cotton protector and press it to the window and it is on, and it will remain on. When finished with, simply tear down, and not a single mark or sticky impression will be found on the window.

We are running an extensive advertising campaign in the leading newspapers throughout the Dominion. These window displays will draw the benefit of our publicity into your store.

We mail you the complete outfit free of all charges, distance doesn't matter. Yours for the asking. Send us a post card to-day.

DO YOU KNOW ALL OF YOUR "CREDIT" CUSTOMERS" PERSONALLY? IF NOT, YOU NEED
Allison Coupon Books

Because they will enable you to handle a vastly greater number of credit accounts profitably and with SAFETY. You don't need a high salaried organization either, for they eliminate a great deal of work, simplify bookkeeping, prevent errors and disputes, and—best of all—afford an easy means of checking close on each customer, who might otherwise let his account run too long. If you have a few "slow" but perhaps "good" credit customers, just try ALLISON COUPON BOOKS and then keep your eye on the cash book. See what a difference it makes.

HERE'S HOW THEY WORK:—

When a man wants credit, give him an Allison Coupon Book, and have him sign form at the front which becomes then his promissory note to you As he buys, you tear out coupons, and when his book is exhausted you can collect your note or extend his credit for another book, as you deem wise. No pass books, no charging, no time wasted, no errors, no disputes

The Latest Proof of Redpath

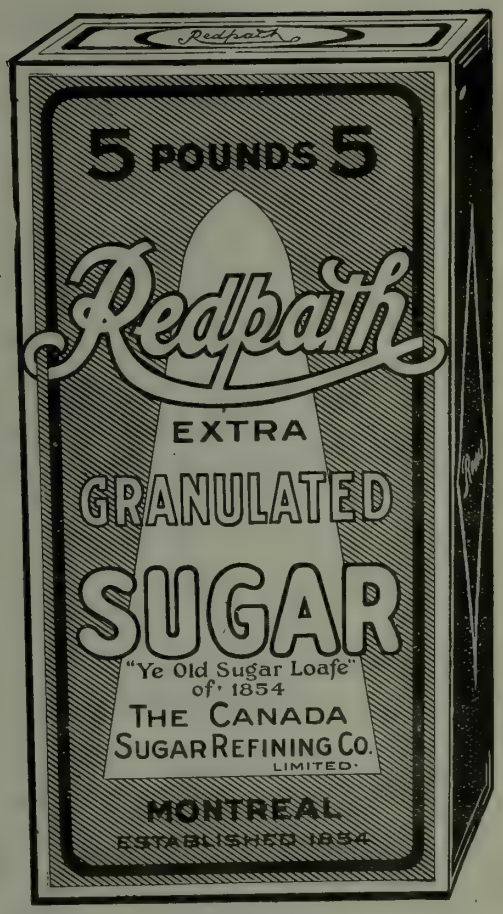
Leadership in Sugars is This New 5-Pound Carton



In 1854 John Redpath & Son established in Montreal Canada's first Sugar Refinery.

Since that time REDPATH Sugar has led all others in the Dominion, both in quality and in sales.

Throughout Canada, for three generations, REDPATH Sugar has been known as the purest and best.

Redpath Sugar is now the first in this country to be put up in this strictly modern way—in 5-pound Sealed Cartons.

In this attractive package Redpath Sugar appeals to the most desirable customers, because they know it is Canada's finest sugar, absolutely clean and pure.

These Cartons save you the time, trouble and inevitable loss involved in weighing out the sugar into paper bags. They make handsome displays in windows and on counters, and look fresh and up-to-date on your shelves.

Besides the Cartons, REDPATH Extra Granulated Sugar is still sold in the usual 20-lb. and 100-lb. bags and in barrels. And don't forget the 5-lb. Cartons of Paris Lumps.

An Ontario Association to be Formed

Meeting Called for Good Friday Afternoon in Hamilton for This Purpose—Decision Arrived at Meeting Held at Conclusion of Brantford Grocers' Banquet —The Circular Sent Out to the Trade.

A meeting of the grocery trade throughout Ontario for the purpose of officially organizing a Provincial Retail Grocers' Association is to be held in the Board of Trade Building, corner of Hughson and Main streets, Hamilton, Ont, on Good Friday, April 5th, at 2.30 p.m.

For some time now the idea of organizing a provincial association has gradually been advancing towards a reality. The Retail Grocers' Associations in London, Toronto, Hamilton and Brantford, and members of the Guelph retail trade have been lending their aid to the cause for some time.

Post-Banquet Meeting Held.

Following the banquet at Brantford on Wednesday evening last, which was attended by retailers from Toronto, Hamilton, London and Woodstock, an after meeting was held re the provincial association question. Those present were W. J. Mellen, Ed. Church, Jas. Burns and Fred Harp, of Brantford; Jno. Deprose, E. J. Ryan and Thos. Shaw, of London; R. Davies, Wm. Miller, D. W. Clark, D. McLean, D. Bell and F. C. Thorne, of Toronto and J. A. McIntosh, of Hamilton.

Wm. C. Miller, of 632 Yonge Street, Toronto, was appointed acting secretary, pro tem. It was decided that a meeting to officially organize the proposed association be held at Hamilton on Good Friday. A circular which has been sent out to a number of the trade throughout the province pointing out the need of a provincial association and announcing the date of the meeting was adopted. Those of course who have not received this circular will be made welcome.

The following is the circular sent out:

RE PROVINCIAL RETAIL GROCERS' ASSOCIATION.

"Dear Sir,—At a meeting held in Toronto, on February 29th ult., at which representatives from the following Retail Grocers' Associations were present: Toronto, London, Hamilton, Brantford and Guelph, a hearty discussion took place with reference to the formation of a Provincial Retail Grocers' Association, and it was unanimously resolved that such an organization was in the highest interests of the retail trade, and that immediate steps be taken towards the organization of same.

More Unity Desired.

"With that end in view, we now take the liberty of writing to you and asking your co-operation with us in the above movement. The committee feel that when thoroughly organized, we will be in a position to procure many legislative powers which at the present time and under present conditions we are deprived of. It has been a regrettable feature that hitherto our Associations have not worked together in more unity than they have, and as the wholesale houses are now well organized from coast to coast, through the Wholesalers' Guild, it is most important that we arise to the situation and have an organization to protect any intrusions or unfair measures being forced on us through lack of organization.

The Meeting in Hamilton.

"The committee, which consisted of equal representation from each Association, voiced many benefits which would be derived through this proposed measure. And as we are anxious to go ahead, we would request that your Association take this matter up immediately and if favorable towards it, would appoint a committee of three who would be present at a meeting to be held in the Board of Trade Building, corner of Hughson and Main streets, Hamilton, on Good Friday next, at 2.30 p.m., for the purpose of officially organizing same. If you have no Association in your city or town, might we suggest that you call together as many grocers as possible to discuss the situation.

Some Legislation Desired.

"You will readily realize the great benefits to trade of Association work, and if you think there is any probability of an Association being formed you can be assured we will render you every possible assistance towards its formation. Some of the questions which shall come before the proposed Association will be, the fighting of the Co-operative Bill, application for an amendment to the Garnishee Act, the pedlar nuisance, inspection of scales, the selling of wholesalers direct to the consumer, and many other greivous questions known to the trade throughout the province.

"With regard to the financing of the Association, an assessment system was suggested, but this with other important matters, will be discussed at the meeting now called, and at which we want your Association or town to be represented. Thanking you in anticipation for an early reply and feeling confident of your co-operation with us in this movement, which will most certainly be of undoubted benefit to the retail grocers throughout this great province.

And again reminding you of the next meeting—Board of Trade Building, Hamilton, Ont., Good Friday, April 5th, 1912, 2.30 p.m.

Yours very sincerely,

D. W. Clark, Acting chairman. W. C. Miller, Secretary pro tem.

The Canadian Grocer will be present at the above meeting and report fully the proceedings in our next week's issue. This matter has been followed by this paper since the movement began and our readers may expect to see from time to time the reports of the deliberations, whether in committee or general meeting.

Outside Grocers at Brantford Banquet

London, Woodstock, Hamilton and Toronto Represented — Provincial Association Strongly Endorsed—Question of Wholesalers' Selling Direct—Price-Cutting, Loss of Discounts and Other Trade Questions Discussed.

Staff Correspondence.

Brantford, April 4.—Excelling both in attendance and successfulness any that has ever gone before, was the record made at the ninth annual banquet of the Brantford Retail Grocers' and Butchers' Association held in the Masonic Banquet Hall on Wednesday evening, March 27.

Not only was the gathering marked by a record attendance of members of the trade in Brantford, but Hamilton, London, Woodstock and Toronto were also represented around the banquet board, while representatives of the wholesale trade from Brantford and Hamilton were in evidence as well.

There was a wealth of interesting addresses delivered during the evening on various trade questions. The retail trade's reasons for further organization and union and more especially the formation of a provincial association was one of the important questions dealt with by many speakers. The vim put into the addresses and the earnestness which backed them up, makes it apparent that an Ontario Retail Grocers' Association is soon to be a reality.

Canada Needs Good Grocers.

When the inner man had been satisfied, Chairman W. J. Mellen announced that the most important part of the evening's programme was about to commence. Having extended a welcome to the visiting grocers, and expressed his pleasure at the record attendance, he called for allegiance to be paid to King and country.

In responding to the latter toast, Thos. McPhail, of Brantford, delivered a statesman's address. He pointed out that Canada was a great country and needed big men to carry it to greater prosperity, "and we need competent and good grocers," he said. "The present movement to form a provincial organization is a praiseworthy endeavor. One of the things that the trade will be able to do will be to watch the measures which are being passed by legislative bodies and to see that the grocer's rights are protected. We must give the grocer credit from the fact that he gives others credit. This is often to his sorrow. I think that the law allows too great a limit to the would-be dead-beat. The grocer does not receive the protection he should. The amount of the limit in garnishment is too large. Some measure reducing this should be put through."

Merchants' Success Means City's Success.

The toast to "Our City" was coupled with the name of Mayor Hartman, who is an old grocer and who assisted in the organization of the first Brantford association. "I am glad to see the grocers united together to protect their interests; it shows they have their business at heart," he said. "Banded together is the only way in which you can make yourself successful, and your success means success for the city in which you reside."

W. J. MELLEN,
President of the Brantford R. G. A., who presided over the Annual Banquet.

Consumer Buying From Wholesalers.

J. A. McIntosh, of Hamilton, a past-president of the Hamilton R.G.A., lead off the replies to the toast to "Our Guests." He was followed by ex-Ald. John Forth, also of the Ambitious City, who alluded to the grocery trade as the greatest charitable institution in the country. "We do not need to combine to set prices but we do need to unite to protect our interests. We have just cause for getting together, for other trades have found it greatly to their benefit. We are not getting our just dues. I was in a wholesale house the other day and found a druggist there buying a dozen tins of salmon and lobsters although that house say they only sell to grocers. This is one of the things that we should not stand for.

"These social gatherings are a good thing to promote union, but should not alone be followed. We want to do what will mean dollars and cents to the grocer."

Visit Each Other's Stores.

D. W. Clark, of Toronto, advocated the intermingling of the members of the trade together not only for social purposes but also to visit one another's stores. "You can get assistance from visiting the either good or bad. In bad stores you see where others fail; then you should avoid those bad points. In good stores you get direct pointers. This all tends to elevate the grocery trade. The grocery business has been too cheap a business. In many cases farmers and those of other trades have been induced by wholesalers to go into business; when they know nothing about it. This is surely poor judgment on the part of the wholesaler. There are too many in the business who do not understand it and result is that they are demoralizing it."

Advocates Provincial Organization.

Jno. Diprose, president of the London Grocers' Association, also believed it a good thing to exchange ideas by visiting one another. "It is all for the good of trade. The grocery business has gained the name of being a cheap business because the men in it have not recognized what an important factor they are. I advocate a provincial association because it will do for the province, what the local asociation does for the city—which is a great deal."

"Cutting His Brother's Throat."

"The work of the association," said H. A. Foulds, responding to 'Our Association,' "is something that we cannot see the benefits of every day, but eventually results will come. We must try to get away from the petty enmity which prevails in the trade. If one man puts a card on some goods in the window showing that they sell at a certain price, his neighbor will not rest until he has a card out offering a ½ cent lower. The grocer can't live without a legitimate profit and he can't get it by cutting his brother's throat."

The toast to "The Trade," brought forth some interesting speeches on trade problems. R. Davies, president of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association, pointed out that anything that furthers interests of grocers at large should be pushed by each association as well as each individual.

Ontario Body to be Reality.

"Talk of a provincial association has been going on for many years," said Wm. C. Miller, also of Toronto, "but only recently has real activity developed. Grocers from different cities got together and felt itwas in their inerests to have one. I assure you that it will soon be a reality. Hamilton, London, Brantford, Guelph and Toronto have already signified thier approval of such an organization. They have felt that unfair measures were being forced on retail grocers. The benefits of such an organization will be great. For instance one grievance we have is wholesalers sellling consumers. This must be stopped. Some of us have no idea of the enormous business done by mail order and departmental stores. If they can send their managers to foreign countries to secure the best and latest and at low cost, surely a provincial association can do this as well."

Mr. Miller also said that grocers were foolish to give up thier windows to manufacturers for advertising purposes without remuneration. They have to pay heavily for street car and other advertising and should therefore pay for the grocer's show window.

Actual Accomplishments Necessary.

"Associations that pass resolutions and stop at that are useless," said J. A. McIntosh of Hamilton. "Our provincial association is going to be one to DO things. United together we can make our demands felt. You will find for instance, that in those towns where there are associations, price cutting is not so prevalent."

"The grocers are gradually being squeezed. You know by reading the Canadian Grocer that our discounts have recently been cut off. And I want to say a word about our trade newspaper, The Canadian Grocer, to which we owe a debt of gratitude for its work. I have been benefited a great deal by it. With it the busy man can keep well posted on all the trade problems affecting his business, as well as receive valuable pointers on conducting his store that could scarcely be secured in any other manner. I hope you all take The Grocer. Every grocer should take it because it is a splendid journal."

Wholesalers Selling Direct.

"While other branches of the trade have gradually been getting stronger, the retail trade has not," spoke E. J. Ryan, of London. "I think I am safe in saying that the retail trade is 50 to 1 in numbers compared with wholesalers. If we were organized properly we could make our just demands with a reasonable assurance of getting them. The wholesalers say they don't sell to consumers but we have scores of instances of it. In other lines of trade, for instance, hardware, you cannot get anything unles you are really SELLING hardware. It should be the same in groceries.

Customers Depend on the Grocer.

"It is the retail man that sells the goods. Unless they get them on our shelves, they don't sell. We must sell the lines that pay the best profit, considering quality is just as good. We can do this too. Customers place dependance in their grocer. I often have customers come in and ask what brand I would recommend. I sell the one that pays best profit, quality considered."

"The Drummer," the jolly good fellow who forms the connecting link between the wholesale and retail branches of the trade was next toasted.

Geo. Smye and Lloyd Warner, of Hamilton, and Ed. Cutmore, of Brantford, in characteristic style of the "Knights of the Grip," responded to this toast.

The toast to "Our Trade Journal," was responded to by W. J. Bryans, associate editor of The Canadian Grocer.

The health of the ladies was last but by no means least toast. Tribute was paid to the fair sex in worthy manner. S. Pellings, of Brantford, and D. Bell, of Toronto, made many complimentary remarks about them that were announced "not for publication."

The singing of Auld Lang Syne brought to a close a banquet that will go down in Brantford association history as a record one.

Visiting Retailers Present.

Those in attendance from outside points were the following:—

TORONTO.—R. Davies, Wm. Miller, D. W. Clark, D. Bell, F. C. Thorne, D. McLean.

HAMILTON. — Ed. Hazel, John Forth, Wm. Smye, J. Knox, M. Semmens, J. A. McIntosh.

LONDON.—Jno. Diprose, E. J. Ryan, Thos. Shaw.

WOODSTOCK. — P. A. Poole, J. R. McAllan.

Notes and Comments.

J. Whittaker, W. Dore, C. Todd and Lloyd Warner, assisted materially in the evening's entertainment by their excellent musical selections.

The location of Hamilton seems a much disputed question. Whether Hamilton is to annex Brantford or Brantford annex Hamilton is also considered another poser.

The rafters rattled when Dave Bell, of Toronto, again told his political story. He is going to patent it.

Who was the sick man that Thos. McPhail refered to?

F. C. Thorne, of Toronto, nearly got a new overcoat in the excitement.

C. Todd's song, "Come all the way up," gave many of the characteristics of Brantford retailers. It was composed by Jas. Smith, and set to music by Jas. Burns.

They say Donald McLean, of Toronto, caried home more luggage than he brought.

HE DIDN'T ADVERTISE.

A hardware merchant went home to supper one night and a new silver percolator was on the table. He asked his wife where she got it and she said: "Why, dear, I selected it out of Smith's catalogue and it only cost me $4.25 and the express." Of course the husband was mad in a moment and said, "Why in the deuce didn't you tell me you wanted the thing? I have lots of them in my store and they only cost me $3." Then his wife handed him one like this: "Well, John, if you would advertise once in a while so the people would know you were still in business, may be the people wouldn't send away for so much stuff."

If you hope to have a friend to whom you can go for help in an emergency, see that you be that friend to some others. You cannot reap what you have never sown.

VISIT OTHER GROCERY STORES.

At the banquet of the Brantford, Ont., Retail Grocers' and Butchers' Association last week, D. W. Clark, a Toronto grocer who was one of the speakers, advocated dealers getting out among other stores for ideas. He suggested that if this were made a part of the practice of every dealer, there would be much better grocers in the country.

Mr. Clark is perfectly correct. The man who gets out among his neighbors and confreres in other towns and cities is bound to obtain a broader view of his trade than he held before. This will serve him in good stead. He will see methods better than some of his own. He will observe mistakes which he must guard against in his business. In fact he will more readily take note of errors which are prevalent at home.

Any opportunity a merchant has to get out among his fellow members of the trade, whether he meets them in their own stores or in association work, should be be readily accepted. It is bound to result in better and broader conceptions which can be utilized at home to good advantage.

BANQUET OF BRANTFORD GROCERS.

On another page of this issue will be observed the report of the annual banquet of the Brantford Retail Grocers' and Butchers' Association. This is interesting trade news that should be read by every member of the trade. Men who have sacrificed time and money to bring together their associates in business and who have made a study of retail conditions gave addresses touching upon many questions of importance which no one can know too much about.

Men were present from London, Woodstock, Hamilton and Toronto to take part in the affair and it goes on record as the best banquet the Brantford grocers have ever held.

Among other things the proposal to form a provincial retail grocers association was freely discussed, and at an after meeting it was decided to hold a convention of retailers in Hamilton on Good Friday afternoon to complete arrangements. This means that an Ontario organization of retail grocers is to be a reality, and when it is formed, dealers should lend their support to its progress. The Grocer believes that much good comes from thorough unity and hopes that the new Ontario association will become a worthy organization whose works will justify its inception.

THE MUSICALLY INCLINED CLERK.

Our cartoon this week illustrates something that shouldn't be in the grocery or any other store. The clerk who whistles, hums, pounds the counter, shuffles his feet or displays his musical tendencies in any other fashion before a customer, is not appreciated.

No one objects to it on state occasions, such as Dominion Day or when Marks Bros. come to town, but when it is carried on in front of a particular customer at the counter, instead of being harmonious it is, on the other hand, repulsive.

Clerks should never forget their good manners when serving patrons. An otherwise good salesman is spoiled by overlooking the fact that he should endeavor to see himself as others see him, so far as his personal appearance and private actions are concerned. There is an overabundance of the type of clerk referred to in the cartoon and it will be not only to the interests of the store but to the clerk as well if such things are eliminated.

HAS BUSINESS OUTGROWN THE RAILWAYS?

Has business in Canada outgrown the railway facilities? This seems to be the reason for the serious situation which has developed during the past month.

The transportation problem in Canada is presenting many difficulties. The extraordinary development of the country in point of industry and commerce has been taxing the railroads for some years. The moving of the Western wheat has become such a gigantic task that each fall the danger of a freight blockade becomes more imminent.

At the present time the freight situation in some sections is causing much worry. Toronto shippers are being seriously hampered by the inability of the railroads to handle goods on time. Consignments of freight which should have been delivered early in the month, are in many cases still on the road or at the place of shipment. Had the weather been more propitious the freight blockade would have developed into a menace. As it is trade has not opened up rapidly and the delay in shipments has not hampered business as seriously as it might had weather conditions been favorable.

The only feasible explanation seems to be that the transportation facilities have not kept pace with the development of the country industrially. In view of the fact that everything points to the present year breaking all records, the necessity for an improvement in the freightage facilities becomes a matter of grave import.

NO PARCELS POST YET.

In our issue of December 8, 1911, an item from a Toronto paper appeared re Parcels Post as follows:—

> "That a Parcel Post system will be inaugurated within the next three or four weeks is the prediction The World ventures to make at this date."

The three or four weeks have passed long ago, and yet we haven't any Parcels Post, and therein The World has been in error. It reminds one of "the best laid schemes of mice and men gang aft aglee." The prediction was evidently unfounded—we are thankful to say—and The World's influence as an authoritative news medium has been lowered.

But why have we not yet the Parcels Post system in vogue? It is because some retailers have been busy counteracting the influences of those members of Parliament who are goading on the Postmaster General to gain the popular eye. The head of the post office knows of the opposition of the merchants, and he is in no hurry to attempt to put through the legislation.

Canadian merchants must keep up this opposition. Parliament was prorogued last Monday without going into the matter. Members will be home for the intermission, and they should be seen and convinced that such legislation would be contrary to the country's general interests. The influences in favor of Parcels Post are strong. Delay will be fatal.

THE GROCERY STORE OF OLD.

Shopkeepers in the seventeenth century, states the London Chronicle, were subject to other restrictions than those respecting prices. It was enacted that "Any person using the Trade or Mystery of the Grocer should not either by themselves or any third party, directly or indirectly keep more than one shop at the same time."

Grocers were also forbidden to sell any commodities, except "raysons, currants, sugar, spice, sope, candle, molasses, gunpowder, shot match, tar, pitch, rozen, tobacco and pipes, cotton wool, cotton yarn, starch, blueing, rise, linseed oil, white and red lead, olives, prunes, figs, Spanish white alabaster, alum, almonds, brimstone, lampblack and candle rushes."

It will be noted that brimstone, gunpowder and matches were among the chosen few. Wonder if they had any fire insurance in those days!

ATTENTION TO BUSINESS PROBLEMS.

From all appearances we will soon see an Ontario retail grocers' association. When this organization is formed, The Grocer would urge that it give a great deal of its attention to the discussion of business methods—successful methods that will help each member to become a better and more efficient merchant.

Some associations in existence to-day spend too much time on legislation. Legislation which will injure the merchant should, of course, be watched, opposed and prevented, but this phase of the work does not constitute the entire duties of a good association.

When conventions are held business questions should be given the preference. Many a grocer to-day does not understand how to figure margins of profit. Others need to be shown what to take into consideration as cost of doing business; still others are deficient in collecting accounts, and using discrimination in giving credit.

Then there are selling plans, buying, best methods of delivery, bookkeeping, etc., to be considered.

These are all problems in which every dealer is interested, and they should be given every prominence at annual conventions. Legislation, on the other hand, cannot be attended to on such occasions. This question springs up at intervening times, and it ought to be the duty of a special committee to watch it.

If considerable time is devoted to business questions that affect every man's business, associations will be more likely to grow rapidly than otherwise.

HANDING ON INFORMATION.

Something has been said in these pages on several occasions recently with reference to the relations between the retailer and the traveler. We have taken occasion to point out the duty of the retailer to the traveler Perhaps a word on the other side of the question will now be in order.

The traveler owes it to the retailer to keep him posted on matters of interest to the trade. He should also do his best to impress the practical and selling points of the goods he handles on the grocer and his clerks. He should endeavor to give them the benefit of the information which he himself possesses. It is not so much that he owes this to the dealer as that he owes to himself. The benefits of instilling practical knowledge into the men who sell the goods to the public manifest themselves first in the business of the retailer. The traveler enjoys the benefits immediately, however, for he sells more of that line of goods to the retailer. It is, therefore, in his (the traveler's) own interests that his customers should be sufficiently versed in the goods to sell them intelligently.

A reciprocal attitude is what is needed. The dealer should be anxious to secure all the information that he can; the traveler should be just as willing to give it. Too often, unfortunately, there is neither desire on the one side nor compliance on the other. And both interests suffer as the inevitable result.

Intelligent salesmanship is one of the great necessities in the commercial world to-day. Undoubtedly, the establishment of a closer bond between merchant and traveler in the respect pointed out, would assist in putting selling methods on a higher plane.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The establishment of local associations should help considerably in the elimination of a number of trade evils.

Potatoes from the Emerald Isle have certainly been appreciated by the Canadian people. The demand for them has been increasing ever since they made their debut on Canadian soil.

The United States market is after our turnips. St. John, N. B., dealers are getting 80 to 90 cents a barrel, and are advising New Brunswick farmers to plant larger acreages this year. They do not want to "turn down" any Yankee orders for the "turnup."

The dealer who does not put down a liberal salary for himself among store expenses must be a misguided philanthropist or he must have a very poor opinion of his own ability. He either wants to give money away or he doesn't believe he is worth anything.

It is estimated by a Lindsay, Ont., farmer, that a healthy maple tree 18 or 20 inches in diameter produces about 10 or 11 quarts of sap per day. This would mean a little less than half a pint of syrup. In say, 24 favorable days at that rate, each tree would produce about six quarts of syrup, or a gallon and a half. At $1.50 per gallon, a thousand trees would make a nice, big Easter nest-egg for any farmer.

Deals With the Popular Flowing Brush Script Lettering—Where to Use It and Where Not—Brushes Required and How to Use Them.

By J. C. Edwards, Copyright, Canada, 1911.

Few styles of lettering lend themselves more gracefully to show card writing than does the Brush Script. At the same time it is strong, legible and easily made, unlike its more delicate parent the Outline Script.

There are many styles of this letter taught and some quite as good, perhaps, yet everybody has an individuality, or should have, and this style brings out the author's.

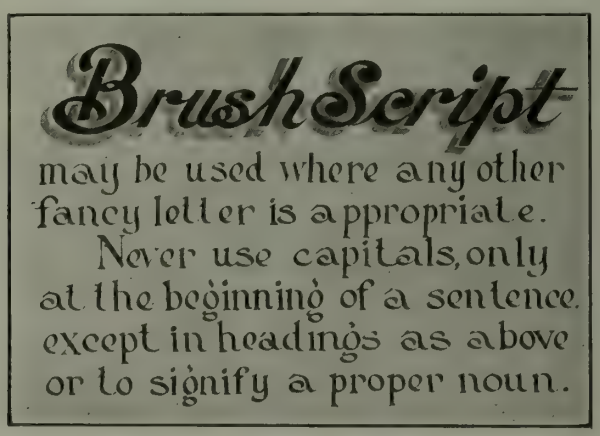
Where to Use it and Where Not.

Brush Script may be used where any other style of fancy letter could be employed, but never, or, rather seldom where the card proclaims a bargain. No fancy letter is in keeping with bargains. This mistake is too often made to the detriment of the sale and cheapening of card writing.

Capitals should be used only at the beginning of a sentence or as is shown in the card, capitals may be used on each word of a heading, providing, of course, there are no small words such as "and," "in," "it" and such like. The lower case is much more flowing and readable when alone, than if broken up by caps. Any proper noun should, as in ordinary writing, have a capital but in no case must a word be composed of all capitals.

Speed May be Acquired.

With diligent practice, considerable speed may be acquired in lettering with this style of letter. The whole aim is to get a neat flowing letter, all on the same slant. Few people nowadays do not know the proper slant of business-college-taught writing. This letter should be made the same with each letter joined as shown in the accompanying card.



Brush Script
may be used where any other fancy letter is appropriate.
Never use capitals, only at the beginning of a sentence. except in headings as above or to signify a proper noun.

Application of the Brush Stroke Script and harmonizing letter.

The Combination Card.

Only light face alphabets should be used in conjunction with the Brush Stroke Script, such as pin lettering, which will be taught in subsequent lessons. Suppose that you associated this letter with a heavy face letter such as Brush Block, the result would be disastrous—simply a black blotch without character, without style. To bring out the main words of a card, use the Brush Script. A fine line letter such as Small Brush Stroke Roman made with small brush or pen, may be used as a reader, giving a pleasing, strong effect.

The card here shown is a combination of these two letters and gives a fair idea of the style obtained by their combined use.

The Brush to Use.

In the execution of this letter, a brush should be used that will give the maximum width of stroke of the capital and which will also draw down to a smaller stroke for the lower case letter. The fine line, of ocurse, is merely an edgewise stroke of the brush. The brush should be held so as to give the correct angle to every line. Keep the card always squarely in front of you when writing. Don't fail in this or the proper angle will not be obtained.

Overloading the Brush.

Some pupils insist that it is difficult for them to get a clear-cut line or stroke. This is due, largely, to the student's carelessness in rubbing out the surplus ink and his fear of the card. Seems funny to say a living being is liable, very liable to be afraid of an inanimate object like a piece of plain white cardboard. Nevertheless, it is true. He is afraid to touch the brush to it, and the sooner a person gets over that fear the sooner a clear straight-edge stroke will be accomplished. Practice making quick sure-stroke lines. Do it quickly but with a dash that will at first seen reckless. Do it first on rough paper then on old cardboard, then on clean white board. Waste a few pieces, but practice. Don't be afraid to practice. Practice this alphabet well and put it into use when you have mastered the following plate No. 14, as the two are inseparable.

A GROCER'S PROFITS.

This table may be of use to some grocers:

50 per cent. profit is 100 per cent. above cost.

40 per cent. profit is 66 2-3 per cent. above cost.

30 per cent. profit is 42 6-7 per cent. above cost.

25 per cent. profit is 33 1-3 per cent. above cost.

20 per cent. profit is 25 per cent. above cost.

FARRINGTON PHILOSOPHY.

Don't air your troubles over the counter. I might add that it's poor business to air them anywhere. Your unwilling listeners have trials of their own.

Because it is necessary for you to spend a certain time in waiting for somebody or something, it does not follow that that time need be spent in idleness.

People do not associate loud voices or slangy talk with the high class store or with high class salespeople.

The man who reads his trade paper carefully from cover to cover will not be troubled with sluggish liver or a torpid business.

Canada imported 2,500,000 dozen eggs from the United States during the fiscal year 1911, when the exportation of eggs from the Republic was the largest ever recorded.

A Japanese confectioner in Tainan, South Formosa, claims to have discovered a process by which the banana may be canned. He has interested several wealthy Japanese, and a $100,000 company has been organized to build two factories, in Taihokhu and in Tainan. As canned or conserved bananas have been very unstisfactory, the new process in Formosa will be watched with much interest.

Correct Computation of Profit Margin

An Interesting Letter Stating That Profit Should be Figured on Cost—Profit and Margin Defined—Value of Conservatism — Computation on Selling Price is Safe, Sane, Sound and Sure.

By Henry Johnson, Jr.

It is upward of nine years since I wrote up the New Year precept: "Compute your Margins on Your Selling Price, not on your Cost."

I do not know just why I wrote that. I suspect it was because I found one man somewhere who did not seem to understand this method. Well, what happened was a revelation to me. Two solid years of unbroken correspondence on this one subject followed the publication of that little precept. Because it was familiar to me it looked innocent enough; but it soon took on new meaning. In fact, I had to study hard to keep up. I have been studying ever since. Looks like I should have to keep on. But nemmine. It all looks good to me. Also, I get more out of it than anybody else, since to teach is to learn. Hence, moreover and again, ergo, let 'er come!

Tapping a New Vein.

Now when one writes to me I feel that I have tapped a new vein. I have awakened yet another; and in telling him the what and why hereof, I shall be enlightening others who are wondering, yet have not written. So let us see this letter:—

Vancouver, B.C., Feb. 19, 1912.
The Canadian Grocer,

Gentlemen,—Why is it that Henry Johnson, Jr., periodically fills his page with examples of percentages on gross profits? No one has contradicted him, or at least no contradiction has been published; and yet, it seems some one ought to, for surely not all of us have forgotten our knowledge of mathematics and especially percentage.

We were taught that the cost of any article is the base upon which loss or gain is figured and that the base is the unit, or 1. These values may change in the course of business, where an article is passed from one to another; but the unit is the same. In explanation, the manufacturer assembles certain amounts of labor and cost of finishing ready for sale, and so finds the cost of the finished product. To arrive at a fair selling price, he adds an amount which is a certain per cent. of the cost. Now the margin of profit is the difference between cost and selling price. The expense of selling this article is of course taken into consideration and the margin less the selling expense should represent the net profit.

For example, we might say that the cost of the article is $1.00 and that 20 per cent. is a fair profit. He, therefore, sells to the jobber for $1.20 the article which cost him $1.00. When the jobber names his selling price he takes $1.20 as a unit and to this adds his percentage of profit, say 10 per cent., and the article comes to the retailer for $1.32. The retailer desires a profit of 25 per cent. and so he asks for this article $1.65. Now this is simple arithmetic exactly as you found it when you went to school and as your boy finds it to-day; and I was going to say as our grandson will find it when he learns percentage; because loss and gain for which margin is only another term, is figured on the base of cost.

Now let us figure on some other investment in the business besides merchandise. Out of the profits, let us say we bought ten shares of bank stock for which we paid par, $1,000. Last year it paid a semi-annual dividend, $50 each time. Now shall we say the profit, or the margin, or the gain, or whatever you wish to call it was, 9 per cent. or 10 per cent? We are sure the bank declared 10 per cent. profit, but Henry Johnson, Jr., would no doubt argue 9 per cent.

Again we loaned out a little surplus as 8 per cent. interest. When the business was figured at the end of the year, did we say this money made a profit of 7.4 per cent? No, we didn't; because it had made 8 per cent. and 8 per cent. went into Loss and Gain Account.

Personally, I cannot see that it makes much difference whether you figure from one end or the other except that when an article comes into your store and you figure a price on it, you add a per cent. to the cost and this gives you the selling price. On the other hand, I find that many merchants figure the percentage of profit on the amount of goods sold, for the reason that not many concerns keep a separate account of merchandise purchased while they do keep a record of sales.

In reply to W. A. E. I think he missed what was in the question but what was evidently intended in the letter writer's mind. When he speaks of the per cent. of profit in these canned tomatoes, he has in his mind the paper profit which has accrued by reason of the advance in cost since he bought, and if I understand him, he intends to ask if it is proper in taking his inventory to figure them at the advanced price, thereby showing in his final figures an added profit on the goods which, though accrued, is not actually earned because not sold.

Yours truly,
W. F. R.

A Man Who Thinks.

The most important thing in all education, whether arithmetical, editorial or such as is gained in our daily business, in that we shall be aroused and think. This man has been aroused. He thinks. Therefore, he will become educated on this subject of correct margin-computation before he quits. And again, he can't quit. He has started on that line of philosophical thought which will last him so long as he shall live. From now onward he will unconsciously, or purposely, analize every problem down to its final factors; and in the end such a man cannot be beaten.

And then what? Simply this: That it is no slight thing, but something well worth all the years of work, to know that I am making men think. What they think is of secondary importance; how they think is trifling in comparison; that they should agree with me is nothing whatever. So long as they think, they will grow. If I can continue to do this I shall be well content. What?

A Problem To Be Worked.

I shall not have space to fully cover this interesting letter this week, so I shall mostly prepare the way for its handling next week. Meantime, I shall ask Mr. R. to work out and send me the solution of this little problem—alone, without aid, by his own methods. I am inclined to think he will get it right. If he does, I shall conclude that he can take care of himself. Then I shall show why, and incidentally try to show him a yet better way. So now I am trusting you to play fair—no looking in the back of the book for your answer—work it all out and send me the process and solution. Here it is.

> I sold two pieces of property for $2,500 each. I made 25 per cent. on one and lost 25 per cent. on the other. Did I gain or lose as a result of the two trasactions: if so, how much did I gain or lose—or did I "play even?"

* * *

Dictionaries, arithmetics, etc., are not infallible—no, by no means. I shall have something further to say on this next week. But Old Noah Webster has just agreed with me, so him I endorse!

What Cost and Profit Are.

For about eight months now I have consistently used the term, Margin, to denote the entire difference, or "spread" between cost, as I define cost, and selling price. I may say I hold cost to be the price paid for any article plus the cost of getting it into my store, ready to sell and in shape for selling, all incidentals to delivery, such as probable shrinkage in transit, being included in the cost. The term, Profit, has been held to mean the net return, the "velvet," on articles sold. It is also used to designate that boiled-down, double-distilled gain which is carried over to Surplus Account. Webster, as I say, agrees with me, for he says:

> Margin—The difference between the price of purchase and sale of an article, which leaves room for profit.

See? "Which leaves room for Profit." That is it. Then further:

> Profit—Acquisition beyond expenditure. . . . . .

That is it. What is left of gross gain after all expenditure; which will include interest and all other charges. Think a moment and you will see that Profit is not a word to be used loosely or carelessly.

Note further, that you may have a margin which is not a profit.

Works Conservatively.

As to W. A. E.—whose letter I dealt with some time ago—I thought I had got his meaning O.K., but he certainly did fall down either in expressing himself or in his figures. He stated that his margins were computed on selling price, but did not figure them that way. I thought I also told him clearly how to conservatively take those tomatoes into inventory. Come to think of it, all inventories must be based on estimated values. Losses must be computed on a hypothetical basis and advances must be taken the same way. One may not be so bad as we carefully and conservatively estimate and the other may not pan out to fully the estimated accrued margin or advance. Same with book accounts. Frequently I get more than I expect on these for see how I handle them. First, I go over them individually, knifing them mercilessly where I have any cause for doubt—where, in fact, I would not buy them at par for cash. Then I take off a clean 10 per cent. additional for good measure. That, I take it, is the only safe way to work that end of the business. In that way only can a merchant avoid fooling himself on book accounts.

The object in computing margins on the selling end is to likewise avoid fooling ourselves in this matter of margin-computaton.

Winnipeg Grocers Banquet Travelers

Rink of Latter Victorious in Curling—Addresses by Retailers, Travelers and Wholesalers as Well as Musical Entertainment Constitutes a Profitable Evening—Three Hundred and Ten Present.

Winnipeg, April 4.—(Special)—As a fitting close to a successful season of curling between the retail grocers and grocery travelers of Winnipeg, the vanquished banqueted the victors at the Empire Hotel, Winnipeg, on the evening of March 28. There was scarcely any evidence at the banquet as to who were the vanquished and who were the victors as they seemed to be all in one accord with all competitive feelings put away for the occasion. The vanquished, however, were the grocers and they spared neither time, money or energy in preparing an elaborate feast for the travelers.

The occasion was a remarkable one taking into consideration the number present and the extreme felicity which was demonstrated. Three hundred and ten sat down at the banquet tables and from the moment they began to gather, until the hour of 1.30 p.m., every one's face bore a pleasant smile and everywhere was demonstrated the goodwill of the occasion.

Aided Business Conditions.

It was remarked often in the numerous toasts that such a gathering meant a great deal for the betterment of trade conditions, as notwithstanding whatever competition in trade might do to divorce from the social side of life, such occasions must surely have the effect of uniting men in a desirable bond of felicity.

The banquet committee consisted of Geo. D. Sinclair, chairman; M. M. Kellough, secretary; and S. Penwarden; J. Congalton, J. O'Hare, J. A. Campbell and R. L. Waugh. The Grocers' chose as their chairman for the evening, J. A. McKercher, one of the senior and most popular retail grocers of the city. Mr. McKercher made an admirable chairman and although his voice grew husky owing to the density of the smoke, he made a very appropriate address and created some amusement by stating that he was glad to recognize that travelers of the present day were men of splendid type and he believed superior to travelers of the olden days whom he characterized jokingly as "booze artists," but nothing worse could be said of the travelers of to-day than that they were "hot air artists." He believed that after the evolution continued the traveler could conquer not only the grocers, but "the world, the flesh and the devil."

Stage Artists in Abundance.

A feature of the programme was the comic songs and recitations rendered by men in the trade. It was not revealed until this occasion that there were so many capable stage artists connected with the trade and it looked as if T. E. Kent; Geo. Brown and F. Wray had missed their calling, as their selections were very much enjoyed.

The presence of the Mayor and three representatives from local wholesale houses added to the attractiveness of the programme and although the Mayor's stay was brief, he took advantage of the opportunity to give those present a splendid oration on the high qualities of citizenship enlarging on the fact that every citizen irrespective of his business or his association had responsibility as a citizen and was not just to himself or to his city when he did not exercise that responsibility.

The presentation of the cup donated by Dingle & Stewart, Winnipeg, to the Grocers and Travelers' Curling Association, was presented by D. Dingle to the Travelers' winning rink, namely, Messrs. Congalton, Ryley, Weidman and Boxer. At the same time the lockets presented to the Association by Richards & Brown, were formally presented to the winning rink by S. C. Richards. Later in the programme souvenirs were presented to prominent grocer curlers by the Comfort Soap Co.

Forty-One Years in Winnpeg.

On behalf of the wholesale trade, Alexander MacDonald, Winnipeg's veteran wholesaler, was called upon and he gave a brief reminiscence of his life in Winnipeg, covering a period of forty-one years. He was a pioneer of the grocery trade in Western Canada and stated it required a great deal of sacrifice and faith in the future of the country to patiently wait through the olden days until business became brighter. Mr. MacDonald was present in Winnipeg when the first steam engine entered the city from the East and took part in the demonstration on that occasion.

Coupled also with the toast to the wholesale trade was the name of R. R. Wilson, of Campbell Bros. & Wilson. Mr. Wilson referred briefly to the difficulty of co-operation between grocers and wholesalers throughout the city and the West, on account of the rapidly growing population and on account of the many changes which were continually going on. Not long ago he knew almost every retailer and clerk in Winnipeg, but now he knew few and for that reason he was glad of such an occasion as this.

Watering Places Widely Separated.

Mr. Bonny, of the Codville Co., was an additional speaker to this toast and told those present something about the hardships of the travelers in the olden days and contrasted it with the condition of affairs to-day. The travelers of the olden days could be excused if they did have a failing for strong drink as very often they were forced to go a long way between watering places.

The last half of the programme was in the hands of the vice-chairman, S. M. Screaton, traveler for Mason & Hickey. Mr. Screaton referred in a touching manner to the loss of one of their comrades in the trade in the person of Earnie Clarke and it was impressive indeed to see three hundred men rise in deadly silence and drink a toast to their departed friend.

Among other toasts were those to the victors, responded to by three representatives of the travelers; followed by a toast to the vanquished, responded to by three grocers, and also a toast to the retailers, responded to by Archy White, manager of W. H. Stone Co., and P. H. Penlove.

After a humorous toast to the ladies by Michael O'Connor, a traveler well-known among the fair sex, the toast to the press was called and responded to by the representative of The Canadian Grocer.

ANOTHER LETTER FROM M. MOYER.

Reply to Communication in Last Week's Grocer From E. J. Ryan.

Editor Canadian Grocer:—I am glad that Mr. E. J. Ryan has replied to my recent letter, for it gives me an opportunity to state a few more facts. When when he conveys the idea that because I am at present not in the grocery business, I cannot know anything about it, he is mistaken. When a man has spent 18 years as a successful grocer in the city of Toronto, and then travelled several years among grocers, discussing grocery conditions with thousands of grocers all over the Dominion as I have done, then his knowledge should compare favorably with a man who is tied up in his own business; and if Mr. Ryan or any other grocer, understood trade conditions as I have found them by experience, he would see the uselessness of a single line association and would never again say a word in its favor.

Mr. Ryan does not produce a single argument to support their cause for the simple reason that one cannot be found when the whole question is considered. Mr. Ryan cannot see anything in common with tailors or milk men and yet all are retailers, and it is the retail interests that should concern them all.

The Manufacturers' Association.

He might say what has a manufacturer of biscuits in common with a manufacturer of furniture and yet all belong to the Manufacturers' Association. Have we not examples all over the United States of failures of single line associations, and who are now copying our plan and all uniting as retailers in defence of their much neglected cause?

I am quite aware of the high cost of doing business, smaller profits, and the many difficulties the grocer has to face, but one must not forget that retailers in other lines have the same troubles and for that reason they need the assistance of each other, and should not stand alone powerless in defending their own right.

Mr. Ryan asks: "Who gave any one connected with the R. M. A. authority to appear before the 'Guild' and speak for the retail grocers?" and he says "surely not the grocers." The authority came from up-to-date grocers who are members of the Grocers' Section of the R. M. A., and who elected a committee at their properly called convention. This committee is authorized to look after the interests of all retail grocers, which includes even those who are not giving us any support, but are smiting the hand that has been kind to them.

Wholesalers Selling Direct.

Mr. Ryan asks another question: 'Did you ever hear of one of their officers asking the 'Guild'' to discontinue selling to consumers?'' To satisfy him on this point I would ask him to read my letter on page 48 of The Canadian Grocer, March 29. I am not surprised when he and his single line friends do not know what is going on because the time of a grocer is so fully taken up in his store that he cannot spend any time in looking after matters that pertain to the general trade, and, therefore, should realize the need of watchful officers who should be supported and not hindered.

A grocer is not wasting his time when he meets to discuss his own trade conditions, but why not meet as a section of the R. M. A.; and in that way have the good will and assistance of other retailers? If the grocers need organization, then other lines do also, and as it is impossible for them all to keep up the expense, they have a right to expect the help of the grocers, and the grocers are unfair if they do not unite with them.

What does Mr. Ryan mean when he says that they will look after their own side of the case, and "not leave it to any one to work into the hands of the enemy?" Does he regard the men he does business with as his enemies? This is an age of coming together and any one who regards the men with whom he does business as enemies is still under the old-time delusion which has altogether too long been the greatest hindrance in trade, and which is to-day despised by all up-to-date business men. Social unity and modern ideals are shaping and moulding trade methods for a higher standard of buying and selling. A single line association can offer no advantages, is unfair to other retailers, and is injuring the one which has all the equipments and which deserves the hearty support of every retailer in Canada.

Co-operative Bill Defeated.

To say nothing of the many other things which had been achieved, I consider the defeat of the co-operative bill alone is worth millions to the retail trade of the country, and I say it without fear of contradicition, that had it not been for the increasing work of the Secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada and his associates that bill would be law to-day.

Should men, therefore, who have grievances not drop them, and like business men support the work which has given them such splendid results? Can any merchant in the whole country be found who understands the value, and who does not feel he owes the R. M. A. a debt of gratitude for what has been accomplished.

The association is entirely in the hands of the retail merchants and if the officers are not doing their duties, it is the privilege of the members to elect others. What more do they want?

ONTARIO MARKETS.

POINTERS.—

Prunes.—Easier and lower.

Beans.—Stronger.

Sugar.—Down 10 cents.

Peels.—To be higher this year.

Toronto, April 4.—The strike of the Railway Teamsters for better wages and consequent tying up of shipments and deliveries was one of the features of interest with Toronto wholesalers this week. Without a word of warning, the teamsters discontinued work on Tuesday morning and if the strike continues for any length of time, it is feared that business will be hampered considerably. Three cartage companies handling the railway goods are affected. While several houses have cartage facilities of their own, they are far from adequate to handle all their business.

Trade continues a little on quiet side. Bad roads have interfered with trade in country districts while retailers report that people have been curtailing purchases of groceries during past few weeks, Easter and spring clothes engaging their attention and taking their money. Passing of Lent has brought greater activity in certain lines.

Perishable goods such as catsup, pickles, sauces and vinegar are now being shipped out by freight by most jobbers except for long distances where it would be unsafe.

Some manufacturers have advanced prices slightly on some grades of bottled pickles.

SUGAR.—This market declined 10c per cwt. on Tuesday. Raws continue easy while New York was lower again at beginning of week. Canadian market in absence of buying has weaker tone at present also.

Cuba gives quite bright prospects of coming up to her promised 1,800,000 tons but there is always the possibility lurking in the background that unfavorable conditions may set in. English strike has caused the closing of refineries and a marked decrease in consumption of sugar in Great Britain, while unsettled business conditions there have also weakened market. There is rather a better outlook in this particular, however.

Refined in Toronto is quoted at $5.45 as against $4.60 one year ago. Demand is rather quiet.

SYRUP AND MOLASSES.—This is syrup time and there is a good demand. Supplies for new make of maple syrup have been increasing, considerable quantities being offered at country points while there have also been quite a quantity coming to the city markets. Where the new make is not obtainable or high in price, the old article has come in for a good demand, while compound maple syrup and corn syrups are also moving well.

Ideas of molasses shippers in Barbados are quite firm, especially for fancy. One report from Barbados says that three-quarters of this season's crop of fancy molasses has already been marketed.

DRIED FRUITS.—Trade in dried fruits still continues at low ebb, many firms reporting it decidedly quiet.

Prunes are easier and lower this week. It will be remembered it was pointed out that jobbers in general were carrying good sized stocks of prunes and in absence of any brisk demand break in prices was not an unlikely thing. Following lower prices in New York and in face of conditions here, market is easier and lower prices are quoted by many houses. It is somewhat difficult to get an exact line on prune values as different firms find themselves differently situated on certain sizes. There is an easier feeling, however.

Other lines hold a fairly steady position. Eleme figs are quite scarce and tapnets are also cleaning up well.

Candied peels this year will be considerably higher than last year as reflected in opening prices on this year compared with last. Higher price for sugar has much to do with the advanced figures on this line. While all lines will be higher, citron will show the greater advance. One jobber said latter would probably sell around 18 cents. Jobbers are ordering now although goods do not come along until September or October.

Better prices on evaps has brought out more offerings, causing slightly easier turn to market.

TEA.—No particular change can be said to have taken place in tea situation. Markets both here and abroad continue steady with trade mostly of a routine character.

COFFEE.—Stronger tone noted in coffee still prevails. New York prices have continued to gradually increase, reflecting firmness in local situation, making dealers here hold slightly firmer ideas. Trade continues routine in character but fair for season and considering high prices.

RICE AND TAPIOCA.—No prominent features in either rice or tapioca. Demand is normal and with warmer weather consumption of these lines should be larger.

CANNED GOODS.

TORONTO.—Trade in canned goods may be described as fair but is by no means overly brisk. Retailers' stocks are apparently not reduced to small enough compass to induce any great volume of business.

Stocks of jobbers continue fairly complete for season with exception of strawberries, raspberries and blueberries which were in small supply to start with.

Jams are moving well at present time while with handling of fresh and frozen fish becoming more difficult on account of weather conditions, demand for canned fish should be greater.

Now is time of the year when retailers should bring canned goods of all descriptions to the fore. With homemade preserves in scant supply and dried vegetables scarce, the canned article should sell well.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, April 4. — There is little new to report on the trade situation here. Given an early and favorable spring, business will beat all records for the month of April.

Farmers and contractors are anxious to get to work and there is a pressing demand for labor already. This will be more in evidence before the end of the month. The large number of artisans that will be employed in the building trades in towns at good wages will give a decided boost to the retail trade.

Butter in the West is scarce and dear and will not be otherwise until growth of grass increases the milk supplies. Eggs are now becoming fairly plentiful and a rapid fall in price may be expected.

Wholesalers report many new concerns starting up in the new western towns. Stock taking is also general at this time of the year, followed by a general restocking in all lines.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

St. John, April 3.—With local grocers, past week has seen fair business transacted both wholesale and retail, and they are looking for finer weather before any great increase in the amount of trade put through, takes place. It is expected that it will be a few weeks yet before the opening of the river, but when this occurs there should be a livelier tone to business in general.

Markets have been steady, but quiet and few changes of interest are noted. Sugar still occupies a prominent position with the local wholesaler, and despite the drop of ten cents which occurred in all grades last week, there is a feeling with local dealers, that this commodity may show a firmer tone before long. The fact that Cuban market is uncertain and that estimates cannot be relied upon to any great extent is given as one reason why little trust can be placed in sugar market.

With molasses, reports from Barbadoes received, show a marked firmness and that at least 70 per cent. of the fancy stock has been placed on market with demand brisk for remainder. Although high prices are prevailing, there is no tendency towards a decline, but Southern dealers and brokers on the contrary are advising that those having Fancy Barbadoes will hold rather than sell at lower prices than are now asked.

Beans are still firm; in lard there has been an advance during the past week. American clear pork has been increased and beef is also higher. Starches are on the rise, both Canadian corn and culinary and boiling starch an increase of ¼ and ½ cent being marked.

Butter remains steady with no drop in price since New Year, and practically same may be said of cheese. Eggs have been decidedly plentiful during the past fortnight, but last few days of last week saw marked scarcity so that there is possibility of higher prices. It was said that many farmers would hold off until this week to cause an advance on first of Easter market.

NOVA SCOTIA.

Halifax.—There was a marked falling off in receipts of fresh fish on the local market last week. The weather has been fairly favorable for fishing, but few vessels reached port with fares. Good haddock are scarce. No large fish are offering. The supply of halibut is equal to the demand. Fresh smoked haddies are scarce. To supply the demand, dealers had to use stock that had been in cold storage for several weeks. Smelts are off the market.

For first time in nearly two months, lobsters were offered for sale on local market. They were of the smallest kind and sold at $1.20 per dozen. Demand was light. Reports received here from shorepoints state that lobster fishermen are preparing to vigorously prosecute spring lobster fishery. Hundreds of traps are being prepared to replace those destroyed by storms, and canneries expect busy season.

There has been a decided falling off in demand for salt fish, and prices are unchanged. Consumption of dry fish this season has been heavy, and some dealers attribute this to high price of beef. Shipments of fish to foreign markets are light at present. Some small lots have been sent to the West Indies and Cuba.

Oysters now offering are below average—that is, the stock in barrels. They are of a smaller run and not fat.

Shape the Same.

Customer: "What have you in the shape of oranges?"

General Storekeeper: "Well we have baseballs."

Cornmeal Higher—Rolled Oats Firmer

Cornmeal Firmer and Higher This Week — Rolled Oats Quite Firm Under Higher Raw Material — Cereals Moving Fairly Well For Season—Firmer Ideas On Manitoba Flour For Export — Freight Situation Somewhat Improved.

Firmer and higher prices for cornmeal and firmness noted in rolled oats are the chief features of the week.

Corn has for some time been gradually crawling up to a higher level following the trend of values across the line. Under the quite substantial gains made by raw material, cornmeal has taken on a firmer feeling and is quoted higher this week.

Rolled oats are also firm although no change in price has been announced. Here again the raw material has been moving upward under a good demand for both domestic and export account. Firmness in the finished product, therefore follows. Mills seem to be in a better position regarding supplies of raw material of late although conditions are by no means all to be desired yet. Demand for cereals in general is fair for the season, spring lull apparently having had little effect as yet on consumptive demand.

Seasonable trade is also being transacted in flour with prices holding steady. There has been a good export demand and some millers are asking 5 to 10 cents per barrel more for Manitoba flour for export, although little or no business has been trasacted at the higher figure. Offerings of winter wheat flour continue on rather stinted scale with values steady.

Freight congestion does not appear to be quite so bad as has been the case for some time back, grain and flour moving somewhat more rapidly from Port Arthur and points west. Conditions are far from reaching the ideal as yet, however.

OVERDUE ACCOUNTS.

This is a time of year when the retail merchant may with profit attend to collecting overdue accounts. It will be good policy to get in touch with people whose accounts are of long standing and demand payment. It can be done without giving offence, if the retailer considers it desirable to avoid doing so. A little talk, face to face, will have effect; but if you can't get cash, at least demand a note, bearing interest.

HANDLING COMPLAINTS.

A time and place where good judgment and cheerfulness are necessary is in the handling or treatment of complaints. For the few customers who will bring complaints to headquarters, there are many who will say nothing, but will deal elsewhere and many more who will complain elsewhere. Some people are habitual complainers and should be treated as courteously and cheerfully as possible, yet, without waste of time. A complaint of reasonably minded people should always be carefully looked into. Mistakes will happen in any business and the quicker they are remedied, the less harm they will do.

Easter Demand Helps Fruit and Vegetables

But Weather Has Not Been Altogether Favorable — Florida Celery Much More Reasonable In Price—Will Mean Increased Consumption—Tomatoes Firmer At Primary Points — More Spanish Onions Arrive—Steadiness In Potatoes.

Demand in anticipation of Easter trade helped movement of fruits and vegetables somewhat this week. The touch of the festive season which surrounds this day naturally works for a better demand, especially for the fancy lines. Florida celery and tomatoes have been the favorites in the vegetable list this week, with other new green goods running as close seconds, while in fruits honors have been divided among oranges, strawberries and pineapples.

Warmer weather would be welcomed by fruit and vegetable men. It would no doubt instil greater activity into these lines. "Don't forget to bring warmer weather next time you come," was the final comment of one dealer. "We need it in our business."

Florida celery prices, as we pointed out last week could be expected, have experienced a sharp break this week and have come down to a quite reasonable level. Shipments have been on a much larger scale and thus the easier feeling. This will mean a much larger consumption of this line, for high prices that have prevailed for some time have prevented the public appetite for this line from being appeased. Florida tomatoes have, however, been moving in opposite direction on primary markets under smaller offerings. The stock that has been coming to Canadian markets has been of excellent quality and has consequently been well taken up.

Another shipment of Spanish onions arrived on Eastern Canadian markets this week. This will probably be the last shipment of season. Egyptian onions have not yet arrived but are expected to be fairly reasonable in price this year when they do come along.

Potato values were easier for a time under large arrivals of English and Irish stock but with a smaller quantity of these arriving steadiness has set in. Although a considerable quantity of potatoes have been imported this year, general supplies are on a small scale and some little time yet to run before new stock will become a factor in supply. Holders in New Brunswick are firm in their ideas and are apparently not shading prices, feeling confident of the future. Purchases of potatoes are now in smaller lots than earlier in the year. There is quite a demand for potatoes for seeding purposes.

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUITS.—Green fruits are still active; imports are coming freely. The market prices generally show declining tendencies resulting from increasing supplies. Easter call has livened the situation.

GREEN FRUITS.—More interest, as pointed out last week, has developed in apples which dealers report moving out fairly freely. There is considerable stock still held, however, although some of the more fancy lines, as it natural at this time of year, are not plentiful. No. 1 Spies are quoted at $5 per barrel. No. 1 Ben Davis may be had at $4. Box apples are meeting with considerable demand at $1.50 to $1.75 for ordinary varieties. A year ago box apples were being brought in from across the line but are not needed this year.

Florida strawberries are easier at 60 cents, while the same tendency is present in pineapples. Lemons are moving fairly freely at steady prices, as are also oranges and grapefruit.

VEGETABLES.—Weather at beginning of week was rather adverse to vegetable trade but movement was better towards latter part in anticipation of Easter demand.

The lower prices, which it was pointed out last week could be expected, in Florida celery have arrived with arrivals on a larger scale. From $3.75 to $4.50 is the ruling price. One dealer quoted 8's at $3.25 and 4's and 6's at $3.75. Lower prices will mean a much larger consumption.

Another, and probably the last shipment for season of Spanish onions, arrived on Monday. First shipment of Egyptian onions has not yet arrived. Tomatoes are moving out freely and prospects apparently are for firmer prices as that is tendency on primary markets.

Easier feeling in potatoes is disappearing and steadiness setting in. That New Brunswick dealers are firm in their ideas is shown from fact that offer received from that province on Monday would mean laid down here practically the price that is being asked retailer now.

Making Savings in Freight in Summer

What Opening of Navigation Means to Dealers in Western Canada and in Lake Port Towns — Advantage Not Always Taken of This—Waking of The Great Lakes Expected End of April.

April 15 is the standard time for throwing open the flood gates for navigation on the Canadian Great Lakes. This year, however, the opening time will be probably nearer the end of the month. At any rate we shall soon see the waking of the waters to greet the big freighters that ply on our great bodies of fresh water.

Where the Merchant Comes In.

What has this got to do with the retail or wholesale merchant?

With many it hasn't much association, but with those doing business at lake points as well as those in Western Canada, it gives an opportunity of saving $7 or $8 freight in a car load of goods.

The bulk of the groceries that go by freight is placed in classes four and five —that is they are scheduled as either 4th or 5th class goods. There are, of course, first, second and third class goods as well, but the major portion goes into either one or the other above mentioned classes.

"It is difficult to understand," remarked a representative of a lake freight line to the Grocer the other day, "why wholesalers do not take more advantage of the lower water rates in summer. A number of them do; they always anxiously await the opening of navigation holding many shipments for that time, but the majority continue to pay the higher rates."

Means Considerable Saving.

As a matter of fact the saving on a shipment of fourth class goods means a saving of three cents per hundred pounds over railway rates from Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton, etc., and all intermediary points and from any of these ports to points on Lake Superior where goods are transhipped to the railways for the Western market. On fifth class goods the saving is two cents per cwt.

On first class—such as bottled fruit—it is five cents and on second and third four cents.

It looks therefore, as if retailers who have to pay freight and whose places of business are in Western Canada, or at Laek Ports or within easy access of them, would save a good deal of money in a year by taking advantage of the lake freighters to have their goods shipped.

Saving on a Car Load.

On 33,000 lbs. or 330 hundredweight —approximately a car load— at three cents per hundred the saving would be more than $9; at two cents it would mean almost $7.

The question of expediency in handling this freight by lake freighters may arise. But acording to the representative of one company they are able to handle it quite freuqently to better satisfaction in this respect than the railways. There can be no such a thing as congestion or freight tied up anywhere. The lakes are two wide for that.

The port of Toronto alone can supply sufficient tonnage to carry 12,000 tons of freight a week and with evident inefficient railway facilities at times during the year it would appear that much saving of time could be frequently effected.

Up to Retailers.

With these points in view, retailers, who are favorably situated, can well afford to go into this question. By ordering goods early, so that they do not need to be expressed, they can frequently save money during the summer months. If wholesalers do not offer suggestions in shipping by water retailers could stipulate that the goods be sent by water when sending in or giving their orders.

Opening of navigation is expected during the last week of April. Where advisable, orders could be held for shipment until that time.

Retailer's Troubles Collecting Debts

Dealer Tells of Case Where Woman Who Owed Him Grocery Bill Refused to Pay Him Because She Had to Buy Coal—References to High Cost of Living.

Lindsay, Ont., Apr. 4.—(Special)—"Really I cannot understand how the poorer people of Lindsay, (or for that matter any other town of its size) are standing the high prices these days."

The above remark was made J. E. Adams, of Adams Bros., retail grocers, Continuing, he said, "If any person told me last year at this time that the grocers of Lindsay would be importing potatoes from Ireland and New Brunswick and selling them at a profit I would have told him he was crazy, but yet it is true. These Irish potatoes have been selling at $2 per bag, and we cannot meet the demand. It has been surprising the number of unusual prices this year, many articles, which are usually sold at reasonable prices are beyond the reach of the average housekeeper. Many of the people cannot pay their bills and this is where the grocer suffers. For instance, we are lenient with them and give credit, but the same woman will go to the coal man and lay down her $7.50, simply because she cannot get credit. Why should this be?

"The other day a woman entered the store, who had but $5 in her purse and when asked to pay her grocery bill she demurred and said that she simply had to pay her coal bill, and consequently we had to let our bill stand. The prices for many articles are high, and as I said before I cannot understand how many of the poorer families are living. The merchants also suffer, that is, where they give credit. Its too bad we could not force payments like the coal men do."

Mr. Adams further stated that he was perfectly in sympathy with the idea of giving no "tick." Thousands of dollars were lost annually in this manner, and if merchants in other lines of business could force or demand cash payments then, he maintained, the grocers should demand like concessions. Mr. Adams would like to see the matter brought up before the retail associations.

CATALOGUES AND BOOKLETS.

The T. A. Lytle Co., Toronto, have just issued a handsome catalogue of their products. Prominent on the covers is the "Sterling" trade mark of the Company in three colors. The different bottles containing their products are shown in original colors both as to the label and contents. For instance, the pickles have a green tint, catsup red, extracts in yellow, pink and red tints, etc. The booklet is certainly an attractive production.

Final Bid for Fish Business Being Made

Good Lenten Season Is About to end—Trade Will Return to Regular and Even Channels—Fresh Fish Will Be In Greater Prominence as Season Advances—Prices Hold Steady

Final bid for fish business during rush period is now being made. Soon another Lenten season with its accompanying big demand for fish will have passed into history. With passing of Lent, fish trade will return to regular and even demand, with fresh caught varieties coming into greater favor as the season advances.

General satisfaction is expressed with the season now about to close. Lent started off with marked briskness, and although demand slackened off somewhat along about the third and fourth weeks, this was to be expected, as retailers like to clean their stocks up to a safe margin. The last week has been quite up to the standard, Good Friday being a day when a large quantity of fish is consumed.

For a goodly portion of the success of the season, the weather man has to receive credit. Conditions have been ideal for the selling of fish with minimum expense and trouble, and this has helped a great deal, as it always does.

Even now on the eve of the quieter season, prices on fish are holding steady with most wholesalers' stocks cleaned up to safety mark. This is a contrast to some other years when a break in prices of some varieties in order to clean them up, has not been uncommon.

Oyster trade is at a rather low ebb, many retailers having given up the sale of this line for the season. There are still many, however, who are selling them, and still getting considerable trade. Stocks are still coming along to Canadian markets in first class shape.

QUEBEC.

MONTREAL.—Fish dealers were again rushed this week filling the Holy Week demand. Prices remain firm on all varieties; but shortages in some lines are perceptible.

ONTARIO.

TORONTO.—Last week of Lenten season is here and about to pass into history. First of week did not find any special briskness in demand, but as Friday approached business showed more activity. With mild weather dealers operate on safe side, believing in getting shipments oftener and in smaller quantities. With passing of Lent trade will revert back to steady and regular channels, turning more to fresh caught as the season advances.

Prices hold steady even on the brink of the passing of the fast season, showing that stocks held are well on the safe side.

Fresh halibut is offered this week.

STARTED LIFE WITH A SMALL CAPITAL.

John R. Booth, the Ottawa lumberman, started life with a capital of $9. But he had energy and ideas and is today one of the leading capitalists of the Dominion. Some interesting incidents of his career are related in "Booth, the Timber King," published in MacLean's Magazine for April, a copy of which may be secured from the MacLean Publishing Co., University Avenue, Toronto. The sketch tells how he revolutionized the lumber industry, how he made his influence felt in big business deals and throws some unique side-lights on his personality and career.

Up to the present, he said, the unfavorable weather has been practically prohibitive to lobster fishing but with better weather conditions a fair catch might be expected. At present the men were engaged in dragging for scallops, digging clams, and trawl fishing. The latter is expected to be quite satisfactory, and line fishing, including cod and haddock, appears indicative of good prospects. Owing to the large amount of stock carried over, the outlook for sardines is only considered fair

C. A. McNeill, grocer, Ingersoll, Ont., died suddenly last week. While at work in the store he fell to the floor behind the counter and was dead when medical aid arrived. Death was due to heart failure.

A deputation from the butchers and another from the Retail Grocers' Association of London, Ont., have grievances which they aired at the last meeting of the Fire, Water and Light Committee. The meat men protested against the removal of the present market house, while the grocers condemned the practice of huckstering on the market, and asked for relief. Their repretentations will be considered at the special meeting of the council regarding the market

Frank Menzie, who has been with The F. F. Dalley Co., Limited, of Hamilton, Ont., for 18 years, has severed his connection with that firm and will in a few months time manufacture a shoe polish in both Canada and the United States. Mr. Menzie was for six years sales manager of the above company in the United States.

NOT CONNECTED WITH CHEESE FACTORY PROPOSITION.

The Editor of The Canadian Grocer.—Numerous inquiries having made it evident that the name of this company is associated in the minds of many people in respect of the activities of a concern reported in several papers in the West as arranging to acquire and incorporate cheese factories throughout the country, we take this opportunity of stating that the MacLaren Imperial Cheese Company has no interest whatever in these undertakings, nor has any director or officer of this company any connection with them, or any interest in the sale of milk here or elsewhere.

Yours very truly,
MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., Ltd.

Pres. and General Manager.

Produce & Provisions

What Will Week Bring Forth in Eggs?

Dealers Wondering How Supply and Demand Will Measure Up at End of Week—Hogs Hold Steady—Firmer Feeling in Provisions and Lard—Hams and Bacon Sold Well for Easter—No Material Change in Butter as Yet.

While most of the orders for Easter provisions were taken some time ago, late last week and beginning of this week was marked by appearance of a considerable number of belated orders sent in by those dealers who hold off to the last moment. Last few days of this week, the retail dealer will find a good demand for hams and bacons and now that Lent has passed there will be much greater general activity in provisions which should warrant a little more than usual attention to this department.

Live hogs in past month have made a considerable upward movement in price. Since early in the year certain dealers had been looking for a let-up in the hog supply but it was only until about a month ago that this became apparent. Combined with a good demand from packers as Easter with its heavier demand was approaching, prices made a substantial gain. Demand will hardly be so keen when Easter has passed although supplies of porkers will probably continue on the short side.

In symjathy with higher prices for hogs on the hoof and a good demand induced by Easter, provisions have held a steady and firm tone with advances announced from some centres. Lard has been in good demand and is firm and in some cases higher.

This is a big week in eggs and also a somewhat critical one, through the uncertainness of how supply and demand will measure up at the end of the week. First of the week showed no drastic changes from values ruling last week but it was uncertain what the end might bring forth. It was claimed at certain centres that supplies were being held back in anticipation of higher prices as Easter approached. It is probable that bad roads have interfered considerably with shipments but no doubt every effort will be put forth to get supplies to market for the Easter demand. Consumption has shown a wonderful increase since prices became more reasonable.

What can be said of butter? The old make is well cleaned up, and while the new make is increasing, it has not, however, made any gain as yet over demand. Bad roads in the country have interfered with bringing of butter to market as well as sending milk to factories, so that some centres have experienced slight pinches on odd days. This week will find many more factories commencing on the new season's make and a more material increase can be expected from now on. As pointed out before the tendency is to easiness when increase in new make becomes substantial enough.

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS.—Lard continues in demand at steady prices and stocks are kept quite closely cleaned up. Provisions still continue a little on quiet side; values are stationary. Some firmness is noted in hams, probably due to the fact they will shortly be in brisker demand.

TORONTO.

PROVISIONS—Hams, bacon and other pork products have come into greater prominence of late. While most of the orders for Easter trade were taken some little time ago, there was a certain number of belated ones that made their appearance this week.

Live hogs have held steady at last week's figures. Stinted supplies combined with a good demand has caused recent upward movement. Whether small receipts of hogs is temporary or not is a question but demand with passing of Easter will hardly be so keen.

Pork products have taken another general upward movement during week. Hams and backs are 1-2 cent higher. Lard is stronger at 13 to 13¼ for pails with some firms asking a little higher figure. Short cut pork and cooked hams are also firmer.

BUTTER.—While time continues to roll on, butter situation shows no material change. "In just about same situation as a week ago, waiting for a bigger increase in new make" was one dealer's summing up of the situation. Old stocks are well cleaned up, and while new make is certainly showing an increase, it has a difficult problem in keeping ahead of demand and there have been slight pinches on odd days. However, when new goods increase enough, tendency will be downward. Bad roads in country are interfering with delivery of milk to factories as well as with shipments of butter.

EGGS.—First of week found no change in egg prices but dealers were wondering just what the week might bring forth. Demand has been on a large scale measuring well up with receipts and it has been hinted that those at producing sections were holding up receipts in anticipation of better prices with the big Easter demand. Some dealers report considerable difficulty in getting enough eggs to supply the demand. Receipts are no doubt being held up to some extent by bad roads. This is a big week in eggs. The last few days of it will find a big demand for the new laid. How will receipts compare with demand? That is a question which only time can answer.

Fancy Cheese on the Canadian Market

Something About the Varieties Not Generally Pushed but Which Carry a Good Margin of Profit—Details on Such Cheese as Limburger, Edam, English Stilton, Gorgonzola, etc. — Prices to Retail Trade.

While every grocer is well enough acquainted with the common Canadian cheese, there are many who do not know fancy cheese so well, and to whom some information on this variety will be both interesting and helpful.

The sale of fancy cheese in Canada is steadily on the increase. Grocers are beginning to recognize that a substantial trade can be built up in this line by a little pushing. The better profit on many lines is also an inducement to handle them.

Roquefort a Good Seller.

Roquefort cheese is principally made at Roquefort in the South of France. It has shown a great advance in price, both on account of the excessive drought and the disease which set in among the cattle in that country. To the retail trade it has advanced about 10 cents per pound from the prices quoted last year. It is packed in cases of 12 cheese, weighing about 4½ to 5 pounds each.

Gorgonzola From Italy.

Gorgonzola cheese is an Italian manufactured cheese and like Roquefort, during the past few months has shown quite an increase in price, and market still has an advancing tendency. Gorgonzolas are usually packed in baskets or small tubs weighing about 20 pounds.

Gruyere cheese (Swiss) is principally made in Switzerland, although there is a considerable quantity made in the United States called "Swiss type," or "American Swiss." It usually comes in large tubs, four cheese to the tub, weighing about 150 pounds per cheese. This also has shown a considerable advance compared with other years, which only goes to show that the terrible heat which was experienced in Canada last year was universal.

Uses of Edam Cheese.

Edam cheese is a Dutch cheese, largely used for grating purposes and is made in the shape of a cannon ball. They come in a case containing 12 cheese weighing about 4 pounds each.

Genuine imported Camembert cheese is made in France, but it is also largely made in the States and called "Camembert type." It is usually packed in wooden boxes weighing about one-half pound. It also comes in tins of about the same weight.

The Famous Limburger.

Limburger cheese is a line which has previously been largely brought from the United States and is called "imported Limburger," but on account of the domestic made cheese having attained such a state of perfection this is largely replacing any imported cheese. It is put up also in 1-pound bricks which are easily handled by the retail trade.

Dealers say that English Stilton cheese is gaining favor in this country, possibly on account of the number of English people who are migrating here and who bring the taste for it with them. This cheese weighs about 12 pounds each and is packed in cases of six and twelve cheese to the case.

A Cheese Made by Monks.

Oka cheese is a line similar to Camembert in make and is made by the Trappist, Monks of La Trappe, Quebec. They weigh about 5 pounds each and are packed 6 to the case.

Neufchatel cheese is a popular line, especially in the United States, but is growing largely in this country. It is a facsimile of cream cheese, only made from skim milk.

Brick cream cheese is a line which is not very familiar to the ordinary retail trade, but is especially made for the Jewish trade. It is usually packed 10 or 14 bricks to a case, weighing about 5 pounds each.

Pimento cheese is a new line on the market which is selling well.

Those dealers who will put a little time and effort behind their fancy cheese department should reap good results. A substantial and profitable trade may be built up if the required amount of attention is given.

Prices of Fancy Cheese.

The following are the prices of the above fancy cheese to the retailer on the Toronto market: Roquefort, 35c. in 4 case lots and 36c. in single cases; Gorgonzola, 22c. per pound; Gruyere (Swiss), 26c. in tubs and 27c. in wheels; Edam, $10 per case containing 12 cheese of about 4 pounds each; Camembert, $3.25 per dozen; English Stilton, 37 cents per pound; Oka, 23c. per pound; brick cream cheese, 20c. per pound.

Imported Limburger is worth 24 cents per pound. The domestic is 20 cents. The supply of domestic at present moment is practically exhausted. There will be no more to offer for the next week or so.

BOUTILIER'S Smoked Fillets

Here, Mr. Grocer, is a line you can do a good trade in ALL THE TIME, and we would advise you to consider it. You can easily start a good fish department and work it successfully. Make a selection from our lines. Instruct the driver or delivery clerk to tell your customers that you are open to handle their fish orders; or get out a neat circular (a few dollars will cover the expense) and send it round. The results will be good, because the housewife likes to give her order for everything to one store and dislikes having to go here for her groceries and there for her fish.

MAGIC BAKING POWDER MAGIC BAKING POWDER

Read The Label

Magic Baking Powder is guaranteed to be composed of the ingredients named on the label—and none other. It is the only baking powder manufactured in Canada that has all the ingredients printed on the label. There are several brands of Alum baking powder being offered that are labeled and advertised as containing "No Alum." This is unfair and is a direct misrepresentation. See that all ingredients are printed on the labels.

MUCH EASIER TO DO THAN YOU MAY THINK

No article that you sell will so well repay you for a little extra effort as 40c. Red Rose Tea.

We doubt if there is anything sold in the grocery store that is so fully worth to the consumer the small extra cost as 40c. Red Rose, while at the same time giving the merchant a much better profit.

Within a very few months nearly any merchant could, by a little but persistent effort, change his 30c. tea trade to 40c., and when once changed he will only wonder that he had ever sold any tea but the 40c. Red Rose.

It is a very easy way to make a little more profit in your business this year.

go hand in hand. The wise grocer knows this to be a sound commercial fact. He accordingly stocks

Royal Shield Jelly Powders

For purity they will stand the most rigid tests—there are no adulterants or preservatives used in their manufacture—points which make Royal Shield Jellies exceedingly popular with housewives.

If you but suggest, you will find a steady and satisfied trade to be worked up for Royal Shield goods, and it is a profitable line, too.

From the Cow to the Can

"Canada First" Evaporated Milk is full cream milk, reduced to the consistency of rich cream by a sterilizing vacuum process. It is three times richer in butter fats and solids than ordinary fresh milk.

It is especially suitable for invalids and infants. You can be sure of purity. "Canada First" Evaporated Milk, by Government analysis, showed the highest percentage of butter fat and solids in excess of legal standard and high percentage of genuine food value.

A Canadian product—from the cow to the can.

There is plenty of demand, Mr. Grocer, and the profit is a good one.

Telfer's Reception and Vanilla Wafers win the hearts of the women customers of your store, by pleasing the palate. They are delightful for afternoon tea, or to serve a dainty lunch in the evening. Give them a chance with the feminine department of your trade—they will make good—and you will be amply repaid.

Telfer's Oatmeal Crackers

need no further introduction other than to say that a package of Telfer's contains more crackers to a box than can be had at the price among other brands. The packing is done with exceeding carefulness, ensuring a uniformly crisp and wholesome cracker.

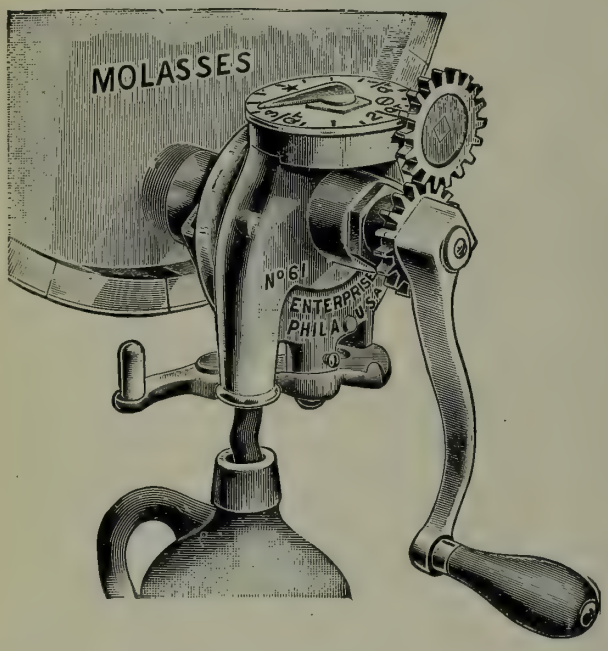
There isn't a grocer in the land who can afford to be without one of these two trouble savers

Many dealers, who know that their trade demands that they sell molasses by the quart or gallon, would like to dispense with it altogether because it is troublesome.

Here are the devices that take away the difficulties—that make the drawing and sale of molasses both profitable and convenient.

ENTERPRISE

IMPROVED PATENT SUCTION AND FORCE MEASURING FAUCET

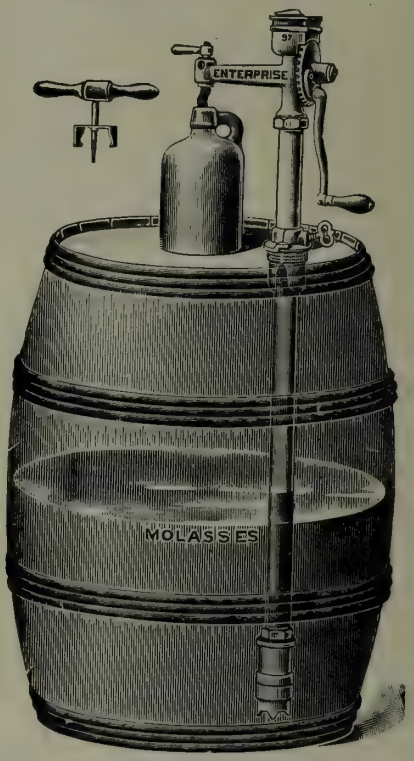


THE ENTERPRISE IMPROVED PATENT SUCTION and FORCE MEASURING FAUCET draws molasses both summer and winter directly into the jug or bottle and without the use of a funnel. It is cleaner and dispenses with the use of measures; does away with the fly and dirt nuisance.

It will draw a gallon of molasses in winter in one minute. It is the only measuring faucet that has shown that it can stand the wear and tear of service.

You simply open the nozzle gate, turn the crank until the register hand indicates the quantity you desire to draw. Eight revolutions draw a quart—absolutely without fail. We warrant this faucet to measure according to United States Standard.

SELF PRIMING AND MEASURING PUMP



THE ENTERPRISE SELF-PRIMING AND MEASURING PUMP draws molasses at the rate of four revolutions to the pint. It is equipped with our new total register device. Just put the pump into the barrel and it is ready to use. The new total register device shows you precisely how much you have left in the barrel, so that you can order before your supply is exhausted.

Bear this in mind. Our pump will not agree with any inaccurate measure. It measures. It measures a gallon, which weighs just the amount that a gallon should weigh, and every time you test it you find it right. Use one of these Enterprise devices and do a satisfactory molasses trade. Like all Enterprise articles—Meat and Food Choppers, Cherry Stoners, Fruit Presses, Sad Irons—these are made to give you absolutely satisfactory service. There isn't a part that is not made to the highest standard. Send for the Enterprise catalogue.

WORTH all You Pay and Then Some.

No Matter What You Pay for My Set of ONKEN INTERCHANGEABLE YOUNITS as Fixtures for your Show Windows.

You Will Positively Get Your Money Back in 30 Days

If I could meet personally every Grocer who is willing to spend from $21.00 to $36.00 on new show window fixtures, with a view of improving his windows, I am sure I could convince that Grocer in 20 minutes that all he needs is a set of my interchangeable Wood Window Fixture YOUNITS to accomplish the desired results.

Right in my salesroom I have at my fingers' ends hundreds and hundreds of letters from enterprising and successful merchants who have invested in my YOUNIT Window Fixtures, who say they are so very well satisfied with the way they simplify window trimming and with the wonderful improvement they add to the appearance of their windows that they would not part with them for from twice to ten times their cost (that is, provided they could not get another set).

These letters are open for inspection to the prospective purchaser, and for those at a distance I publish one herewith—after reading it, bear in mind, if you purchase a set of my interchangeable YOUNITS, you will write me a letter just as gratifying.

Each set is put up in a Hardwood Hinged-lid Storage Box (oiled finished). Fixtures are made of a fine quality of weathered oak, in a soft mellow waxed finish.

A book of designs showing many beautiful window trims covering all lines goes free with each set sold.

CLEMENTS, LIMITED, General Merchants
Vegreville, Alberta, Canada, May 1, 1911.

The Oscar Onken Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Gentlemen,—

We have received your set of Onken Wood Window Fixture Younits. Our window trimmer is delighted with them. We find that he can make twice the window display changes with the same ease as heretofore.

The value of this is evident to any merchant, especially should he have a sunny window where displays require most frequent change.

We would not be without your fixtures after giving them a fair trial.

We have almost totally discarded our nickel work fixtures.

Yours truly, CLEMENTS, LIMITED

New PEAS (with MINT) in Cooking Nets (Farrow's Patent)

You may have new peas now, or at any time of the year, if you buy Farrow's "Patent Net" Peas and cook them as directed.

FARROW'S 'Patent Net' PEAS are the finest early green peas, gathered at the beginning of the season when peas are sweetest, most tender and delicious. Our process preserves ALL their natural flavour. When cooked they are so delicious and tender that you cannot detect them from fresh garden peas. They are very easily cooked and remarkably cheap —a 10 cent Net provides liberal portions for 8 people. Farrow's "Patent Net" Peas are English grown, absolutely pure, free from all preservatives and colouring matter.

ALLISON'S COUPON BOOKS

You can't get away from credit business without driving away trade. And if you don't use Allison Coupon Books you are bound to lose some money on credit accounts. Allison Coupon Books make credit business "good as gold."

HERE'S HOW THEY WORK:—

When a man wants credit, give him an Allison Coupon Book, and have him sign form at the front which becomes then his promissory note to you. As he buys, you tear out coupons, and when his book is exhausted you can collect your note or extend his credit for another book, as you deem wise. No pass books, no charging, no time wasted, no errors, no disputes.

THE IMPORTANCE OF FRESH TEA

The flavor of tea is contained in an essential oil. With age the oil decays. This affects the flavor and is quickly detected by the consumer. Tea keeps better when not exposed to the air, but it deteriorates, more or less, under any circumstances. Fresh tea is as necessary to a successful tea trade as fresh butter to a successful butter trade. No retailer should keep a pound of tea in his stock for more than four months, and he should be sure that wholesalers are not supplying him with old goods which they have had on hand for years.

In Ceylon, tea is picked every week in the year, and you always get it fresh and fragrant in "SALADA."

If any retailer—anywhere—at any time—has any "SALADA" in stock that is over six months old, let him ship it back to us—freight collect—and we will refund the full purchase price. We back up our belief in the paramount importance of fresh tea by this sweeping guarantee.

An Ontario R.G.A. Has Been Organized

Formation Meeting Held in Hamilton on Good Friday—Legislature Will Be Asked for Charter—Officers Elected, With D. W. Clark as President—Date and Place of Annual Meeting Decided on—The Annual Fee.

Staff Correspondence.

Hamilton, Ont., Apr. 11.—The Province of Ontario can now boast of an Ontario Retail Grocers' Association. It was formed here on the afternoon of Good Friday, when between fifty and sixty retail grocers from Toronto and Western and Northern Ontario assembled in the Board of Trade rooms and went into the question of organization.

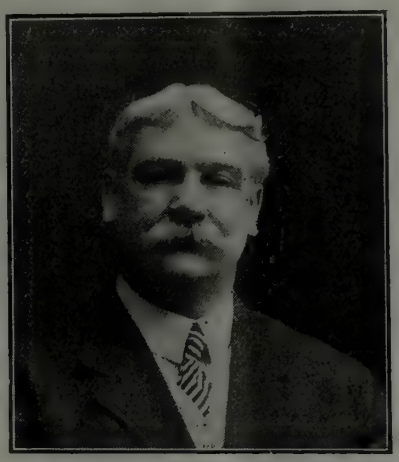
That the new Association has gotten off to a good beginning was well demonstrated by the enthusiasm of the gathering and the strong list of officers who have been elected to guide its destinies for the first twelve months of its career.

Visiting retailers were in attendance from Windsor, Woodstock, London, Stratford, Brantford, Paris, Toronto and Barrie, while the secretary reported communications from Belleville and Colborne, in Eastern Ontario. Already there are four local retail associations in affiliation with the new organization —those of London, Brantford, Hamilton and Toronto—but it will be strongly urged by these that other towns and cities in Ontario organize, and they will be requested to lend their assistance in promoting the aims of the Ontario body.

What Lead to Organization.

While the new association has been talked of by Ontario retailers for a number of years back, and while some moves were made to organize it, no strong concerted action was taken until representatives from the four city associations, already mentioned, met in Toronto after the retail grocers' banquet on February 28, and informally talked the matter over. It was decided then to send out circular letters to Ontario retailers to get their views.

E. J. RYAN, LONDON,
First Vice-President.



D. W. CLARK, TORONTO,
The First President of the Ontario Retail Grocers' Association.

After the Brantford R.G.A. banquet on March 27, members of the same four bodies, with others, met and determined on Good Friday as the date of the organization meeting, and Hamilton as the place. The result in brief has already been given.

The Meeting Begins.

D. W. Clark, of Toronto, who had been appointed chairman of the committee on organization, occupied the chair and opened the meeting, which was destined to evolve into an Ontario Retail Grocers' Association at 3.15. He expressed his appreciation of the large attendance, and trusted much good would come of the gathering. W. C. Miller, Toronto, who was secretary, pro tem, read the minutes of the first preliminary meeting in the Iroquois Hotel, Toronto, and the second meeting at the Bodega Hotel, Brantford. These minutes were adopted in the usual way.

J. A. McIntosh, of Hamilton, who has been a strong advocate for a long time of provincial organization, had the honor of moving that the meeting resolve itself into an association to be known as the Ontario Retail Grocers' Association. The resolution was carried unanimously.

Number in Executive.

A motion was made as to what offices would be formed. It included President, three vice-presidents, secretary, treasurer, and five of an executive committee. Before this was put to the meeting a discussion, introduced by E. J. Ryan, of London, was held as to the best method of getting all sections of the province interested. This opened the way to retailers from Barrie, Paris, Stratford, Woodstock and Windsor expressing their views. The sum total of this evidenced the fact that these retailers wanted an Ontario association, and were willing to lend their assistance. Among those who spoke were Bruce Allison, of Windsor; J. D. Wisdom, Barrie; W. J. McCully, Stratford; Jno. Scott, Woodstock; Chas. McCausland, Paris; Jno. Forth, Hamilton; W. J. Mellen, Brantford; J. A. McIntosh, E. J. Ryan, and others.

The consensus of opinion was that nine instead of five should constitute the executive committee, and that if organization and election of officers were proceeded with those towns and cities not represented would join hands later.

Mr. Allison, of Windsor, stated that he knew of some Chatham grocers who were anxious to see the organization go through, while other speakers told of the sympathies of dealers they knew.

The First Officers.

The election of officers was then proceeded with, and resulted as follows:—

President—D. W. Clark, Toronto.

First Vice-President—E. J. Ryan, London.

Second Vice-President—Jas. Main, Hamilton.

JAS. MAIN, Hamilton.
Elected Second Vice-President.

Third Vice-president—W. J. Mellen, Brantford.

Secretary—W. C. Miller, Toronto.

Treasurer—Thos. Shaw, London.

Executive Committee — Jas. Burns, Brantford; Bruce Allison, Windsor; J. O. Wisdom, Barrie; W. J. McCully, Stratford; Jno. Scott, Woodstock; Chas. McCausland, Paris; W. L. Bailey, Colborne; J. A. McIntosh, Hamilton, and John Diprose, London.

Auditors—Jno. O. Carpenter, Hamilton, and Neil Carmichael, Toronto.

To Obtain a Charter.

On motion of J. A. McIntosh and W. C. Miller, the new organization decided to apply to the Ontario Legislature for a charter of incorporation as the Ontario Retail Grocers' Association.

The date of the first annual meeting was next before the chair. A motion that it be held on the second Wednesday of April was made. An amendment that the annual meeting be held on Good Friday, made by Jas. Laurie, of Hamilton, and D. Bell, of Toronto, was carried. J. A. McIntosh, who made the original motion, claimed that since the grocers did not have many holidays during the year they should not meet on Good Friday. The majority, however, favored the holiday, as they concluded they could get away better.

Toronto was decided upon as the date of the annual meeting of 1913.

The drawing up of the constitution and by-laws was left in the hands of a committee composed of the officers elect. E. J. Ryan's motion that each association be allowed to send representatives up to five to the annual meeting was carried.

A Legislation Committee.

John Forth, of Hamilton, was appointed chairman of the Legislation Committee, with power to add four associates.

W. C. MILLER, TORONTO,
Elected Secretary of the New Ontario R.G.A.

This committee is considered one of the most important to be connected with the Association. Its duties will be to watch all legislation that tends to be unfair to the retail dealer, and to have amended such legislation now on the statutes that is considered unjust. One of the early reforms that will be attempted will be a change in the Scale Inspection Act, where retailers now have to pay for inspection whether scales are right or wrong.

The Annual Fee.

The operation of the financial end of the organization brought out considerable discussion and differences of opinion. This, of course, was quite natural, as this is the most important feature. It was considered that without finances no organization can have a lengthy life, and therefore much time was devoted to getting the views of the majority.

There were two chief propositions advanced—one that each of the four associations already in existence contribute $25 this year, and each new association, when formed, $10; and the other that each local association be assessed one dollar per member, as well as any individual, where there is no association. The latter carried, and the organization meeting was soon after brought to a close.

Among those from out of town were the following:—

BRANTFORD—W. J. Mellen, A. Coulbeck, J. Burns, F. Hartley, Geo. Bickle, R. Gowman, and J. E. Church.

STRATFORD—W. J. McCully.

LONDON—E. J. Ryan, Thos. Shaw, Jno. Diprose, G. B. Drake, and J. A. McFarlane.

TORONTO—Robt. Davies, D. W. Clark, W. C. Miller, and D. Bell.

WINDSOR—Bruce Allison.

WOODSTOCK—Jno. Scott.

PARIS—Chas. McCausland.

BARRIE—J. D. Wisdom, and S. G. Caldwell.

Note and Comment.

And now for a year of hard work.

Parliamentary rules will be closely followed while D. W. Clark is in the chair.

In E. J. Ryan, Jas. Main, and W. J. Mellen, the president, has a strong coterie of assistants.

Before the gathering dispersed shortly after six o'clock, Secretary W. C. Miller had several dollars in membership fees forced upon him.

"Bay" Hill, secretary of the Hamilton R.G.A., was a busy man arranging for the entertainment of the visitors.

The retailers present were photographed on the steps of the Court House. These pictures will be highly prized—the gathering at the organization meeting of the Ontario R.G.A.

a live secretary, and in Thos. Shaw a safe man to carry the key of the treasury.

The visiting dealers were guests of the Hamilton Association at dinner in the Waldorf. Later they were entertained in the parlor of the hotel.

A section of the London delegation missed the early train for home. They philosophically resigned themselves to their fate and returned to enjoy the fun.

Editor Canadian Grocer,—I would be grateful if you could through your columns give me any information as to the handling of Limburger cheese which in this atmosphere hardens and dries very rapidly. What is the best method of keeping it moist and is there any method of restoring moisture to limburger which has become hard?

READER.

Edmonton, Alta., Mar. 29, 1912.

Editorial Note.—Dealers in limburger cheese say that it is next to impossible to restore moisture to cheese that has become hard. It is suggested that wrapping it in a cloth wrung out of salt water might help somewhat to restore it.

This class of cheese, and indeed all varieties of cheese should be kept in a cool dry part of the cellar. Dealers sometimes store it close to the heating apparatus and of course it dries out and hardens quickly. It should also be kept wrapped in its original container until needed.

Of course when put on display it should be shown under a glass cover.

The Annual Meeting of the R.M.A.

Taxing Mail Order Houses a Question Discussed at Much Length—Wholesalers Selling Direct—Resolutions Respecting Legislation—Should Retail Merchants Come Under Employers' Liability Legislation?

(Staff correspondence.)

Toronto, April 11.—On Monday and Tuesday of this week the annual meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association of Ontario was held in the board room at the head office, 21 Richmond street. While the attendance was not as large as was desired, those present were enthusiastic in their deliberations. One of the main questions which arose for discussion was that of a proposal to tax mail order houses sending catalogues to consumers. It was felt by those present that such legislation was required to bring to a fairer basis the methods and operating expenses of mail order concerns as compared with those of retail dealers throughout the country.

Results From Associations.

At 3.30 p.m. on Monday the meeting was called to order, and in the absence of the president M. Moyer, of Toronto, was appointed chairman. In opening the meeting he regretted the comparative smallness of the attendance and expressed himself as at a loss to understand why the attendance was not larger. "For," said he, "if the merchants were acquainted with and fully realized the good that can be done by proper association work, they would not fail to attend these meetings and give to the association their best support. I am safe in saying that the Retail Merchants' Association's work has meant millions to the merchants of Canada. It appears, however, to be the labors of a few to keep the trade in good condition for the benefit of the many. The country is said to be in a prosperous condition, but the question is 'are the retail merchants securing their share of this prosperity?' A community can never prosper unless the retail trade in that community is first prosperous. Those engaged in the retail trade therefore need to be of the best."

Secretary's Report.

E. M. Trowern, Toronto, secretary of the association, then presented his annual report in part as follows:—

Gentlemen,—I am pleased to again meet you on this the thirteenth Annual Meeting of our Association. Each year seems to bring with it further responsibility, and it should impress upon us the wisdom and foresight of those who inaugurated the organization of the retail trade. It is not my intention in this report to dwell upon the many things that have been accomplished during the past thirteen years, as they are, or should be, well known to the members by this time.

"During the past year a great deal of time has been taken up securing finances to assist us in defeating the co-operative society legislation which was introduced, and also to secure an amendment to the Criminal Law to enable us to meet and consult with wholesalers and manufacturers. It am pleased to report that we have not only met with much success in securing funds for this purpose but have been strongly commended by all commercial classes for our effort in taking the forefront position and pointing out to our legislators the need of a change in the law. It will be remembered that through our efforts the Combines and Investigation Act was placed upon the Statute Books and that was a great step towards what we have been endeavoring to secure for many years. Having secured this it is all important that the amendment should be secured so as to enable us to finish our work, and give us an opportunity to still further strengthen our section work.

"Our membership throughout the province has increased this year over last which should be gratifying, but I would strongly recommend that a change be made in the conduct of the branches. Our custom has been to send organizers into the various cities and towns and form branches. These branches would then be left to carry on their local work, and as in many cases local jealousies have crept in and prevented the holding of meetings, or those who have been elected to fill the offices have been too busy or too indifferent, and when the branch was inactive the members estimated that the whole Association of the province was doing likewise, and the Ontario and Dominion Boards have suffered for the sins of the local branches. I would recommend that an active organizer be appointed and one who is familiar with the retail trade and have him visit the merchants in every city and town and secure their membership fee, explaining to them that we want their direct financial and moral support, and if they contribute this it will enable the head office to pay its expenses and continue to do the work. And if they should choose to form a local branch among themselves that would be a matter for them to act upon locally, but the life or death of a local branch should not in any way interfere with the activity of the head office.

"Another matter that I think should receive our attention is the necessity of educating the merchants up to understand that no matter what other trade association they may belong to, if they want to defeat injurious legislation or secure legislation to improve the retail conditions they should support this Association irrespective of the claims of any other, and that by so doing they would not only be helping themselves, but also strengthen any other trade association they may belong to. In other words, this Asociation should be the main support of all other associations and no conflict should be considered or should exist between them. We have a distinct mission to fill and the retail merchants should be so seized with this fact that its support should be considered as part of the running expenses of every properly conducted retail business.

"With the plan and the necessity for such an organization as ours it is now self-evident that the merchants everywhere should awaken to their opportunities and each should take an active and important part in impressing it upon his neighbor.

"Before closing I would like to impress upon you that there is a great part for the retail man to take in the future development in Canada. He is gradually finding himself hedged in between organized labor on one side and the large capitalist on the other and the tendency of the Government to enter into competition or allow others who require special legislation to do so, and if he wants to fortify himself and be ready for the defence when the time comes he must strengthen himself by strengthening his organization now."

Appointing of Organizer.

N. Cameron, of Goderich, Ont., thought it important, as suggested in the secretary's report, that an organizer should be appointed to maintain the interest in the association. "The retailers of this province," he declared, "are gradually being hedged in and they must take some action before their bread and butter is altogether snatched from them. In our town of Goderich we feel as if we would like an organization if there was only someone to start it. There is where an organizer would come in."

"A great thing in every organization," said F. C. Higgins, of Toronto, "is a good organizer. The dealer is apt to get careless and indifferent unless he is kept awake and made to realize the situation. It is seemingly difficult to arouse this interest in the merchant. You may complain about your grievances but that will not do you much good. It is no good to complain that wholesalers are selling hotels, etc., unless merchants are able to bring pressure enough to remedy it. They should be organized so that they can select those dealers selling direct and refuse to buy from them."

The financial report of the association was presented by Provincial Treasurer M. Moyer, who stated that their liabilities had been reduced considerably during the year and to those who understood the work which had been done, the financial standing would be considered satisfactory.

Resolutions Dealt With.

Eleven resolutions to be discussed during the convention and dealt with were read by Secretary E. M. Trowern. It was decided to deal with them one at a time. The mail order question was the first to engage attention. Mr. Trowern in opening the discussion said: "The mail order question is a much more serious one than many dealers imagine and there are many vital reasons why it needs the consideration of the retail trade and right away too. There is at present an agitation for parcel post or lower rates on certain classes of mail. It is said that the postal service of our country is a paying proposition, but I think I am safe in saying that if examined into, it would be found that it is not. I have gone through the government records and find that a big percentage of the present expenses of the postal department are charged to the public works and that is how the postal receipts are said to be above the expenditures. Now they want to add still greater cost by giving lower rates to the benefit of the large mail order houses and the detriment of the country stores."

Work of the Newspapers.

"The newspapers," said F. C. Higgins, of Toronto, "are boosting the idea and catering to public sympathy by telling the people that with parcel post they will be enabled to get their butter and eggs shipped from country at low cost. These two articles would make little difference to the retailer, but these lower rates are apparently for the mail order houses. The only way to defeat this measure is to show that the post office department cannot afford to lower the rate."

Taxing Mail Order Houses.

N. Cameron, of Goderich, father of the idea to tax mail order houses, said: "As a retailer I have been watching the mail order question closely. About two months ago I took a step in bringing it before the Goderich Board of Trade. It was adopted and sent to Boards of Trade in other towns and cities throughout the province and the answers from Ontario have been encouraging indeed. I have also had several letters from Saskatchewan and Alberta.

"This is a new country and the mail order houses are getting a hold on the people before the retailer can. This question is a deeper one than it looks on the surface. I am making no suggestion whatever to come between the consumer and the mail order houses but if I have to pay taxes in Goderich why should not other men who do business there be taxed, whether they do it direct by mail or aeroplane.

"If a man starts in business he must pay taxes to maintain schools, walks, etc., but the mail order house escapes. I contend that it is bad for the town, because the retail merchants are the backbone of every town. With the present order of legislation we have absolutely no power to get after the mail order house.

Law Against Transients.

"At present we have a tax against transient traders. What is the law for? It was passed to protect the municipality. It was felt that if they were allowed to come in they would destroy the trade of legitimate dealers and when you take the legitimate dealers away there is no town. If it is fair to tax the merchants who reside in the town and help to maintain it, surely those from the outside should be taxed even heavier.

Merchants In Legislature.

"The securing of this looks like an easy proposition. It should be easy. We have 14 merchants in the Ontario House and find that members of other professions recognize the fairness of the idea. I do not see that mail order houses will offer much objection. I interviewed the president of one of the biggest mail order houses, and asked him if he had any reason why he should not pay taxes where he got good business. He said he had not.

"This is something in which the wholesaler and manufacturer should be deeply interested. They have now two sources of output for their goods—the M. O. H. and regular retailers. Mail order business is now getting into fewer hands and they will soon be able to dictate to wholesaler and manufacturer. They will force them to sell at a certain price. Manufacturers will have to reduce the wages of laborers to make at that price, so that the consumer is certainly going to be worse off.

I have a circular of a mail order house in Ontario, offering sugar at $4.40 which costs $5.35 in Montreal to-day; 25c. boxes of biscuits at 15c, a regular 10 cent shoe polish at 5c, and a 10 cent cleanser at 6 cents. What is their motive in doing this? This is their method of advertising. They intend to chase the retail merchant out of business, and then they will sell at the price they wish. It is surely time the retail merchant was doing something."

An Educational Campaign.

Further interesting discussion marked with vim and earnestness took place. M. Moyer advocated the education of the public as a remedy to the mail order evil. He would show the people that it was to their own interests to purchase their goods in their home town. If possible he would work this educational campaign through farmers and agricultural societies. "And above all," he said, "never should the retailer admit to his customers that the mail order houses can sell cheaper than he can, for they can't."

"If people can buy cheaper from the mail order houses," said F. C. Higgins, "let them, but if they are not getting better value, quality and service considered, they should not. People like to think they are getting a bargain and the big stores make them believe they are."

Advocated Tax of 1 per Cent.

N. Cameron's addition to the mail order resolution proposing to tax these houses was next discussed. It was explained that it was sugested that the tax be placed at 1 per cent. to begin with and that later it could be regulated as seen fit. The method of collecting it was to have the mail order houses make a sworn declaration as to the amount of their sales, the same as hotels have to do in regard to their bar receipts. It was finally decided to leave the matter over to the next day for further discussion.

THE TUESDAY SESSION.

The resolution respecting mail order house taxation was discussed further on Tuesday and the question gone thoroughly into with Mr. Cameron. His resolution was amended making the per centage five per cent. instead of one and with some other changes will be redrafted by the secretary who will submit it to the merchants of Ontario for their opinions. If approved of by them legis-

Suggestions for Selling Maple Syrup

Window Trim of a Stratford Dealer Which Brought Good Business—Forest Scene Represented With Maple Tree, Leaves, Hanging Kettle, etc.—The Time to Sell Syrup and Sugar.

The sap has been running for some time now and this is truly maple syrup time. Wise dealers are taking advantage of the possibilities presented and are making hay while the sun shines by pushing the sale of this line and the one associated with it, namely, maple sugar.

Not only are dealers heralding forth the virtues of the delectable liquid from counter and advertisement but many are bringing it into prominence by window display. With this line some very original and attractive as well as suggestive window trims that cannot fail to bring business may be arranged. Window displays of this line may be made particularly interesting from the fact that actual maple syrup making may be depicted, or at least represented in the window. Such a realistic touch is of much more value in creating demand for this line than a common arrangement of the goods would be.

Stratford Dealers' Method.

The Barnsdale Trading Co., of Stratford, Ont., is one firm that has taken advantage of the possibilities in this regard to push the sale of maple syrup and sugar. In fact nearly every year they attempt to have something original along this line and find that it is good business.

This year's display with its realistic touch was one that attracted a great deal of attention in Stratford and the trimmer of it, B. T. Williamson, reports that it brought a good deal of business and well warranted the time spent in arranging it.

It of course attracted a large number of the younger generation and so great was their interest that many would come in and get the clerks to tell them how maple syrup was made.

How Window Was Made.

A small tree, with a sap pail hanging from it, formed one of the important factors of the display. Then there was a long pole held up at one end by crotched sticks. From the elevated end of this hung the sap kettle by a chain, the representation of a fire being placed underneath. A pyramid of maple syrup in cans was built up at the back corners. In the centre of the background was a pyramid of packages of buckwheat flour with a show card, "Just a suggestion—pancakes and maple syrup."

The floor was covered with sawdust and besides two piles of maple sugar cakes were scattered about on it. In the centre was a high bottle filled with maple syrup that customers might see the color of it. Maple leaves strung across the top of the window added to its appearance. A show card tacked on the tree read "Sap is running," while a larger one read, "We don't make it but we know who does and can recommend it."

The Clerk's Originality.

A great scope is given to the trimmer's originality in making a display of these lines. The idea is to make the window as realistic and suggestive as possible. Herewith is another suggestion from which the trimmer may glean some ideas. As shown here, some high class stores in order to turn out an attractive display go to the extent of having a painted background showing a forest scene, with wildcats, owls and other birds. The trimmer may use a real tree and probably have stuffed owls and birds to improve the idea.

The sap kettle and representation of a fire is a needed addition to the trim, while the maple syrup and sugar may then be arranged to the best advantage. It would also be well to have suggestive show cards.

Maple Syrup and Sugar Window Suggestion. Now is the Time When Something Original Will Sell Considerable of These Articles.

ADVANCE IN ROLLED OATS.

Following firmness which was noted in our market reports in last issue, rolled oats advanced 15 cents per sack, or 30 cents per barrel, during the week. At the advance, values are 50 cents per bag above those ruling one year ago.

The reason that present prices are so much above those of last April is explainable by small supplies of raw material, the result of last year's small crops. Canadian production was not so unfavorable as that of United States, but high values across the border naturally firmed prices here.

Substantial gains were made in rolled oats during last fall. Then, under a price-cutting war, prices went down 30 cents per sack during December. A reaction of 20 cents per sack occurred during first two months of the year. For some time back now raw material has been moving upward, and the higher prices on the finished product is the result.

Values are steady at present level under a continued firm raw material market. Demand continues good for oats. United States buyers are in the market here, and are willing to pay fifteen cents duty per bushel in addition to market price, so scarce is the commodity on other side of the line.

TAX ON MAIL ORDER HOUSES.

At the annual meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, report of which appears elsewhere in this issue, was a lengthy discussion on the mail order question.

N. C. Cameron, of Goderich, Ont., has been making an extensive study of this problem, and he claims to have a solution in a tax or license on houses which sell by catalogue outside of their own communities. He says the law could be enforced in the same manner as the liquor license law, where the Government collects a percentage of the bar receipts. Each hotel proprietor must give a sworn statement of his bar receipts. Mail order houses would, under Mr. Cameron's plan, be obliged to make sworn declarations to the Government of the amount of business done in each municipality. The tax would be a certain percentage of that amount, and would go to the coffers of the various municipalities.

That there will be much opposition to such a measure is beyond a doubt, and it is a question which should be given much thought before a definite proposition is presented to the Legislature.

A number of other important discussions took place, chiefly on Legislative matters, and these discussions certainly demanded a larger attendance. If, as one of the members expressed himself, merchants could have known what was on the bill-of-fare, more would have been present.

WHERE CUSTOMERS ARE LOST.

"I haven't been back to that grocer since."

Does the dealer realize what it means when one woman makes such a statement to several others? Not much chance of having the confidence of anybody in that gathering, is there?

The trouble was all over some withered lettuce. The housewife had ordered it the night before. She would take it with her, as she wanted to place it in water so that it would be fresh for next day. Company was expected. There was a luncheon on.

The grocer asked to have the privilege of keeping the lettuce over night. He would see that it was placed in water and kept fresh.

Next morning it came with the remainder of the order. But it was withered. That accounted for the loss of the customer. The dealer had lost her confidence, and once that occurs, sooner or later the orders drop off. And it is just such simple matters as this that frequently cause the trouble.

Now that grape fruit is wearing off the market, grocers should be careful not to sell "punk" fruit. It is liable to cause the loss of a customer. In fact, a case is known to the writer where such has happened. A little attention to small matters will often save a good many dollars.

A SIXTY PER CENT. ADVANCE.

A manufacturer who has made a study of the subject, declares that the building done in Canada last year was 60 per cent. in advance of that ever done before. Indications, he declares, are that another increase will be noted this year, though following a banner season it is doubtful if any such honor mark as 60 per cent. will be achieved.

Building like this means a great deal to a country—especially when operations are rendered necessary by a natural growth, as has been the case here. Such extensive operations means a large and growing trade for the retailers.

It means that the country is prosperous.

SPRING NUMBER NEXT WEEK.

The next issue of The Grocer will be our big annual Spring Number. As usual it will be dressed in special attire, and the thousands of dealers who are acquainted with our past big numbers will appreciate what that means. The others will know next week.

In this Spring Number, the editors have endeavored to place before our readers a magazine that will be kept for reference. The central feature is "Creative Salesmanship," and the majority of our articles deal with ways and means the merchant has at his command to increase his business. Actual interviews with some of Canada's progressive dealers are given, showing how these men have made two blades of grass grow where there was only one before. The creating of new business is the main theme, and those who are anxious to expand will do well to study our annual number thoroughly. It will be profusely illustrated as well.

Apart from the reading matter, there will be a wealth of informative material in the advertising section. This section will be read because of attractiveness of the advertisements and because of the fact that they supply information about the goods the dealer handles—and the more one knows about the goods in stock the more efficient salesman he becomes.

Watch for the big Spring Number next week.

THE ONTARIO R. G. A.

Those who have been following our news columns of the past month will not be surprised to learn of the formation in Hamilton last Friday of the Ontario Retail Grocers' Association. Full particulars of the meeting appear on another page of this issue, and should be read by all those interested in association work.

The meeting was largely attended, and particularly so inasmuch as many had not received notice in time to make preparations to go to Hamilton. In enthusiasm it was a decided success. The majority had something to say as to the methods of organization and when such interest is taken, it can safely be said that men who will work are behind the proposition.

The Grocer strongly believes in the principle of unity and association of merchants. No two dealers can get together and converse on a trade subject without learning something. The more frequently they talk with one another, the broader will be their conception and knowledge of trade matters. Unity is practically the only way in which legislative reforms can be carried out, and it certainly behooves all grocers and other merchants to assist in association work when there are so many legislative matters to look after.

It is the desire of all in the trade that the new organization just launched, as well as all other similar Canadian organizations, should prosper; but to do this men in the trade must sacrifice a little time, a little energy, and last, but of most importance, a little money. These will all be returned ten-fold when the association is on a sound working basis.

TRADE WITH WEST INDIES.

The Minister of Trade and Commerce has announced a trade agreement between Canada and the British West Indies. The terms have not yet been made public, and will not until ratified by all the Governments and Legislatures concerned. The only general statement made is that the agreement is of comprehensive scope in regard to the freer exchange of nearly all the items of exchange between Canada and the West Indies. It is expected that it will come into effect on January 1, 1913.

Provision is made for including the Bahamas, Bermuda, Jamaica and British Honduras in the reciprocal trade arrangement at any time they so desire.

It includes exchanges of products on a wide and generous scale, and is based on a preference to the products of each country in the markets of the other.

The questions of improved cable and steamship communications between Canada and the West Indies were considered, and the views of the conference were embodied in resolutions unanimously passed. The objective of these resolutions is to effect an up-to-date and adequate cable and steamship connection, based upon the cooperation of the West Indies colonies, the Dominion of Canada, and the Government of Great Britain.

Jamaica, one of the chief of the British West Indies, was not represented at the conferences held. It is claimed that the chief reason of this is Jamaican politics and policy are largely affected by the wide and contiguous market of the United States. It looks also as if Jamaica has been influenced by the threat of certain public men of the United States that in the event of the Island granting a preference to Canadian products to the detriment of the United States, reprisals would be forthcoming from the big neighbor.

An interesting feature in connection with the signing of the new agreement is that during the past week a prominent New York lawyer, representing the United States milling interests, has been in Ottawa endeavoring to block the portion of the agreement giving a preference to Canadian flour and its products in the West Indian markets. The United States millers fear that their present virtual monopoly of the West Indian trade will be seriously damaged by the new treaty, and hence endeavored to interfere in the consummation of the family agreement between Canada and the West Indies. The arguments presented by the lawyer, however, were not sympathetically heard, and he left somewhat crestfallen.

HIGHER PRICES FOR CORN SYRUP.

Corn syrup prices have been advanced 15 cents per case during the week. This applies to both the light and dark-colored syrup.

Two weeks ago, in our market reports, we pointed out that starch had been advanced, and as same conditions affected syrup, it was regarded as holding a strong position. Market for raw material continued strong, and the advance followed. Even at higher price, situation is quite strong, as the advances made by corn during past month have been substantial indeed.

Since early last fall there has been a record demand for corn syrups, and manufacturers were often considerably behind in orders during the winter. The continued cold weather was favorable indeed to a large consumption of this line.

Even if we are now on the brink of spring, retailers should not neglect this line. Warmer weather may not work for quite so large a demand, but those dealers who maintain stocks and push this line will find that a good trade may be done during spring and summer. The day when corn syrups are neglected as soon as the snow begins to disappear is past and gone. Syrup is now an all-the-year-round seller. The wise grocer regards it as such.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The procession still goes on. Rolled oats and corn syrups are up this week.

Next week's issue will be the big Spring Number. You can bank on something good.

Butter still sticks to the high spots. The old, well-known sentence in the public school grammar: "I sometimes butter my bread on both sides," is now obsolete. Dr. Sneath will have to expurge it.

• • •

What effect will the trade agreement between Canada and the British West Indies have on sugar? is a question many are wondering. It is understood that the latter countries want Canada to purchase all their sugar from them.

QUEBEC MARKETS.

POINTERS—

Syrup—Advanced.

Sugar—A little weaker.

Montreal, March 11.—There is little change to report in trade for the week. Business for spring is setting in early and dealers are confident of a good season. The floods caused by rising waters blocked trains on some lines causing considerable delay in shipments.

Syrup is again offering the feature to the market; prices advancing this week.

SUGAR.—Sugar situation is inclined to be weak. Values for week have not changed; but New York markets are declining so as to take advantage of the Cuban raws. Canadian markets may do likewise. Demand is reported fair.

SYRUP AND MOLASSES.—Market as regards syrup is strong. Demand is heavy and prices have advanced, in sympathy with the high price of raw materials, 15 cents per case on tins and ¼ cent on half and quarter barrels and ½ cent on barrels.

Molasses has offered no feature. Trade is seasonably quiet, buying being of hand to mouth order.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

POINTERS—

Corn Syrups—15c. per case higher.

Sugar—Weak.

Prunes—Still easy.

Canned Pineapple—Rather scarce.

Toronto, April 11.—One of the changes of week is upward move in corn syrups of 15 cents per case in sympathy with the much stronger market for raw material which has been making substantial gains of late. Sugar holds a weak position while prunes also continue easy with different firms quoting various prices on certain sizes.

Trade is still on quiet side. Easter demand for cetrain lines worked for a slight improvement last week. Some jobbers express opinion that city trade is somewhat better but bad roads in country districts are no doubt having an adverse effect on trade. The frequent dips in temperature are not conducive to housecleaning, so that demand for housecleaning lines is not as good as it would be under more favorable conditions. Warmer weather and opening of navigation should work for greater activity.

Great deal of complaint is heard at present time regarding delayed transportation of goods at this point, trouble being found with both incoming and outgoing shipments. Last week's Teamsters' Strike was a short-lived affair, but still it added somewhat to congested condition as did also the Easter holidays. Facilities for handling goods with rapidity at this point are apparently far from adequate. For past two years there was always congestion during spring and fall rush but it is now getting to be a chronic condition.

SUGAR.—Sugar is weak in sympathy with same conditions existing in market for raws. Sugar situation in United States is unsettled, causing a weakness that is reflected on this side of line. There are three big factors depressing market at present time. There is the financial depression by reason of English coal strike, talk of tariff revision on sugar in United States, which has weakened ideas of holders of Porto Rico raws, while third is favorable outurn of Cuban crop, which points to full 1,800,000 tons estimated if suitable weather for grinding continues.

Meanwhile refined trade continues of a hand to mouth order.

SYRUP AND MOLASSES. — Corn syrups have been advanced this week. It will be remembered that two weeks ago we pointed out that starch had been advanced and as the same conditions affected syrups, they were regarded as holding a strong position. The corn market has been making big jumps upward and this week quotations on both dark and light colored syrup were raised 15 cents per case. The advance on barrels is ½ cent per pound, and ¼ cent on quarters and halves. Trade in corn syrups still continues quite good and under the big advances in corn, syrups are still regarded as holding quite a strong position.

Maple syrup is moving well, a substantial trade being done in new make at many points.

DRIED FRUITS.—Easier feeling by reason of good sized stocks being carried and lack of brisk demand still continues in prunes and some further declines are recorded by a number of firms. Apparently some jobbers find themselves carrying larger stocks of this line than they care to for the season and thus values in buyer's favor. It is, however, difficult to get an exact line on prune values as different firms find themselves differently situated on certain sizes. "I don't see any reason for any big break in prunes," said one buyer. "The season of big demand is just opening up and it must be remembered there are several months' demand yet to supply."

Other lines of dried fruits hold steady position. Dates are in rather small supply while figs are not over plentiful. Currants on primary market are firmer. Local jobbers are carrying fairly good stocks.

"Currants should be going out well now," said one dealer. "You know that during past couple of years they have come into great favor as material for pie." Currants are not only comparatively reasonable but make excellent pie and no doubt many retailers could sell a good deal more by bringing this fact before customers. This is the time of year when housewife is rather in a quandary as to material for pie, and all suitable lines should be pushed.

Coast dried fruit market continues weaker and lower, both prunes and raisins included.

TEA.—Large supplies of inferior stalky teas both from India and Ceylon during last two months have caused lower quotations for common tea; only, however for undesirable teas. Demand for all grades has never been stronger and with really good quality, buying has been keen. Russians have been strong buyers and appear to have no limits at all for teas they want. Leaf teas therefore, with flavor have all been disposed of at firm prices.

COFFEE.—Strong market still continues in coffee, but no changes have been recorded in local quotations. Prices are already high and dealers under such conditions do not expand values unless absolutely necessary. Considering high prices, trade on whole is reported fair.

NUTS.—New Brazil nuts are being pushed by some retailers to advantage. Fact that they are new helps in their sale. On whole trade in nuts is not brisk, although shelled varieties are moving well.

CANNED GOODS.

TORONTO.—Demand for canned goods might be described as fairly good for season. Many lines are moving quite slowly. Others are fairly brisk. In fruits, strawberries, raspberries and blueberries are the lines in scant supply, some firms reporting complete clean-up.

In vegetables, tomatoes, even in face of present high prices seem to be line that is moving most briskly. Peas are quiet and have been, the high price curf tailing the demand.

"There are many firms carrying larger stock of peas," said one firm, "than I believe they can reasonably get rid of. I wouldn't be surprised at a weakening before season ends."

"Yes, there was a small delivery of peas last year," said another, "but you must remember that in view of previous year's experience, most jobbers bolstered up orders considerably last year and while the delivery was small, the pack was much larger than the year before. Added to this high prices have curtailed demand."

On account of high prices on peas this year, a number of firms have introduced soaked peas.

Stocks of pineapples are rather scarce at present but winter pack of Hawaiian pines will arrive in couple of weeks. One firm quotes Hawaiian 0s. at $2.45, and Singapore 1½s. at $1.65 to $1.75.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

POINTERS—

California Fruits—Weaker.

Corn Syrup—Up 20c case.

Winnipeg, April 11.—One of the features of the market this week is a weaker feeling in California dried fruits and an easing off in some varieties at any time would not be a great surprise.

As regards the general outlook, March collections have been none too good, but business is active and outlook considered excellent. Farmers are busy on the land, the recent snow storm having caused but little delay in operations.

New business openings in new towns are numerous and are likely to be an important feature of the season.

In Winnipeg there are no unemployed and the season promises to be the most important yet in both civic and private enterprise. Should labor disputes not intervene everything points to a year of great development and prosperity.

SYRUPS.—A fairly good trade continues in syrups. Stronger feeling in corn syrups has resulted in an advance of 20 cents per case. It will be remembered that starch was advanced in price two weeks ago and as syrup is governed by the same conditions, the advance was not unexpected.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

St. John, April 10.—While business during past week has been promising and well within the standard for Easter, the markets have seen few changes. Sugar last week declined ten cents in all grades, due to uneasiness and nervous condition of southern markets and conflicting reports, while beans are remarkably high, both yellow eye and white. Both compound and pure lards are higher and show tendency to advance still more and same may be said of barrelled pork, domestic and United States.

Country market was liberally stocked for Easter with eggs, ham, bacon and other articles, and the meat supply, beef and veal in particular, was exceptionally good. As was expected, eggs, being plentiful, sold cheaply but the demand was very brisk.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, April 11.—Wholesale and retail grocers report business good during Easter week. With exception of sugar prices most lines have tendency to go higher. At the present time there is practically a butter famine in Halifax. Quantity of local made butter coming to market is limited. Some dealers here have imported butter from Quebec during week and others are using New Zealand. The situation here is unprecedented.

There was some evidence of a "corner" in eggs during week but it was only partially successful. Stocks were held back and wholesale price was moved up to 25 cents per dozen, an advance of three cents. Country vendors then came in and began to retail eggs at 25 cents, and wholesale price eased off to 22 cents.

Extra standard granulated sugar is now quoted at $5.50, United Empire $5.40, and Bright Yellow $5.30.

Beans are also advancing. Prime are now quoted $2.50 and yellow eye at $2.80.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE R. M. A.

lation will be asked to have it become law.

Transient Traders' Law.

The following resolution was another considered:—

"That it is the opinion of this meeting that a full enquiry should be made into the many conditions that exist in the various parts of this province regarding peddlers and transient traders, and that an Act should be prepared suitable to the various conditions and every effort should be put forth to have it made law at the next session of the Ontario Government."

It was carried with the following amendment: "And we recommend that all parties who solicit or take orders for any articles of merchandise direct to the consumer be included in the peddlers' act and they be treated the same as peddlers."

A suggestion to add a clause that wholesalers who sell to consumers in local places should also be licensed was made and this will be gone into by the executive.

The question of wholesalers selling direct to consumers was considered at some length. "When I know of any selling direct," remarked one member, "I simply cut him off."

J. W. Burgess of Bala, Muskoka District, was one of those who had many complaints to offer in this respect.

Employer's Liability.

The next resolution was as follows:—

"That whereas there is now before the Ontario Legislature a proposal to bring in a measure to be known as The Employers' Liability Act, and from such information as can be gathered it appears to be the intention of such act to make employers financially responsible for accidents that occur to their employes; if this should be the intention of this proposed Act we recommend that retail merchants should be exempt from its provisions."

This was explained by E. C. Matthews and E. M. Trowern, the latter pointing out that down in Quebec, the retailers had to fight hard to get retail dealers exempt from liability in case of accident to their employes. The bill principally referred to manufacturers. When the new bill is drafted by the Legislature it will be watched closely by the association and if this exemption is not made it will be fought as strongly as possible.

Rights of the Trade.

A resolution respecting the rights of the trade was:—

"That in view of the fact that a further amendment is necessary to the Criminal Code in order to enable the retail trade to consult with and make fair arrangements with the wholesale trade and with manufacturers we therefore again urge upon the Dominion Board the necessity of securing the necessary amendment from the Dominion Government."

Mr. Trowern stated that at the present time no body of retailers can get together and agree among themselves to decline to deal with a certain wholesaler who may, for instance, be selling direct to the consumer.

"But this association under our charter can acquaint its members of the fact that some wholesaler is selling direct and can advise all the members not to purchase from that wholesaler. Our charter gives us this power but the power is confined only to this association. My object in getting the amendment referred to in the resolution is to be able to confer with wholesalers to get them, for instance, to agree not to sell direct and if one does sell direct, to be able to take the matter up with the wholesale trade and say to the wholesaler who breaks his agreement, 'We'll cut you off.'"

The resolution was adopted and will be forwarded to the Dominion Board.

Other resolutions adopted were the following:—

"That inasmuch as mail order and catalogue houses depend entirely upon securing their trade through the publication of catalogues, we deem it to be in the best interests of the public and those merchants who desire to do an honest business to have a law passed making it a criminal offence to falsely advertise any article."

"That we recommend that the Dominion Board of our Association consider the advisability of pointing out to the Government that in the event of a Tariff Commision being appointed that one of the members of said commission should have a ful knowledge of the retail trade."

Educational Campaign.

"That inasmuch as retail merchants have a knowledge of merchandise that is unknown to the general public, and as the public are misinformed as to the real nature and value of the majority of goods offered for sale through catalogues by mail order houses, it is the opinion of this meeting that the Executive should use all the means in their power to educate the public up to the knowledge that they can be better served and their community greatly improved by spending their money in their own home town."

Opposition to Bulk Sales Act.

N. Cameron opposed the Bulk Sales Act now before the Legislature on the grounds that a merchant shouldn't have to get the consent of 51 per cent. of his creditors if he desired to sell out. "The moment a prospective buyer sees such a statement it would probably end the negotiations, even if the seller were an honest man."

E. C. Matthews pointed out that while the bill would prevent in many cases honest men from selling, the dishonest man could sell privately in pieces and defeat the purpose of the legislation.

It was decided to oppose the principle of the bill.

The New Officers.

The new officers were elected as follows:—

President—A. Weseloah, Berlin.

1st Vice-Pres.—E. C. Matthews, Toronto.

2nd Vice-Pres.—N. C. Cameron, Goderich.

Secretary—E. M. Trowern, re-elected.

Treasurer—M. Moyer, re-elected.

John McClellan, of Bowmanville, was elected a representative to the National Exhibition Association. The five officers above elected will represent the association on the Dominion Board.

Place and date of next annual meeting will be left to the executive.

FOOD LEGISLATION.

A meeting of the baking powder manufacturers of the Canadian Manufacturer's Association was held in Toronto on Thursday last to discuss the new standards for baking powder proposed by the Dominion analyst, A. McGill. A number of them will go to Ottawa on Friday of this week to see Mr. McGill regarding the proposed standard.

Island Fisheries, Limited, has been incorporated at $20,000. The head office is at St. John, N.B.

The firm of W. H. Escott Co., wholesale brokers and manufacturers' agents, was changed on April 1st to Escott & Harmer. Mr. Harmer will take charge of the office department.

Rolled Oats 15c. Per Sack Higher

In Sympathy With Upward Trend of Raw Material—Cornmeal is also Firmer and Higher at Some Centers—Spring Lull has Had Little Effect on Cereals—Retailers Who are Pushing Flour Getting Good Results.

An advance of 15 cents per bag or 30 cents per barrel was made in rolled oats during the week. This is in keeping with the predictions in these columns during the last two weeks, marked firmness having been noted.

For some time now raw material has been climbing to a higher level and naturally the finished product followed in the same direction. Previous to advance many mills booked considerable business ahead, so that trade is fairly well supplied at the lower level of prices.

Cornmeal continues firm in sympathy with trend of raw material both here and across the line and some further advances are noted at some centres in this commodity. One manufacturer of cornmeal in packages has advanced the price 10 cents per case of two dozen 10-cent packages.

It is usual for some slight slackening off to occur in demand for cereals when warmer weather puts in an appearance, but millers report that spring lull has as yet had little effect. It depends to a considerable extent on the retail grocer. If he continues to display and push cereals he will find that consumption will be much better than if he suggested it as an unseasonable line by failing to keep it before customers.

Flour trade is reported as fair but by no means overly brisk. This is another line that should not be neglected at this season. Those grocers who are putting some effort behind flour are finding good results. With wheat showing a stronger front, flour is regarded at moment as holding a quite firm position.

Freight congestion which has been holding back both raw material and finished product from reaching their destination does not appear to be quite so serious as was the case some time ago.

MONTREAL.

FLOUR.—A moderate demand, marked by no special activity but considered fair for the season is generally reported. Those retailers who are pushing the sale of flour are finding an appreciably demand.

Manitoba 1st patents in car lots are bringing $5.60 and there appears to be no special tendency to market, although steady.

Ontario millers using water power are having some difficulty by reason of floods and spring freshets. Offerings of Ontario flour are rather on the scanty side with prices steady.

CEREALS.—The emphasis given to strength and firmness in rolled oats last week was well warranted as is shown by the advance of 15 cents per bag in price during the week. Raw material has for some time now been moving gradually upward, making a rise in finished product necessary. There was a good percentage of business booked by most firms at the lower figure previous to the advance. Consumptive demand on this line should still be on a good scale.

Cornmeal is firm at present price in sympathy with raw material, some firms having firmer ideas than reflected in quotations. Ten cent packages have been advanced 5 cents per dozen by one firm.

Tomatoes and Celery Selling Well

Shipments From Florida Showed Marked Increase — First Shipment of Egyptian Onions Arrives—Good Demand for Them—Easter Helped Sale of Fruits but Warmer Weather Needed Before Activity Will Set In.

Tomatoes and celery are at present big sellers, a good trade having been done in them around Easter. Both these lines are coming from Florida and quantity arriving on Canadian markets has shown a marked increase of late. The quality of tomatoes arriving is good but prices are holding at a firm level. Celery has shown little change in the past week or so. Western Canada is taking some California stock but Eastern provinces are using Florida nearly exclusively as the price is more reasonable.

Onion situation has been somewhat relieved by the first shipment of Egyptian onions which are a good crop this year and will be fairly reasonable in price. However, with Spanish closing up and home grown in small compass, the demand is brisk and primary prices are holding quite high at present.

The constant downward dips in temperature is anything but good for the fruit trade. Last week there was a better demand for several lines by reason of the Easter demand but continued warm and bright weather is needed. With more favorable climatic conditions greater activity would shortly develop.

Pineapples are selling for table use only. Price being a little high for a big demand. A normal movement of oranges is in evidence. With warmer weather, banana trade would be better as also would demand for lemons. Market for lemons is quite steady as it will be end of May before new crop Verdelli are ready and before that time a warm spell of weather might bring stocks into small compass.

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUITS.—Green fruits for week have offered a strong market. Easter trade greatly increased the demand, making room for the new arrivals. Prices remain firm with supplies in all lines reaching the favorable mark.

GREEN FRUITS. — Easter trade brought a considerably improved demand for certain lines of fruits. Cold weather still continues to hamper trade at intervals.

Oranges are moving fairly well, California stock being about only variety on market just now. Cuban and Florida grapefruit is offered. Pineapple prices are not yet reasonable enough to induce heavy sales.

Apples as has been noted before are doing better. Spies are in scant supply, barrels ranging $5 to $5.50 for No. 1 barrels, and boxes bringing $2. Some fancy Western Oregon apples are quoted at $3.50 per box.

VEGETABLES. — Egyptian onions have arrived on market and are quoted at $4.25 for 112-pound sacks. They are meeting with a good demand. Beets, carrots and parsnips are practically unobtainable and turnips will soon be in the same boat, some dealers quoting as high as 80 cents per barrel for them. Florida celery is moving out freely at present reasonable prices.

Asparagus is lower this week while new cabbage is down to $5 per crate.

It was pointed out in these columns during past few weeks that potato market could be expected to firm up again. This has been the case and some dealers are asking as high as $2 per bag for New Brunswick stock. Further shipments of Irish potatoes are said to be on the way and will probably have effect of keeping prices from climbing higher.

Trade in new potatoes is on a small scale yet. They come from Bermuda and are quoted at $3 per bushel.

Fruits and Vegetables That Will Sell Now

Pines for Table Use a Popular Fruit—Grapefruits, Strawberries, Oranges and Bananas Among the Other Important Fruits—In Vegetables Dealers Should Push Lettuce, Cucumbers, Cabbage, etc.—A Window Display.

The fruit and vegetable department of the store may be made an extensive and profitable one at this time of year if the proper care and attention is devoted to it by the grocer.

The pineapple season is now opening up affording the dealer further opportunities for extending his total sales of fruit. Just at the present time the pines will be selling for table use only, but by keeping them well displayed and speaking about them to customers, an appreciable trade may be done. The grocer and his clerks should bear in mind that home preserves are in small supply at this season and the housewife is wondering, what she can have for dessert. Here is where the salesman comes in with a suggestion of pineapple. Later on when prices become more reasonable will be the time to commence the campaign to sell pines for preserving purposes.

This is the season of the year when the palate craves for something out of the usual and delicacies meet with a good sale. Strawberries are moving along freely from Florida now and although the price still remains quite high, yet when seen, they are so tempting that many a customer will find her purse large enough to purchase at least a box or two.

A Neatly Arranged Fruit Display Which Could be Duplicated with Profit.

Vegetables That Can be Sold.

Florida tomatoes and celery are also lines that are selling well at the present time. Tomatoes are of excellent quality and fairly reasonable in price, while celery has now reached a level that should work for big sales. Care should be taken with this line to keep it from taking on a withered appearance, as it is the fresh and appetizing appearance that sells it.

The dealer has certainly a goodly array of lines available with which to tempt the purchaser at the present time. In fruits besides pineapples and strawberries, there are oranges and grapefruit, while bananas, now that the temperature is more favorable, will be selling better.

In vegetables there is an extensive list including head lettuce, cucumbers, new cabbage, asparagus, green onions, cauliflower, mushrooms, sweet potatoes and new potatoes.

Use the Window.

Window display is an excellent method of creating demand for these goods. Especially is this true just now as with warmer weather, more people are on the street and a display is more likely to secure their attention.

In arranging a display, one of the chief things to be observed is cleanliness. Displays should be well balanced and symmetrical as far as possible. By keeping an eye to the color scheme in placing the different lines in the window, some very attractive and appetizing display may be made.

MADE SURE OF HIS GUESS.

It was quite a fad a few years ago for grocers to fill quart jars with beans, setting the jar in a window, and offering two dollars or some other prize to the person who guessed nearest the number of beans the jar contained. There were no ends of guesses, the figures being all the way from almost nothing to hundreds of thousands.

There was one man who quietly bought some beans at one of these stores, filled a jar of the same kind with them at home, poured them out and counted them. Coming back to the store, he entered his count among the guesses and got the two dollars. He was a retired man of means with nothing else to do and getting the two dollrs was like finding it. He had made his money by using his head—by figuring, by the right kind of system, if you please.

A peculiarity of the grocery business is that many men have not the enterprise or analytical faculty of counting the beans and thus know what they can do and can't do in the way of profit-making. Every motion they make represents at least one bean, and some things count a good many beans. It is a fact that most men who succeed devote no little time to figuring and calculating.

While system, like everything else, can be overdone, the average grocer does not do as much figuring or calculating as modern conditions seem to make necessary.

Fish Still a Staple Article of Food

Even Though Lent is Over Fish Department Should Not Now be Neglected—Can be Made a Profitable Line—Arrival of Lake Fish Delayed by Heavy Ice on Lakes—Good Friday a Bumper Day in Fish.

Lent is over for another year and judging from reports it has been a satisfactory season this year for both wholesaler and retailer. It has been marked by extremely favorable selling weather and this assists a great deal. The last week of season was also a satisfactory one, Good Friday being a bumper day.

It is quite true that Lent, with its accompanying demand for fish is over but that is absolutely no reason why the fish department or counter of the store should now be forgotten or neglected. There are those dealers ready to consider that with Lent past the fish business is a dead issue. This is not so, for fish is still a staple article of food for the householder and the grocer who maintains his stocks in proper condition will find it still a profitable line.

The end of Lent found stocks on most markets cleaned up to a good safe level. Here and there on some markets an odd line will be found in more plentiful supply than dealers would wish, but these are few.

As the season advances trade will turn more to fresh caught varieties of fish. Already some sea fish are coming along, fresh halibut selling well. On account of the tardiness of the ice in disappearing from the lakes, lake fish will be later than usual this year in putting in an appearance.

QUEBEC.

MONTREAL.—Now that Lenten trade has come to a close, fish again resumes quiet attitude. The decreased demand has allowed some prices to drop and for the week pike, fancy fillets and skippers declined. Halibut is scarce, but supplies at present are sufficient to fill the demand. Business for the present is brisk.

TORONTO.—Lent is over but the fish business is by no means dead issue. It has now returned to a regular and even level with an appreciable trade for the season being transacted. Weather has been very kind at intervals, which has helped considerably.

The end of Lent found stocks in general well cleaned up. Several lines of frozen fish have been cleared off the list completely. Fresh caught halibut from the Pacific Coast is offered at 12 cents per pound and fresh flounders at 7½ cents.

Trade as the season advances will turn more to fresh varieties, but thickness of ice on the lakes will make the arrival of lake fish much later than is usual.

NOVA SCOTIA.

HALIFAX.—Last week was a banner one in fish. All dealers report having sales of all kinds. There was only a fair supply of fresh fish landed during week and there was keen competition for it. Large haddock are scarce here, but at some of the shore ports receipts have been fully up to the average. Demand for fish from points inland was heavier than at same time other years.

Sales of smoked haddies and fillets have been enormous. The smoke houses have been working overtime to keep up with demand. Salt herring have been selling freely.

REPLY FROM MR. RYAN.

Question of Methods of Carrying on Association Work Again to the Fore.

Editor Canadian Grocer.—In your issue of the 5th inst. in reply to my previous letter, Mr. Moyer would have me understand that he was 18 years in the retail grocery business in the City of Toronto and was successful. I fail to see why the above qualifications entitle Mr. Moyer to be a judge of what the retail grocers of this province desire.

As far as him being successful, I am sure we are all glad of that, but there are hundreds of retired retail grocers in this province who have been successful, but that does not entitle them to be critics for the retail grocers of to-day. Therefore, I repeat that Mr. Moyer does not know the conditions of the retail grocery business of to-day one-half as well as the men in the business, notwithstanding the knowledge he has obtained through his discussion of conditions with thousands of grocers all over the Dominion. As I stated in my last letter, it is only the man in the business that comes face to face with conditions every day.

Union of Manufacturers.

Mr. Moyer's second question is what has the manufacturer of biscuits in common with the manufacturer of furniture? A great deal. Does he think we cannot see any further than our noses? Why, any sensible man knows that the manufacturers are organized principally to fight for freight rates and better shipping facilities and all other legislation that should come before the railway commission affecting their rights. For instance, the increase in express charges which they fought so successfully in conjunction with the Boards of Trade. But if the manufacturer of biscuits wants to increase or decrease the prices of biscuits, who does he call in to discuss the question? Why of course, the other biscuit manufacturers, so that is why the retail grocer calls in his brother grocer to discuss conditions instead of discussing it with other merchants.

Mr. Moyer seems to be laboring under the delusion that the Ontario Retail Grocers' Association is fighting against the Retail Merchants' Association. Nothing of the kind. We say to the retail grocers, "the proper body for you to belong to, where you can do the most good for yourself and your brother grocers, is the Ontario Retail Grocers' Association." To the other merchants we say "go ahead and organize, if you want to. We wish your Godspeed; we will give you all the assistance we can."

Representing the Grocers.

He gets sarcastic in his letter over the questions of the Retail Merchants' Association having the authority to appear before the Guild. The role does not become him. Just imagine such an answer—"Up-to-date grocers gave me the authority!" What is the meaning of up-to-date grocers? Does it mean, as most people think, the grocer with the most modern fixtures, or the grocer with an automobile delivery, or on the other hand does he mean the most successful grocer or the grocer with a college education who is a good public speaker? However, it does mean this much, according to Mr. Moyer's letter, that the vast majority of retail grocers of this province are not up-to-date grocers. Only the small number that are marching under the generalship of Mr. Moyer are up-to-date. Who are they?—we never hear of them. Name them.

The Legal Right.

Mr. Moyer refers me to your issue of March 29th, on page 48, as his answer to asking the Guild to discontinue selling to consumers. Read his answer, "Make the wholesale houses live up to it through the legal right we have."

Imagine the retail grocers going to law to make the wholesales discontinue selling to consumers. The answer is absurd; we would have just as much chance of gaining our point legally as a camel would have to pass through the eye of an needle. Mr. Moyer's very answer shows how helpless they are in the hands of the Guild. We have the remedy in our own hands if we had all the retail grocers in one organization. Nobody recognizes this more than the Guild. They are well aware of the small number of grocers belonging to the Retail Merchants' Association.

One of the members in his address at the meeting of the Dominion Grocers' Guild, an account of which is published in your issue of Feb. 16th, 1912, says: "The wholesaler should sell only to the retailer (mark the word only) and the retailer should buy from the wholesaler and sell to the consumer (mark the word consumer), and the manufacturer should sell only to the wholesale distributor." To this we say Amen, because we know it is only a prayer which will be answered when the Guild enacts a law in the constitution making the offender liable to a fine for each offence—and they know it could be collected—no member of the Guild would do anything that would endanger his membership or make him liable to expulsion.

If that body would give the retail grocers an answer like the above instead of, "That in view of the differences in conditions existing at different centres, it would be well to leave this matter in the hands of each individual association, as every town has certain conditions peculiar to itself.' Compare the above answer of the Guild with what the member in his address said and you will say with the poet, "consistency thou art a jewel."

If the manufacturer sells the retailer then he is ostracised. But if the wholesaler sells the consumer, that is different; he has excuses by the dozen which do not clear him.

The London Trade.

Mr. Moyer knows only too well that the retail grocers of London do not consider for one moment the men we are doing business with are our enemies. He has attended our banquets and saw something he never saw in any other city or town in Canada. Every wholesale house in the city has a member of the firm at our annual banquet and there are the most friendly relations existing between the two branches of the trade. Furthermore, when we ask the wholesale men to come to our meetings to discuss matters of trade, they willingly come, sometimes at great inconvenience to themselves. It is not the wholesalers that we have to deal with, it is the body to which they belong.

All Branches Must Work.

We must fight for our rights as hard as the wholesaler is fighting for his, for we recognize he has his troubles. He is up against it with the jobbing house that is on the wholesaler's list, which the large majority of our associations think is unfair and should not be so. Then he has the manufacturer selling package tea to retail fruit stores direct. If the wholesaler and the retailer would all come together in every city like we do ocasionally in London it would be better for the trade. Mr. Moyer's letter from first to last is a plea for the other retail merchants outside of the grocery business. We appreciate his kind heartedness, but why should we listen to his appeal? We have our own battles to fight. I admit there are times we could fight together to have certain legislation passed, such as the act re garnishment, and when that time comes we will join hands with them in a common cause.

In conclusion, Mr. Editor, let me answer Mr. Moyer's appeal for watchful officers who should be supported and not hindered. I believe he is sincere and I am sure if he would break away from his associates in office and go back into the business he made such a success of for 18 years that the Ontario Retail Grocers' Association would open their arms and welcome him.

E. J. RYAN,
Retail Grocer.

London, April 8, 1912.

Produce & Provisions

Lard and Provisions Continue Firm

In Sympathy With Stronger Feeling in Raw Material—Higher Prices Quoted on Pork Products at Some Centres—No Quotable Change in Butter Yet, But Easiness Ahead—Enough Eggs to Supply Easter Demand—Dealers Say Prices Should Go Lower.

For past couple of weeks a firmer feeling has prevailed in all lines of pork products, and at several centres values have been increased considerably on some lines. Of course the trouble started with the raw material, the live hogs. Under stinted supplies of the porkers, values moved upward with marked rapidity, and in consequence of this and the better demand for provisions with the passing of Lent, prices began to expand in sympathy, and several lines have been affected.

Lard is one of the commodities which has been enhanced in value the most. For some time now, as we have pointed out, this line under the high price prevailing for butter, has been moving out freely. Stocks were kept closely cleaned up, and with the higher prices for raw material, higher lard was to be expected.

That easier feeling in butter which dealers noted as approaching some time ago, is taking its time about arriving. To the consumer waiting for lower prices before using butter on his bread, it must seem a lengthy period. However, it is on the way. Supplies of new make have been increasing but very slowly. It must be considered that feed is scarce and high, and is probably having some effect. Warmer weather and the appearance of some grass would help a great deal. Receipts of American butter at some centres has created an easier feeling, and as the Canadian new make should shortly show more substantial increase, the near future should hold better prices for the man who has to purchase butter. Meanwhile, demand for this commodity is mostly for small lots.

Demand and supply of eggs measured up fairly evenly for the Easter trade on the whole. Most centres had enough to go around. Some had a quantity to the good. Demand during the last few days of last week was heavy, but all available supplies were sent to market for the occasion. In this line there is also lower prices ahead, but dealers are uncertain just when that easiness will become noticeable. At this time of year and with Lent and Easter past, dealers feel that prices should be lower. At this time other years dealers are commencing to put supplies away in storage, but present prices forbid that this year.

Roads in many sections of the country are in a bad condition, interfering with shipments of butter and eggs to market.

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS.—A fairly active trade continues to be done in hams, bacon and lard, there being a steady demand from local and country buyers for supplies. Market is moderately brisk, with no noted change in prices. The call for pork is good at repeated quotations.

BUTTER.—We often have to look for expected things a long time before we get them. Such has been the case in butter, for while dealers have discerned easiness in the distance for some time it has not yet arrived. While quotations remain unaltered, the situation remains much the same as outlined during the past two weeks. Old goods are cleaned up and new make slowly showing an increase. When increase becomes large enough, prices will break. Production should shortly show a more substantial increase. Bad roads have probably held up receipts somewhat.

EGGS.—Easter found enough eggs to supply the demand on the local market and a few to spare, and as a consequence prices eased slightly during the latter part of week, but this was not marked. Demand as usual was on a large scale, but in anticipation of Easter demand all available supplies were rushed to market.

It seems fairly certain that prices will ease some more. At this time of year dealers usually begin to put away some supplies in storage, but the price is certainly too fancy for that just now, and they feel they should be lower. Receipts are undoubtedly held up to some extent by the state of the country roads.

CHEESE.—There is nothing new to report in cheese. Supplies are small and values remain firm and are likely to continue so. Demand is mostly of a hand to mouth order.

Making Money From Cooked Meat Dept.

Stratford Firm Features Fact That Meats They Sell are Boneless—Meat Slicer Helps Considerably as it Can Be Operated by Girls—Display Refrigerator Part of Equipment—How Selling Price is Reduced.

"You can't eat bones—our meats are all boneless," reads the sign in the provision department of a Stratford, Ont. store. The idea wished to be conveyed is that only boneless meats are handled in the store, a big trade being done in cooked hams, breakfast bacon and smoked roll. Many other lines including bologna and headcheese are also handled. The provision department in this store is operated to make money for the firm. It is quite a well known fact that the profit derived from this line in many stores is very small for the reason that considerable is lost in slicing, drying out and left over unsalable ends. In fact many grocers do not know whether they are making or losing money on their meats.

Arriving at Selling Price.

"Cost with this store," says the manager, "does not mean the price on the invoice but the price of the goods laid down at the store. In arriving at the price at which a line should sell we allow 1 lb. per ham for shrinkage and waste as we have found from experience that that is about the right amount. It is necessary, too, to make this allowance if the store wishes to make any profit."

Ends of hams and bacon are all cleared out at this store. They are sliced up, put on a plate and a "10c per lb." card placed on them, which price seems sufficiently low to find purchasers.

Meat Slicer Saves Money.

One of the time and money savers in this department in the opinion of the manager is the meat slicer. It was installed about a year ago and has given good service. Slicing without waste is one of its strong points. There is yet another. The meat is sliced properly, and this is appreciated by customers.

"We employ several young women," says the manager. "Now girls prove poor slicers with the ordinary knife but with this meat slicer they can do it just as well as a man. People you know want their goods right."

The meat slicer is also put to another use in this store. They have quite an extensive catering department and the machine is used for slicing bread and does it to perfection.

Have Display Refrigerator.

Flanking the provision department is a large display refrigerator where butter, cheese and other lines are kept at a proper temperature and are still where customers may see them and be thus reminded of these lines.

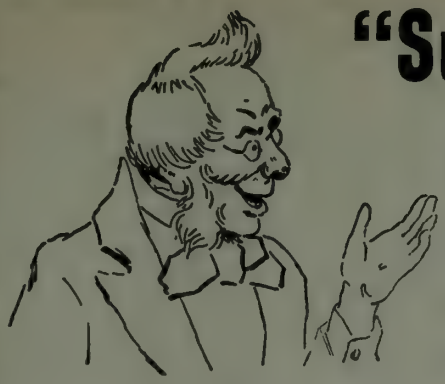
VEGETABLE TIME.

By A. H. H.

This is the time of the year when the vegetable department can be made to look attractive and of such a nature as to create business.

In the first place keep it clean and fresh looking. If a grocer is showing dried vegetables have them clean and free from dust and dirt. Study how to place them so that they may show up to the best advantage. There is a great knack in doing this properly.

Fresh vegetables can be made quite appetizing. Keep the display fresh looking. Crowd it if you want to. You can't overdo a fresh vegetable show. Line your display baskets with white paper. Mix your colors so as to make the whole attractive. Does it look appetizing to you? Then it should surely be to the onlooker who is hungry for the goods.



"Sure, BOUTILIER'S FILLETS Always Give Me A Good Profit"

MAGIC BAKING POWDER MAGIC BAKING POWDER

GROCERS: The mere fact that some brands of Baking Powder have the words "No Alum" on the label is not sufficient proof that they are what they are represented to be. Our chemists find a good many have "No Alum" on the outside of the package, but large quantities of it inside. See that all the ingredients are plainly stated on the label.

SODA-CRYSTALS (WASHING SODA)

Foreign Soda Crystals—and some of English manufacture—are being extensively offered for sale in this country which are grossly adulterated with Glauber-Salts (Sulphate of Soda), a cheap product which is not only entirely useless for washing purposes, but is even likely to injure the fabrics with which it comes in contact. The Adulterated Soda-Crystals, although nominally lower in price than BRUNNER MOND'S PURE SODA CRYSTALS, are in reality much dearer owing to the large quantity of useless and injurious matter which they contain.

FISH, however, is still a staple article of daily food for the householder. Most of our grocers are prone to consider the fish business at this time of the year a dead issue.

THIS IS A MISTAKE

NOW is the time for YOU to reap the profits when your competitor quits handling fish. IT IS WELL WORTH the time and trouble to prepare your store for handling fish the year round. It pays big dividends.

HOW MANY CONSUMERS crave a nice piece of fish and are denied same by the shortsighted policy of neglecting this line? Think it over. A widespread longing for fish food (the result of our desire for variety and good food) is prevalent and the profits for satisfying this want belong to the men who grasp the opportunity. "If there is one enterprise on earth," says John Wanamaker, "that a 'quitter' should leave severely alone, it is advertising. To make a success of advertising one must be prepared to stick like a barnacle on a boat's bottom

"He must know before he begins it tha he must spend money—lots of it.

"Somebody must tell him that he cannot hope to reap results commensurate with his expenditure early in the game.

How Many Clerks Earn $144 a Month?

A young man twenty-one years of age with only an ordinary Public School education, residing in a town with a population of 2,180, earned $144.00 during the month of January, 1912.

How he did it will be of significant interest to every man in every town in Canada, who possesses the initiative to enable him to carry through to success a similar undertaking.

This young man had said to himself time and again.

"I am not making enough money."

"I feel that I have the ability to earn more."

"I want to make faster progress."

His opportunity came when he saw an advertisement in The Canadian Grocer, which read:

"Representatives wanted—we will pay a good man good money to take orders for MacLean's Magazine."

He immediately applied for the agency in his town, which was granted him.

He received the appointment on January 2nd, and that very day commenced the work.

His position as a clerk in a general store brought him a salary of $40 a month. He worked six days and three evenings in the week at his regular duties. Three evenings were devoted to MacLean's Magazine.

For the month of January his total earnings were:

Salary from regular work in general store	$ 40.00
Earnings from spare time work on MacLean's Magazine	104.00
Total income	$144.00

HOW DID HE DO IT?

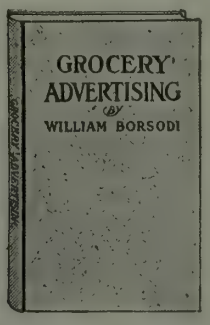
Grocery Advertising has made Fortunes

for the retailer who has used the ads. published in this remarkable book. They are not clever nonsensical ads; nor are they fanciful freaks. The selling phrases and descriptive advertising matter in this book cover every article sold by the grocer in practical, profit-pulling language.



The book is divided into 7 departments, making it a simple matter to prepare a good ad.

Grocery Advertising is a book you have been looking for—it gives you the fruits of nineteen years' practical advertising.

Don't Worry Unnecessarily

It's a safe bet to say that half the business worries of a grocery proprietor are centred on bookkeeping and accounting.

There is one thing certain, that if you gave more time to grocery selling and grocery buying, your business would be more profitable. Here is the remedy:

The "BARR" ACCOUNT REGISTER

is the practical one-writing account system. It has demonstrated beyond doubt that it can abolish that drudgery and worrisome retail bookkeeping that robs YOU of the time you should be giving to the commercial end of your business.

Ask us to demonstrate.
It will be a pleasure.

The Dry, Clean, Hygienic Refrigerator

We are not conducting a crusade against zinc-lined refrigerators, but we will say that you are not observing the highest health standard by using a zinc-lined refrigerator. It's reasonable—the metal corrodes, and the oxide therefrom is a poison to milk and food.

THE NORTH STAR REFRIGERATOR

is lined with odorless wood or enamel. There's a difference. It is of superior construction and unequalled for economy of the ice.
The North star is a scientific refrigerator with dry air circulation. The interior of the ice box is so dry that a match can be lighted inside the door any time when the refrigerator is filled with ice. Every refrigerator is guaranteed.

Customer Wanted Something Better

The grocer should realize that when a customer buys Fruit Jam or Canned Fruit, she wants the best for her money, and if an inferior product is passed on to her and it does not come up to what she expected, she will not buy it again, that's sure. But, what's more, she may go elsewhere to get her supplies.

KITCHENER BRAND

Fruit and Vegetable Products

Since first introduced the sales have been rapid and continuous. This would not be if to-day we lost the customer made yesterday. Goods bearing the Kitchener Brand is what people are craving for. There is satisfaction for the grocer in knowing that the goods passed out will meet every requirement and that the patron will return for more. Now that the home supply is low is the time to lay in a good stock.

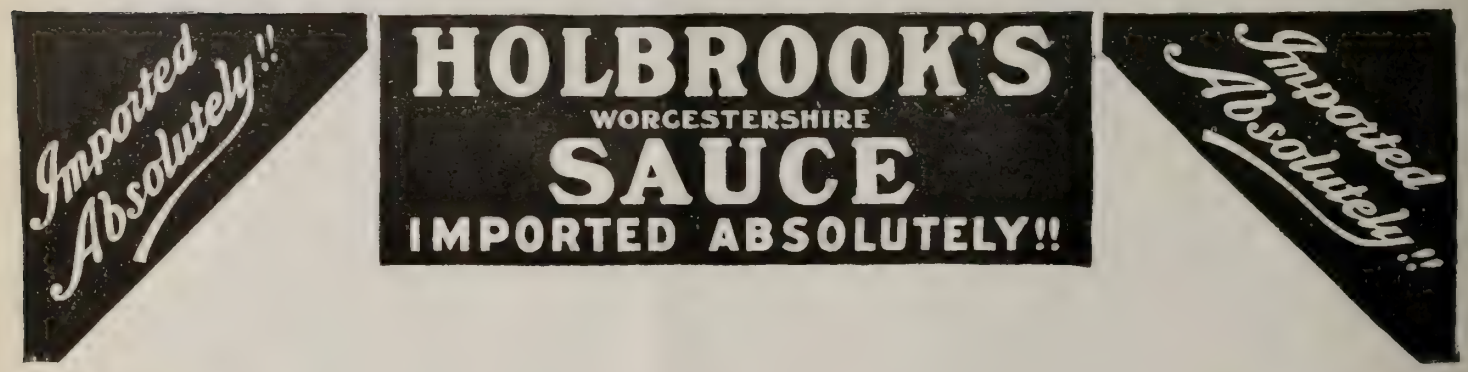
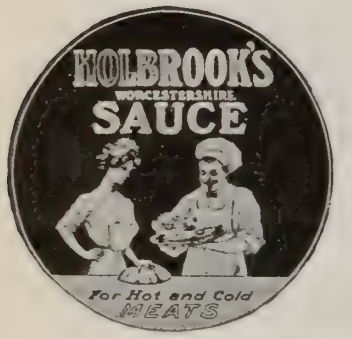
HOLBROOK'S SAUCE Window Trim

FREE





THIS window trim is lithographed in seven colors and makes a very unique and handsome display. The entire trim is in seven pieces and can be fixed to a window in two minutes and taken down in a few seconds. Everything is ready, no pasting is required, no preparation of any kind. The objectionable features of other window displays have been entirely eliminated by the use of patent adhesive fasteners. A tiny adhesive fastener is placed at the corner of each sheet, merely remove the cotton protector and press it to the window and it is on, and it will remain on. When finished with, simply tear down, and not a single mark or sticky impression will be found on the window.

We are running an extensive advertising campaign in the leading newspapers throughout the Dominion. These window displays will draw the benefit of our publicity into your store.

We mail you the complete outfit free of all charges, distance doesn't matter. Yours for the asking. Send us a post card to-day.

A Delicious Necessity!

"CANADA FIRST" EVAPORATED MILK

The reduced, full cream, fresh cow's milk of the very first quality. All useless water is driven off by a special vacuum process, rendering it three-fold richer in butter fat and solids than the original milk. The process puts it in such a condensed form as to make it an absolute necessity for travelling, hunting and all outing, as well as household purposes.

Now is the right time for you to put in a stock for the outing season—there will be a large demand, and with Aylmer Condensed Milk on your shelves the sale is surely yours. Its genuine flavor and purity are known widely through the extensive advertising we do in magazines, newspapers, etc., thus creating a demand. A big season's business in condensed milk is assured you if you stock "CANADA FIRST" Brand.

Recent government inspection report on CANADA FIRST CONDENSED MILK read in part:—

"CANADA FIRST CONDENSED showed the highest percentage of butter fat and solids in excess of legal standard and high percentage of genuine food value."

IT IS AN IDEAL STOCK—GOOD DEMAND—GOOD PROFIT.

"HIGHER PRICES"

The world over the complaint is heard of "higher prices and increased cost of living" and this complaint has foundation in fact. But while prices have been advancing on other articles the cost of sugar has decreased to Consumers in Canada. To-day sugar is cheaper in Canada than in any other country of the world. On the other hand, while the cost is the lowest the quality is of the highest and

If you order Pyramids and receive a device similar in appearance, but not labelled as such---send them back.

Dear Sirs

The population in the three prairie provinces is increasing by leaps and bounds, and in 1912 we will have the largest immigration in the history of The Great West. We have been established in Winnipeg as Wholesale Commission Merchants and Brokers since 1882, 30 long years. Our business has increased so rapidly that we found it necessary to keep up with our increasing trade to establish branch houses west of Winnipeg, at Regina, Saskatoon, Calgary and Edmonton and we have now under Construction in Calgary a solid six-storey brick building, 50 x 120, and will be thoroughly equipped to take care of our increasing business at this growing Jobbing Centre. We will also construct this year at Edmonton a large warehouse to accommodate our increasing business at this great jobbing point. If you are not represented in the three prairie provinces and wish to reach out for the growing trade in The Great West write us, or to any of our branch houses. We are doing the largest commission business in Canada in our line and we are well organized and equipped to introduce any line handled by the Wholesale Grocery Trade. Whether by direct sales shipment to Jobbers, or setting Consignments—(against which we are at all times ready to make liberal cash advances). Write us if you wish to introduce your goods in this territory. Yours very truly,

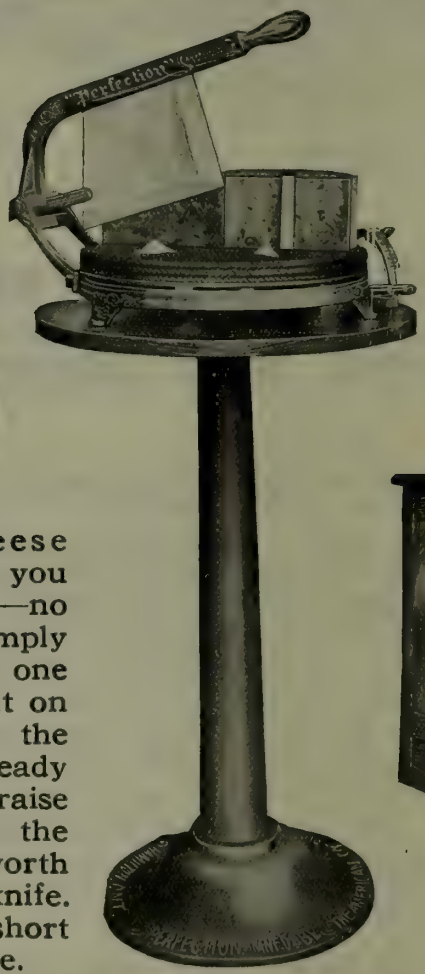
Give The Customers What They Ask For

One satisfied customer is worth more to you than a store full unsatisfied.

The Perfection Cheese Cutter

MADE IN CANADA

Giving the customers what they ask for on the face of it looks easy, eggs or sugar for instance. It is easy enough to count out one dozen eggs or whatever the order is; or by means of scales you have no trouble in weighing the required amount of sugar; but when it is cheese you are selling, what guarantee have you that you will not cut one or two cents' worth over the requested order. None whatever, unless you have a Perfection Cheese Cutter. Little as it may seem, it is just such unbusinesslike methods that lose you trade that could be solidly yours.



The Perfection Cheese Cutter guarantees you against loss of profit—no figuring required. Simply set the price mark on one scale against the weight on opposite scale, turn the thumbscrew and it is ready for business. Each raise of the small lever to the stop turns five cents' worth of cheese under the knife. It pays for itself in a short time and lasts a lifetime.

A handsome cabinet will add to your profits as well. It protects the cheese from dust and germs, making it perfectly sanitary and keeping the cheese fresh.

Such methods place the cheese business on a most satisfactory and pleasing basis for your customers and yourself.

Don't be misled. The safe way is the PERFECTION WAY.

A Biscuit For Every Occasion

Weston's Fancy Biscuits

To have the Weston Fancy Biscuit stand pre-eminent as the very choicest quality of biscuits that are marketed, has become a hobby with us, amounting almost to a fad.

To achieve this distinction we exercise the greatest care, employ the best skilled labor and use only pure and highest quality ingredients.

Weston's Cocoanut Macaroons, Fancy Macaroons, King's Mixed and Lady Fingers are four varieties put up in small glass front tins as shown in the large illustration; put up also in plain tins and bulk. These are regular trade winners and are unsurpassable in flavor and excellence.

Facts Concerning Our Modern Factory

It is interesting to note that the ovens in this plant are built and operated on the top floor. This prevents the biscuits being subjected to the influence of heat and gas as must happen when ovens are on the ground floor. The factory is designed from the latest suggestions and plans of the best American plants, is up-to-date and modern in every detail.

All customers and friends are cordially invited to call and visit us, and see the plant in operation.

George Weston Limited, Toronto

Quality Goods that know No Equal

Weston's Soda Biscuits

It is well known among customers of Soda Biscuits that Weston's is the largest 5c package of Soda Biscuits put up in Canada. They are packed in 24's and 48's with 24 biscuits to the package. We can use this argument as a strong selling point and find it successful. The quality of the sodas and the general satisfaction they give will hold the customer and make new ones for you.

Only the finest blend flour and purest shortenings are used in the manufacture of Weston's Soda Biscuits.

If you are not handling this splendid line, write for sample box. It will be gladly sent on request if you mention "The Canadian Grocer."

Olives

It will not be surprising when you make repeat orders for these high-grade olives, to hear you tell us of the rapid sales and good profits you have made by handling Olives packed by Dewar, Watson & Co. of Glasgow, Scotland. The quality is good and each bottle well worth the price--that's the "why" of popular favor.

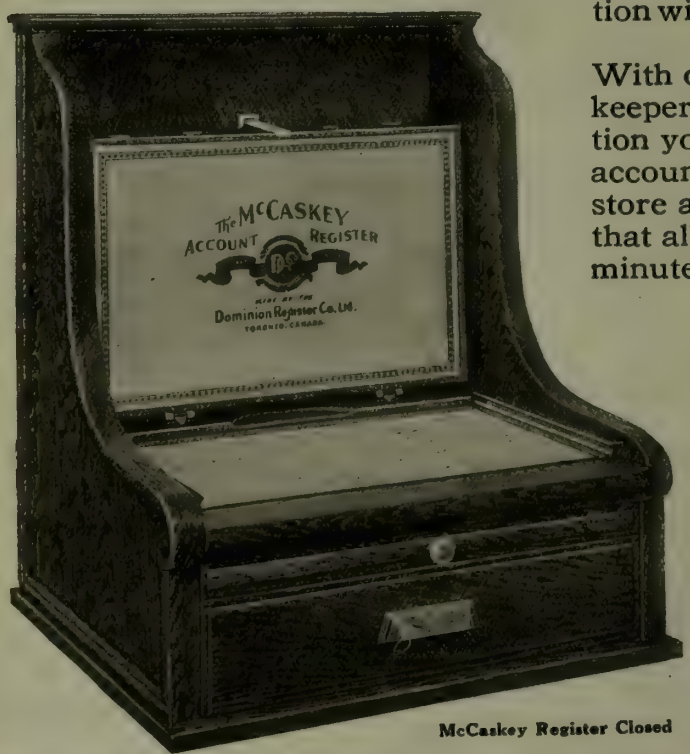
Success Comes Only To The Modern Method Merchant

Particularly is this true when coupled with book work of a retail grocery store. Friend, you are losing an advantage that means dollars to you if you are allowing your antiquated methods of keeping accounts spare you from your best personal usefulness to your business, i.e., that of buying and selling grocery goods; that is how your money is made.

The McCaskey Account Register

turns you and every retail salesman into a bookkeeper without your knowledge. The original slip or bill made out by the salesman—totalled at time of purchase—and handed to the customer completes the transaction with the McCaskey System. Simple, isn't it?



McCaskey Register Closed

With only one writing, without the aid of bookkeeper or books, at the close of each transaction you know exactly how each customer's account stands; and when you close your store at night you can go home in the thought that all your accounts are posted up to the minute.

Get account systematized—it pays. Drop us a card for demonstration of the McCaskey System.

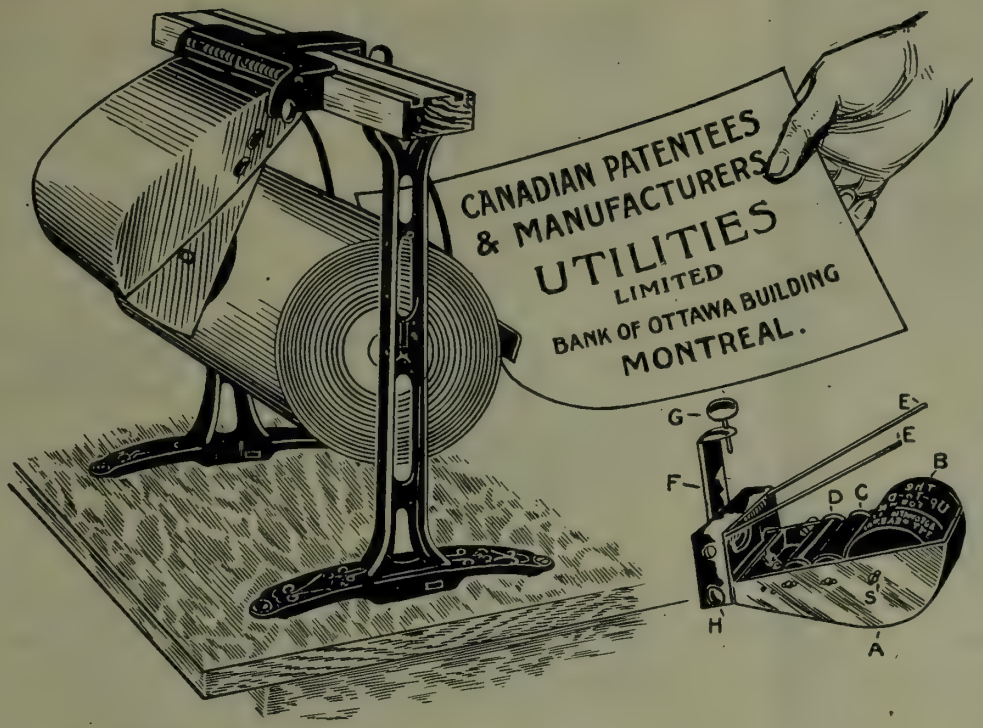
The Life Of Your Trade Depends on Advertising



It is important that you keep your name and your selling lines before your trade to meet with the success you hope to attain in business.

The most straight-to-your-customer style of advertising special sales, etc., is to print on the bags or wrapping paper that encloses goods that will be delivered to their houses.

The Automatic Printing Attachment enables you to get this service at a minimum cost.

By just a pull of the roll of paper your ad. is printed on every paper bag or wrapper that leaves your store. The accompanying cut will illustrate its simplicity.

It means a decided saving in the cost of printing if you were supplied this service by the printer. The cost is very light if it were measured by the value you would receive through its installation.

Ask for demonstration and information of this wonderful automatic printing attachment.

Help Her With the Baking

The majority of women take great pride in making fine cake, bread, or pastry---they like to have them of even flavor, baked thoroughly but evenly and, above all, tasty. Give them and you make baking success more certain. Poor salt means poor baking---everything goes "flat" after hours of work over a hot stove and that means disappointment. Help the housewife avoid that.

WINDSOR Table Salt

"The Barr will save any grocer

If YOU could make a simple and easy investment which would save

It is easy enough to figure it out. Add your loss in transferring accounts from one book to another; the loss that occurs in mistakes in bookkeeping ; forgotten charges ; in over extension of credit ; in allowing payments to be so far delayed that the account is not paid, and the loss to you of customers through disputes and misunderstandings over incorrect bills—add these together and they will amount to a tidy sum for the whole year, several hundreds of dollars at least. Then figure this for a number of years and you have a fair estimate of what the Barr Register will save you.

It is not a matter of sentiment. Actual, cold-blooded, black and white figures will unquestionably prove this.

It is a duty you owe to your business and yourself to learn about the Barr Register to-day. To neglect this opportunity means throwing away just so many hundreds of dollars—not theoretically, but actually.

If you want to save money, mail the coupon NOW before you forget it.

Auto Delivery Curtails Delivery Expenses

Service is one of the main features which determines a merchant's patronage, with delivery the most important part. Merchants are more and more beginning to realize the many points in favor of automobile delivery, because it brings them more business and because it is cheaper than any other method.

The Menard Commercial Car

has been designed to meet the demand, and is a quiet car of great reliability, reasonable speed, with a large reserve of power and a frame of strength and size capable of carrying a load of considerable bulk and up to 1500 lbs. weight.

The design of tires used on the Menard Commercial Cars reduces the cost of maintaining tires to a nominal sum. There are many other features of the Menard that will impress it upon merchants for its superiority above all others.
